FARM BILL IS DELAYED IN SENATE COMMITTEE

Hearings Will Be Continued Next Week Despite Plea by Wallace for Speed—Report Unlikely Before Thursday.

NEW ATTACK BY LEADER OF UNION

John A. Simpson Tells Group That Measure Is "Absolutely Impossible" and Would Require 200,000 Enforcing Agents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Despite a plea by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for speed, the Senate Agriculture Committee decided today to continue hearings on the Administration farm bill next week and prospects were that it would not be reported to the Senate before Thursday at the earliest. It was decided to call representatives of all nine commodities covered in the legislation—wheat, corn, cotton, hogs, cattle, sheep, tobacco, rice and dairy products. The witnesses, to be heard beginning Monday, will include producers and processors.

Chairman Smith would not predict when the measure might be reported, but said it might be ready by Thursday. Senatory McNary (Rep.), Oregon, former chairman, was not so optimistic. He saw little likelihood that the bill could be made ready for Senate action next week.

Simpson Attacks Bill.

A renewed attack on the bill was made before the committee today by John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, who said it would cost $600,000,000 a year, exclusive of land rentals.

Following Simpson, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the committee that Congress "must enact" legislation granting broad power to the administration, and must depend for a farm problem solution on exercise of sound discretion by executive officials.

Wallace added: "Nothing less than this office to meet the realities that now confront us.

"Congress has granted such authority to meet the banking emergency. It should, in my judgment, likewise in meeting the agricultural emergency, which is so intimately interwoven with the banking situation and the industrial depression."

Denies Guessing at Cost.

Wallace said the administration accepts as a fundamental principle the view that restoration of the farmers buying power is an essential part of the program to relieve the present economic emergency not only for agriculture, but for all industry and a large portion of our national credit structure."

He denied he had estimated the cost of the measure at $800,000,000. "No sound estimate can be made in advance," he said.

Wallace opposed the substitute of Chairman Smith of the committee, saying it made no adequate provision for protecting the consumer's interest.

"The processing tax," he said, "will not necessarily become operative with respect to all commodities brought under the protection of the administration bill.

"If a satisfactory price could be reached and maintained by trade agreements, no tax would be imposed. Circumstances must decide the necessity for the tax with respect to any particular commodity, and the fact will determine the amount of the tax.

"When rental or benefit payments are found necessary to correct the situation, the tax must produce the income necessary to administer the act and to protect the Treasury from deficits.

Says Consumer Is Protected.

"The tax is permitted to be levied, however, only with due regard for the consumer's ability to meet any increase in price occasioned thereby. This flexibility is important.

"All of the powers requested are essential if the administration is to be adequately empowered to meet the agricultural situation. The particular powers that will be exercised with respect to any given commodity at any given time cannot be stated in advance.

"This must be determined on the basis of investigation of facts by the Secretary of Agriculture. These

DIVIDEND-DRAWING INDIANS HERE ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

Ride in Private Car and Work Jig-Saw Puzzles En Route to Conference.

Nineteen full-blooded, dividend-drawing Seminole and Creek Indians from Oklahoma, whose oil royalties from the Government have placed them in the wealthy class, changed trains in St. Louis today on their way to Washington, where they will consult Secretary of the Interior Ickes about disbursement of Indian funds under new legislation.

The party, in charge of H. G. House, Muskogee insurance man, began their trip last night from that city in a private car. Included in the group are five families with four papooses-in-arms. A visit to the car while it was being transferred from the Texas Special to an eastbound train, revealed nothing reminiscent of the "blanket Indian."

Most of the passengers, all of whom were in conventional attire, were grouped around tables, solving large-size jig-saw puzzles. One family, the Terry Walkers, have their nursemaid along to see that little Johnnie May, 2 years old, stays out of the train vestibules.

WOMAN KILLS MAN QUARRELING WITH HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Hazel Chaney of East St. Louis Shoots Ben Snyder, Then Goes to Station and Tells Police.

A man identified by police as Ben Snyder was shot and killed this afternoon by Mrs. Hazel Chaney, 29 years old, at her home at 418 Market avenue, East St. Louis, during a quarrel between Snyder and Mrs. Chaney's husband, George.

Police learned of the shooting when Mrs. Chaney walked into the police station, laid a .38-caliber revolver on the counter and announced, "I guess I'm in for it, I just shot a man."

Officers went to the Market avenue address and found Snyder's body on a rear porch. He had been shot through the head.

Chaney told police that Snyder, an unemployed railroad man, and another man, not identified, came to his home about 2 o'clock and asked him to test an automobile generator. Chaney, an unemployed automobile mechanic, made the test and pronounced the generator worthless.

A quarrel ensued during which Snyder, who was drunk, according to Chaney, struck Mrs. Chaney. Chaney pulled Snyder to the back porch, where Snyder is reported to have attempted to pick up an ax. Mrs. Chaney, who obtained her husband's revolver from a dresser drawer, fired one shot at her husband's assailant.

Snyder, about 28 years old, lived at 712 Market avenue. Police records show he had been arrested several times for disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Chaney and her husband were held for the Coroner.

PARK BURNS HAND WITH MATCH

Box Flares Up While Governor Is at Editors' Banquet.

MOBERLY, Mo., March 25.—Gov. Guy B. Park, who appeared at the annual banquet of the Northeast Missouri Press Association here last night, has his left hand in bandages as result of attempting to light a cigar. A small box of matches he held in his hand became ignited and in the flare-up his fingers were painfully burned.

A doctor treated the hand, from which no serious developments are expected, the physician said.

NATIONAL FLOWER AND GARDEN SHOW OPENS AT ARENA

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives Telegraphic Signal From New York That Starts Eight-Day Exhibition.

HER MESSAGE READ TO 2000 GUESTS

These Include Wife and Daughter of Gov. Park—$25,000 Worth of Prizes to Be Awarded.

The masterpieces of American horticulture are on display at the Arena, where the fourteenth annual National Flower and Garden Show opened this afternoon on a signal telegraphed from a flower-decked suite in Hotel Commodore, New York, by Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt tapped a golden telegraph key, beginning transmission of her message to a booth of the International Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association in the Arena. As the click of the sounder was conveyed to the gathering of about 2000 invited guests, they stood and sang "America."

Text of the Message.

Mrs. Roosevelt's message was:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I open this flower show and wish you all success. I have a great love for flowers and feel that they carry a message of beauty which we can share the world over. And between those who are flower lovers, and in that we include flower growers and flower sellers, a kinship and common bond exists which should carry good will not only from city to city and state to state, but also from nation to nation.

After the ceremony of opening the show, a bouquet of the new "Mrs. Roosevelt roses," which won an award at the flower show which closed in New York today, was presented to the President's wife.

At the Arena her message was delivered to the speakers' stand and there read by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert as representative of Gov. Park.

The Governor was detained by executive duties at Jefferson City, and James McHutchinson of New York, president of the Association of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, was prevented from speaking by illness. Maj. Lambert, Chairman Henry C. Berning of the local Executive Committe; George Asmus of Chicago, chairman of the National Flower Show Committee, and acting Mayor Neun were the speakers.

Guests of Honor at Opening.

Guests of honor for the opening ceremonies included Mrs. Park and daughter, Miss Henrietta Park; Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, reigning Veiled Prophet Queen, and her court, escorted by patronesses of the show and St. Louis Colonels on the Governor's staff.

As the formal program concluded with a play by pupils of Mrs. Anna F. Clark, 50 experts from all parts of the United States began scrutinizing the exhibits to award more than $25,000 in cash prizes and medals, including the Henry Shaw gold medal, offered at this show for the first time.

The show will be open through the evening until 11 o'clock. Tomorrow, and daily through the following Sunday, it will be open from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., with hours for school children between 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. on school days.

The show is expected to attract many visitors to St. Louis, including several thousand florists. The Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, chief sponsor of the exposition—which visits a city but once—will hold its annual meeting next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel Chase.

$1,000,000 in Displays.

Sponsors declare the show is a third larger than any of the 13 which preceded it, and hence the largest produced anywhere. Flower exhibits in the Arena and 30 garden displays in the east exhibition building cover a total of four acres. Displays are valued, at florists' and nursery prices, at more than $1,000,000, besides nearly $100,000 in expenses incidental to the exposition.

Every great garden in this country, public or professional, has been preparing for the show for the last 12 months. Flowers ordinarily blooming months later or months earlier have been held back or forced into flower.

Several universities, garden clubs and botanical gardens have displays. Shaw's Garden has the center of the main Arena with tiers of its finest orchids and the center of the garden show with a formal

HITLER PROMISES ACTION TO ADJUST JEWISH PROBLEM

Goering Says "What We Are Doing Is Our Own Affair" — "Smiles at Prayer Meetings in U. S."

DISORDERS IN HALLE KEEP POLICE BUSY

Bank and Postal Accounts of Semites Tied Up in Palatinate Ostensibly to Protect Creditors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, March 25.—Dr. Guenther Gerecke, commissioner for unemployment in the Hitler Government, was indicted today on charges of embezzling funds intended for the use of agricultural unions.

Gerecke was arrested yesterday at the instance of Minister of the Interior von Keudell.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 25.—Dictator Hitler will take action to adjust the whole problem of Eastern Jews, refugees from post-war persecutions in Poland, Hungary, Russia and other Eastern nations who have been held responsible by Hitler's National Socialists for present distressing conditions in Germany.

A Wolff News Agency dispatch states that Eastern Jews are to be exiled from the Palatinate. The Palatinate is in Eastern Bavaria, over against the Bohemian border. First suppressive measures against these Jews were invoked Thursday in the Palatinate, when they were forbidden to withdraw bank and postal accounts.

District Commissioners' Action.

The official press department for the National Socialist Commissionership in Bavaria says the blocking of the bank and postal savings accounts of Eastern Jews in Pirmasens and Landau, in the Palatinate, was a special act of the District Commissioners, while the whole problem will be regulated from Berlin.

The Wolff Agency quotes Commissioner Gaspary at Pirmasens as ordering banking accounts of all Eastern Jews residing there blocked for the time being. The dispatch says the accounts will remain blocked until these Jews, "who, as is known, are to be expelled," shall have met their obligations toward German tradesmen.

Commissioner Kleemans at Landau is reported to have blocked banking and postal accounts of Eastern Jews who have immigrated since 1914. Another Wolff dispatch quotes him as saying, "it seems the Jews are trying to sabotage the National Government and German business by withdrawing all their money from the banks."

Official Explanation.

An official statement was issued at Munich today giving the reasons for the blocking of the Jewish bank account as follows:

"Jews who took residence in the Palatinate since the war have been asked to register with the police. Those who have not responded to the request went across the French border, leaving debts behind. The accounts of only those people have been blocked to protect creditors."

Persecution of any man simply because he is a Jew will not be tolerated, said Hermann Goering, Minister without portfolio, in an impassioned address to foreign correspondents in which he pleaded for fairness in estimating the German situation.

He expressed the opinion that Jews and Socialists abroad were doing their German friends a poor service by making unfavorable reports on German conditions or by holding protest mass meetings.

"Every German," he said, "smiles when he learns that on next Monday prayer meetings will be held in America."

Admits Early Excesses.

Goering, while admitting excesses during the first few days of the Nazi revolution, declared the Government had adopted most stringent measures, including the death penalty, for further transgressions.

The early excesses, he said, must be attributed to provocators in brown shirts—the brown shirt being a part of the Nazi uniform.

"There is not one person in all Germany from whom even one fingernail has been chopped off," he declared.

"It is true that some 'storm troopers' have terribly beaten up this one or that one, but you must remember the terrible bitterness that has prevailed among men who have been persecuted for 10 years.

TOM MOONEY GETS ANOTHER TRIAL FOR BOMBING MURDERS

San Francisco Mayor Greets Shaw

WHEN GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, the famous British playwright, reached San Francisco on his first visit to the United States he was greeted on shipboard by MAYOR ROSSI.

NEW HEARING APRIL 26 ON INDICTMENT NOT YET USED

Defenders Hope That Acquittal in This Case Will Help Them to Obtain Pardon From Governor on Conviction on Original True Bill.

ONLY DIFFERENCE CHANGE IN NAMES

Mooney Originally Sentenced to Death for Preparedness Day Explosion in San Francisco in 1916, but Was Given Commutation to Life in Prison.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25. — Another trial for Thomas J. Mooney was ordered today by Superior Judge Louis H. Ward on the plea of Mooney's attorneys.

Judge Ward's action was another step in the 16-year fight to clear Mooney of responsibility for the bomb explosion that killed ten and injured 40 persons in the Preparedness day parade here in 1916 for which Mooney is serving a life sentence.

Mooney and his sympathizers have always contended he was "framed" by "capitalistic interests." The movement to free him has been of world-wide proportions for years.

Under Judge Ward's order Mooney will be tried on a murder indictment that was never used and has been held in abeyance. He was convicted on a similar indictment and sentenced to hang but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment after intervention by President Woodrow Wilson.

Hope Is For Governor's Pardon.

What effect at law an acquittal now would have on the original conviction and sentence was not stated, but the effect on public opinion, in Mooney's fight for vindication and executive clemency could not well be exaggerated.

Mooney supporters asked for the trial in the belief that an acquittal would enable them to obtain a pardon from the Governor on the charge on which he was convicted.

Although the trial will be on another indictment it in effect will be a new trial as the only difference in the indictments is the name of the person killed.

Judge Ward set April 26 as the date of the trial.

Matthew A. Brady, District Attorney, thereupon announced his withdrawal as prosecutor of the case, and Judge Ward ordered the State's Attorney General's office to take over the prosecution.

The new trial was granted after Col. Charles Erskine Scott Wood, noted author and lawyer, withdrew from the Mooney defense to which he had offered his services for argument on the new trial motion. Wood had been asked by the Mooney defense committee to join their forces in the absence of Frank P. Walsh, veteran New York attorney, who has led the fight for years. Col. Wood announced he had withdrawn from the case at Mooney's request.

"Mooney told me," said Col. Wood, "that he did not desire the introduction of a new attorney into his case at this late date. Other than that I have nothing to say."

History of the Mooney Case.

The Mooney case had its beginning on July 22, 1916, when during a preparedness parade a bomb exploded, killing six persons outright and injuring 44, most of them spectators lined up on the sidewalk to watch the parade. Later four of the injured died.

July 26, 1916, Warren K. Billings, a machinist, and his landlady, Mrs. Belle Lavin, were arrested. Three years previously Billings had been convicted in Sacramento of transporting explosives on a public conveyance and sentenced to two years in prison. Five years previously Mrs. Lavin had been arrested

WOMAN MURDERED AT COUNTRY CLUB

Unidentified Body Found in Driveway at Suburb of Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25. — A well-dressed, unidentified woman was found shot to death early today in the driveway of the Cedar-Brook Country Club in suburban Cheltenham. There were two bullet wounds in her body, one just below the heart and another in the back of the head.

A motorist found the body and notified the club caretaker, but left without making himself known.

The victim was described as about 40 years old. Two .22-caliber shells were found near the body, together with the victim's handbag. The latter was open and contained only a $1 bill.

Police said the woman, who was soon to become a mother, apparently had put up a desperate struggle. Her face had been battered with a stone, a tooth knocked out, a heel torn from her shoe and the lining of her coat ripped.

Police saw indications in three telephone calls during the evening that the slaying was carefully planned.

In each case the caretaker, Frank Schnitzer, was asked by a gruff voice if there was any activity scheduled at the club last evening and assured his interrogator there was none. During functions at the club the driveway is lined with parked cars; last night it was deserted.

15,300 OF COUNTRY'S 19,296 BANKS OPEN; SOME RESTRICTED

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A survey indicated today that more than 15,300 of the 19,296 banks in the country were open again today, some still restricted.

Of the 6891 that are members of teh Federal Reserve System, 5328 were doing business. At least 10,000 of the 12,405 banks that are non-members of the Reserve are open.

TRAIN AND SKIFF COLLIDE

NEW ALBANY, Ind., March 25. —A freight train and a skiff collided in the flooded Ohio river here today.

Plowing through several inches of water at the foot of Pearl street the locomotive knocked the boat to the top of a partly submerged house. Two occupants of the craft were unhurt. The boatmen were members of the "Rowboat Patrol" which takes food to families marooned in the second stories of their homes.

SHAW POSES 'TO LET YOU SEE THE ANIMAL'

Arranges Natural Interview for Movie Men, Then Declares It a Fake.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—George Bernard Shaw, playwright, was the guest today of William Randolph Hearst, publisher, at his San Simeon estate.

Movie men gathered at San Francisco airport to take pictures of Shaw's departure from San Simeon.

"Taking motion pictures is an art," Shaw declared. "I know more about it than you do, and I will tell you what to do. I don't want to stand up here as though I were frozen and talk into the microphone. You turn the crank and I'll walk into the picture and begin talking."

Shaw rambled around the rear of the plane and sauntered into camera range.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said in tones which registered clearly to the listening sound men. "This is all a fake. I didn't just walk into this picture and find myself talking. It was all pre-arranged and we just rehearsed it.

"The purpose of this moving picture is to let you see the animal. I am sure you have been glad to see me for these few moments and I am sorry I cannot see you."

Shaw has disregarded an invitation to address the Commonwealth Club here. The invitation, mailed to the playwright at Shanghai, said no speaker had been paid by the club in its 30 years of existence and "we see no reason for changing this policy," but went on:

"Every President of the United States since McKinley has addressed the Commonwealth Club at least once, which, however, does not preclude the possibility of our membership listening to ordinary speakers. . . .

"It is altogether probable that the majority of our membership would not want to hear you at all, but the minority is better organized and therefore extends to you this cordial invitation if you are disposed so to view it."

The letter was signed by Executive Secretary Stuart R. Ward and this postscript was added: "Forty-five minutes is about all we are accustomed to stand."

While Shaw is at San Simeon the liner on which he is making a world cruise will proceed to San Pedro, where Shaw and Mrs. Shaw will rejoin it.

HOUSE PERFECTS SALES TAX BILL; ROLLCALL DENIED

Speaker Meredith Gavels Governor's Measure Through Despite Chorus of "Noes."

FINAL PASSAGE IS DOUBTFUL

Even Though It Should Be Approved by House, Opponents Think It Will Die in Senate.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 25.—Gov. Park's selective sales tax bill was advanced through the stage of perfection—that of preparation for passage—in the House yesterday afternoon, with the aid of gavel rule by Speaker Meredith, who refused to grant the demands of opponents of the bill for a record roll call. The bill now goes on the calendar of the House for passage.

The Speaker, ignoring the shouted demands of several members for a record vote, gaveled the bill through and declared it perfected, on a viva voce vote, in which the volume of "noes" was considerably greater than the chorus of "ayes."

When opponents of the bill objected that they had demanded a roll call and had served notice during discussion of the bill that a roll call was desired, Meredith said: "I could not hear you."

While this use of the gavel averted a record test of the House sentiment on the bill, and saved it from a possible set back, House leaders handling the measure are not certain it will be passed by the House when it is called up for third reading and passage. The present plan is to call it up Monday or Tuesday.

Many Members Not Returning.

Many of the House members, restless as a result of the legislative delays and the reduction of their daily pay from $5 to $1, which was effective last March 14 after the first 70 days of the session, are leaving for their homes and have indicated they will not return. The light attendance anticipated next week will lessen the chances of the bill for passage.

Opponents of the bill likely will block any attempt to gain unanimous consent for use of some previous roll call, recorded for some other bill, to pass the measure. This method of using previous roll calls, in effect illegal, frequently is utilized by the House to pass bills, despite constitutional provisions to the contrary. In such instances the House records are made to read as if the bills were passed in the manner required by the Constitution.

If the bill is passed by the House it will encounter serious opposition in the Senate and observers believe it may die there. Among its opponents there are Senator Kinney of St. Louis, president pro tem, Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, Democratic floor leader, and Senator Casey of Kansas City.

Few Amendments Adopted.

When the bill was called up in the House yesterday, House leaders attempted to push it through with parliamentary moves which would have prevented any amendments being offered. It was urged that since it was the Governor's bill, it should not be amended. Representative Bennett, Dent County, offered vigorous objections. Few amendments were offered, however, and those adopted made no material change in the bill. An amendment by Bennett, which would have eliminated the selective sales tax plan and substituted a general sales tax of one-half of 1 per cent of the retail sale price of all commodities sold in Missouri, except certain farm products, was defeated.

The Governor's draft of the sales tax bill, which was substituted for a bill proposing a general sales tax, would levy a tax of 1 per cent on the retail sales price of more than 100 classes of commodities, which are named in the measure. No authoritative estimate has been made as to the amount of revenue the tax will produce.

The bill provides that the sales tax shall be in addition to all other licenses and taxes levied under existing laws, but specifies that no county or municipality shall levy any additional taxes by virtue of the provisions of the act.

FARM MEASURE IS DELAYED IN SENATE GROUP

investigations will be undertaken promptly upon the passage of the measure and will not serve to delay the placing of the measure into effect. Full opportunity will be given producers, processors, and other distributors to suggest the most effective use of these powers for each particular commodity.

Counts on Co-operation.

"I have every expectation that not only the producers, but most of the processors, and I hope other handlers, will co-operate with the administration. Such co-operation is essential to fair and effective administration, and will, I hope, serve to avoid the necessity for the extensive use of some of the more drastic of the powers proposed to be conferred.

"The planting season is now under way in many parts of our country. Agricultural relief is an essential part of the administration's efforts to overcome our present economic depression. Time must not be lost if any action taken is to produce the fullest benefit.

"I, therefore, urge upon you, gentlemen of the committee, the necessity of doing everything within your power to co-operate with the administration in expediting the farm relief program, and of giving us a program that is adequate to meet the situation."

Says Haste Is Needed.

Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, told Wallace there might be "pressure from insurance companies" to get leases from the Government on large idle tracts obtained under foreclosure in the far West.

"There would be no need to lease lands that are idle already," Wallace replied. He then insisted to Senator McNary that haste was needed if effective relief is to be had on this year's crops. "We can't set up a machine of such magnitude over-night," he said.

Chairman Smith asked Wallace what commodities would be included under the allotment plan operation.

"From an administration point of view," Wallace said, "I hope the pressure to bring commodities under the bill will not be excessive. I hope we can hold the number down as far as possible for the first two months. Naturally those commodities suffering most would come first."

He mentioned the extreme depression of wheat, cotton, cattle and sheep prices.

Questioned by Norris.

Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, asked whether, if all commodities but wheat and cotton were stricken out, this would interfere with operations for the two commodities.

"I would hate to see corn and hogs stricken out," Wallace said.

Senator Kendrick (Dem.) Wyoming, told Wallace Far Western cattle and sheep producers were "almost unanimous" against being included and should be permitted to remain out.

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, brought up the currency question, calling Wallace's attention to an article featuring proposals by the Secretary to devaluate the gold dollar.

Before He Made the Team.

"You understand of course that I'm not the Secretary of the Treasury," Wallace said. "That interview was given before I became a part of the team down here."

Wallace did say, however, that increases in currency and credit would probably benefit the farmer through higher general price levels.

"But," he added, "if we did have such higher price levels and we continued to produce an extra 180,000,000 bushels of wheat for which there is no market here or abroad, that currency thing wouldn't take care of it."

McNary asked how many men would be needed to administer the law.

Wallace said his department was seeking the answer now, but the number was "problematical." He said he would like to know what the salaries were to be so he could start picking some key men.

Simpson took the committee stand in open session to complete his testimony, begun yesterday, before Secretary Wallace was heard by the Senators.

"It's absolutely impossible," Simpson said of the measure. A force of 200,000 men, he said, would be required to administer the bill.

He said that, under the measure, designed to raise farm prices to the pre-war level through large grants of power to the Secretary of Agriculture, 100,000 men would be needed to regulate 6,500,000 producers of nine major commodities, and another 100,000 would be necessary to regulate processors and handlers.

Figuring the outlay for each person at $3000 a year, Simpson said the total cost would be $600,000,000.

Questioned by Senators regarding the McNary plan of the last session, authorizing the optional or combined use of the export debenture, the equalization fee, or domestic allotment proposal to control surplus, Simpson said:

"The three great farm organizations would fall on their knees and thank God if that bill were enacted."

He added he did not "think much of this counterfeit allotment in this bill."

NEW YORK, March 25.—Prof. Auguste Piccard, Swiss stratosphere explorer, sailed for Europe yesterday after a two months' lecture tour in this country.

TWO RAILROAD PLANS BEFORE PRESIDENT

One Calls for Co-ordination, the Other Pooling Interests of All Lines.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Two drastic and very different plans for railroad legislation are before President Roosevelt, who intends to submit a program to Congress next week.

One provides for a Federal coordinator with power to direct railroad reorganizations in the interest of economy.

The second would pool the interests of all roads. They would be grouped in seven zones.

The latter proposition was laid before the President today by Frederick H. Prince of Boston, who has been working on the plan for weeks.

An unofficial committee understood to be headed by Commissioner Joseph Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission has been holding hearings on the various railroad legislative proposals.

Robert S. Jackson, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, is associated with Prince in mapping his pooling plan. Under the Prince plan traffic within zones would be directed by the shortest routes.

For instance, between Washington and New York, passengers might be sent by one railroad line entirely and freight by another. The two roads through a holding company would pool their earnings and share evenly.

Working with Berle on the other proposal are J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and other railroad executives.

Under the Prince plan, it was understood, the roads would be separated into seven systems: Two in the East, two in the Southeast and three in the West. Competing lines as now constituted would be used much like the tracks of the same railroad, one line being used primarily for passenger service and the other for freight.

The Berle calls for a Federal officer to guide the railroads through the reorganization period.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PRAISES WOMAN LABOR SECRETARY

President's Wife Speaks at Dinner in New York in Honor of Miss Frances Perkins.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, the first woman ever to sit in a Cabinet, was guest of honor at a dinner, attended by 1200 persons here last night.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Postmaster-General Farley were among the speakers.

"Miss Perkins," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "was selected for the post, not because there was a demand that a woman should be recognized, but because the particular place she holds could be better handled by her than by any other woman or man with whom the President was acquainted."

Farley said. "I don't know of any other appointment President Roosevelt has made, or any he may ever make, than will bring him more credit."

Edward F. McGrady, representing the American Federation of Labor, said labor would co-operate with the new Secretary.

Miss Perkins said the problem of the next few years should be to achieve a full program of social justice which would instill new courage into every one. She said she believed the Labor Department should be an informative bureau similar to the Department of Agriculture, which advises farmers in their problems.

Advisory Duties.

"I think the particular information which will help wage earners in their collective bargaining, in their struggle to protect themselves against disadvantageous environment and circumstances in the factories and mills and mines in which they work should come from the Department of Labor," she said. "I think that when there is a question in some far Western city of benzoate poisoning they ought to be able to write to the Department of Labor and say, 'How can this be overcome?'

"I feel, too, that employers who honestly wish to make physical conditions in their plants as good as they can be for wage-earners should be able to turn to the Department of Labor and get expert and intelligent direction on how to prevent benzoate poisoning and lead poisoning."

Plaint From Employers.

In her mail in the last three weeks, Miss Perkins said she had received 200 leters from employers who wrote somewhat as follows: "We in our plant are being ruined because of wage-cutting that is going on in our trade. We have got a good industry and we have a good plant, but we are being ruined by competition which is paying less than a living wage. Can't you do something about it?"

"I think," said Miss Perkins, "that this is a very interesting and significant note when one realizes that industrialists are being ruined by deflation of wages and that we have come to realize the principle that the purchasing power of the wage earners must be restored in order to provide a market for the great industries of the country. We in America are recognizing as we never did before that in the leisure of the workers and in the purchasing power of the workers lies the safety of the merchant, the safety of the manufacturer, and, I think, in the long run the safety of the financial institutions."

George W. Alger, lawyer and labor arbitrator, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were: M. B. Folsom of the Eastman Kodak Co.; Daniel O'Day, vice chairman of the Democratic State Committee; Mrs. F. Louis Slade, a leader among Republican women; Sidney Hillman, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the Women's Trade Union League of the United States, and Jesse Isidore Straus, recently appointed Ambassador to France.

FARMERS ATTACK DAIRY TRUCK

Police Reserves Called Out In Disturbance at York, Pa.

YORK, Pa., March 25. — Police reserves, armed with tear gas bombs, were called out by Chief of Police P. C. Gerder this afternoon following a disturbance at the P. M. Bupp dairy when picketing farmers halted a milk truck. The clash, along with several other incidents of violence, came as a reprisal from 800 York County farmers against milk dealers who refused to meet their price demands.

Clambering on top of the truck, the farmers started to empty the cargo of milk cans, but were thrown to the ground and slightly injured when the driver abruptly started away.

LOUISIANA ALONE IN SOUTH ALLOWS SALE OF 3.2 BEER

Bills Pending in Legislatures of North Carolina and South Carolina to Legalize Beverage.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 25.—Louisiana's repeal of its State prohibition law yesterday set it apart from the rest of the South as a place where 3.2 per cent beer and wines may be made and sold, but there are moist spots around the edges.

In Kentucky, Attorney-General Wooton has ruled that if the State prohibition law does not define alcoholic content of beer, anything that Congress authorizes may be sold in that State.

In Virginia, State laws prohibit the sale of beer and other alcoholic beverages. North Carolina and South Carolina prohibit 3.2 per cent beer. Bills are pending in the Legislatures, now in session, to legalize the beverage.

In Alabama, bills for 3.2 per cent beer are in the hands of legislative committees, apparently dead.

HITLER CREATES MONOPOLY TO AID THE GERMAN FARMER

Forbids Use of Imported Oils and Fats so as to Make Market for Domestic Product.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 25—Chancellor Adolf Hitler has made his first move to carry out his four-year plan for the "salvation" of the farmer, announced in a speech early in February shortly after his rise to power. The Government has created a monopoly of oils and fats, effective next Wednesday. This was expected to bring about use of home-produced commodities, with import duties on margarine and other fats raised to 75 marks a 100 kilograms (about 8 cents a pound). Soap and candle makers were forbidden to use imported materials.

Capt. Hermann Goering, Minister without portfolio in the Hitler Cabinet, had a long private conference last night with the Pope's representative in Berlin, Mgr. Cesare Orsenigo. This followed close upon Hitler's speech in the Reichstag pleading for amicable relations with the Vatican.

RAINEY PREDICTS CONGRESS WON'T QUIT UNTIL JUNE 1

Says Accomplishments So Far Will Mean Nothing Without Whole Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A continued session of Congress until June 1 so it can complete President Roosevelt's program was foreseen today by Speaker Rainey, who added that "everything we have done so far won't amount to one thing unless we get the whole program."

Through newspaper men, the Speaker said: "We will win this war if the people back home will stay with us. So far they have—they have been almost unanimous."

Rainey predicted that there "will have to be some more direct relief for states along the lines of the Wagner bill."

Asked about the statement by William Green, president of the Federation of Labor, that the reforestation program smacked of Fascism, Rainey replied: "We are going to have Fascism and Communism in this country, too, unless we make law of the President's program. We are plunging right along to it. And this talk about a dictatorship is just talk."

His companion, Charles Hinds, Flint, and Alvin Lydman of Skanee, a guide, made their way to safety.

Twelve men on snowshoes left Skanee, Mich, with a toboggan and went to the place in the woods where McClintic's body had been left by his companions. LINER CAPSIZES AT PIER AND SINKS, TWO MEN MISSING

140 Workers and Members of Crew Clamber Ashore —One Freed From Trap With Acetylene Torch.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 25. — The American mail liner President Madison capsized at its pier here yesterday while 140 workmen and members of her crew were aboard. Five men, three of whom later escaped, were trapped in the hold.

One man who had been in the liner's engine room is thought to have drowned. Another Jack Rose, was rescued from his bunk unhurt today.

John Hansen, a watchman, was rescued by Coast Guardsmen who cut through the liner's hull with an acetylene torch and by members of the ship's crew who chopped through paneling inside the ship. He was reported to be seriously injured. He was heard calling for help for hours before aid reached him.

Two Chinese were pulled out through portholes after the vessel sank; another of the trapped men was heard calling out in the depth of the ship for help. Workmen and crew members clambered safely ashore while the liner was settling to the bottom.

The vessel keeled over shortly after 5 p. m., when water poured into the hold through an opening in the side where repairmen had removed steel plates.

Finally, the stern of the ship rested on the bottom, with the whole vessel tilting at an angle of 60 degrees, held upright partly by the dock and by hawsers with which it was moored.

The liner, which operated between Seattle and the Orient, was valued at $5,000,000. Vice-President A. F. Haines of the American Mail Line, operators of the Madison since 1921, explained the accident by saying "somebody made a mistake."

Thomas Short, United States steamboat inspector, said: "Probably somebody turned the wrong valve, and pumped the water ballast to the starboard side, causing a list that put the hole where the plates had been removed, under water. It never could have happened at sea."

American officials had previously indicated that such an audience would be granted and it is expected that Matsuoka will make the calls either Friday or Saturday of next week.

Debuchi said his countryman would arrive here next Thursday afternoon and would leave Washington Sunday afternoon for Chicago.

JOBS BILLS REVISED, MEETS OBJECTIONS

Senate Committee to Report Forestry Plan Favorably Monday—Agreeable to Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Senate Labor Committee agreed today to a revised draft of President Roosevelt's bill to give reforestation work to 250,000 unemployed men.

Chairman Walsh said the bill would be favorably reported Monday and might be taken up that afternoon in the Senate.

The revised bill is a complete redraft of the measure sent to Congress by the President, which would permit him broad authority to carry out his program for creation of a civilian conservation corps and fix the compensation.

The draft was agreed upon after the committee called in William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The labor head, who vigorously opposed the bill in its original form, said the revised draft had "very largely" removed labor's objections.

In its present form the bill makes no mention of the protested dollar a day wage level and calls compensation "cash allowance" rather than pay. Members of the committee said in this means it was made more clearly a relief rather than an emplopment measure.

"The bill as it will be redrafted in the Senate," the Massachusetts Senator said, "will simply give the President power to carry out his program. Such a change is agreeable to him and it will be made on the Senate side.

"I think the House will accept it, although I have not talked to Chairman Connery of the House Labor Committee and others who are opposing it in its present form."

SEIZED ON PRESENTING STOLEN MONEY ORDERS

Man Who Says He Is Stewart Lambert, Gambler, Arrested at Bank.

A man who says he is Stewart Lambert, a gambler, was arrested in the First National Bank yesterday after he had attempted to cash $170 in American Express Co. money orders identified by their serial numbers as stolen in the $[illegible] holdup of the Plaza Bank of Commerce in Kansas City on Dec. 6 last.

The money orders were made out in the name of Stewart Lambert. The police declared, however, that the man who had them is one who identified himself as Joseph Alterauge when he was arrested here in July, 1931, in company with "Speedy" Wilhite, Cuckoo gangster, now serving a 15-year term in Iowa for possession of burglar tools in an attempted bank robbery.

The police base their identification on the fact that the fingerprints of the man arrested yesterday tally precisely with those of the man who said he was Alterauge, and on the recollection of Detective Sergeant Joseph Wren that he is the man whom Wren arrested in company with Wilhite.

This morning, J. Orville Taylor, a teller in the Illinois National Bank of Springfield, identified the prisoner as the one who cashed $350 worth of the orders at the bank Wednesday. Express money orders of the same series have since been cashed in Kansas City, Chicago, Detroit, Washington and Memphis. Police in those cities have been notified of the arrest here.

Held meanwhile without bond, the man who presented the money orders to be cashed says he won them in a gambling game and that he did not know they were stolen until he was placed under arrest. Detectives were summoned to the bank when a bank teller saw that the serial numbers tallied with a list of the numbers of stolen orders posted in the bank.

In addition to the money orders, the man who presented them had $200 in cash. He said he had no home. Police in cities where other stolen money orders from the Kansas City robbery have been cashed were asked to wire descriptions of the man who presented them.

SAYS DEMOCRATS EXPECT TO STEAL 10,000 VOTES

Neun Alleged More Fraud in Last Primary Than in Any Election Here in Ten Years.

PENDERGAST RULE AGAIN ALLEGED

Republican Talks About "Disgraceful 'New Deal' at Jefferson City Because of Influence of Boss."

President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, Republican nominee for Mayor, last night continued his attack on Democratic machine support of Bernard F. Dickmann, Democratic mayoralty nominee, and charged that the Democrats "would try to steal 10,000 votes from the Republicans" in the election of April 4.

Addressing a gathering of Negroes at the Y. W. C. A. at Garrison and Lucas avenues, Neun said: "There was more fraud in the Democratic primary on March 10 than in any election here in 10 years. We will have to spot the Democrats 10,000 votes, because of the fraud, chicanery and other methods they are going to use. I think they will try to steal 10,000 votes from us."

Neun promised that Negroes would receive a share of city patronage in proportion to their voting strength, if he is elected.

Raises Boss Issue.

At a Fifth Ward meeting at 1813 Franklin avenue, Neun renewed his charge that Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City dominates the Democratic machine here. The Republican nominee raised the question of the influence the machine and Pendergast might have over Dickmann if the latter is elected.

Leading up to the machine subject, Neun referred to Dickmann's failure to participate actively in the work of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee. Dickmann, as president of the Real Estate Exchange since 1931, is an ex-officio member of this committee. The Republican administration has been charged by Dickmann with making a "mess" of the program under the $37,372,500 bond issue of 1923.

"Neither the past record of my Democratic opponent nor anything he has said in this campaign," Neun declared, "indicates he has either a sufficient knowledge of municipal problems or a sufficient interest in the city to take over the reins of government in these trying times. He paints a picture of how, if elected, he would give all of his time to the duties of the Mayor's office, yet his past record shows he neglected a public duty when given an opportunity to serve the people."

Absent 14 Times.

Neun explained this was a reference to "shirking of responsibility" by Dickmann as a member of the Supervisory Committee, which passes on all bond appropriation ordinances. Dickmann has attended six of the 21 meetings of the committee held since he became a member on Feb. 19, 1931, Neun said, adding that Dickmann was represented by proxy once and was absent 14 times.

Although Dickmann "longs" for an opportunity to serve the public," he neglected his duty when given the opportunity, Neun declared. Neun quoted Jerome F. Duggan, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination, as saying supervisory committee records show Dickmann "ran true to form in pressing the interests of the Real Estate Exchange and mercenary real estate agents, as against the interest of the small home owner."

Neun continued:

"If the Democratic candidate for Mayor has any criticism to make of bond issue expenditures, he should criticise his own neglect and failure to perform his duty as a member of the Supervisory Committee. If that is a sample to guide us in determining what he means by a 'new deal,' then it can mean nothing but a bad deal for St. Louis. In view of the fact that he left the responsibility of the Supervisory Committee to others, can you be sure that he will not turn over the Mayor's office to the Democratic City Committee and its directing general, Boss Pendergast of Kansas City?

State Committee Treasurer.

"The Democratic candidate for Mayor pleads with the people of St. Louis to believe that he is not identified with the Kansas City boss and his cohorts in the Democratic City Committee, yet he has been treasurer of Pendergast's own Democratic State Committee since 1930. The manner in which Boss Pendergast dominated and controlled that State Committee last fall is too well known for me to go into detail at this time. The brains behind the campaign of my Democratic opponent is no less a man than the chief lieutenant in St. Louis of the Kansas City boss."

Neun said today, in response to inquiry, that he meant President Igoe of the Police Board in speaking of Pendergast's chief lieutenant here.

"The joker in the 'new deal',

Neun continued:

"If the Democratic candidate for Mayor has any criticism to make of bond issue expenditures, he should criticise his own neglect and failure to perform his duty as a member of the Supervisory Committee. If that is a sample to guide us in determining what he means by a 'new deal,' then it can mean nothing but a bad deal for St. Louis. In view of the fact that he left the responsibility of the Supervisory Committee to others, can you be sure that he will not turn over the Mayor's office to the Democratic City Committee and its director general, Boss Pendergast of Kansas City?

State Committee Treasurer.

"The Democratic candidate for Mayor pleads with the people of St. Louis to believe that he is not identified with the Kansas City boss and his cohorts in the Democratic City Committee, yet he has been treasurer of Pendergast's own Democratic State Committee since 1930. The manner in which Boss Pendergast dominated and controlled that State Committee last fall is too well known for me to go into detail at this time. The strains behind the campaign of my Democratic opponent is no less a man than the chief lieutenant in St. Louis of the Kansas City boss."

Neun said today, in response to inquiry, that he meant President Pryor of the Police Board in speaking of Pendergast's chief lieutenant here.

"The joker in the 'new deal'," Neun went on, "is the Democratic City Committee and its remote control director in Kansas City. No one elected to public office through the influence of Tom Pendergast and his crowd has ever been able to escape that influence. That has been proven by the disgraceful 'new deal' at Jefferson City. Let my opponent tell us how he proposed to escape that domination.

"St. Louis must be saved from the 'new deal,' which is paraded before you in sheep's clothing. St. Louis cannot afford to surrender its future destinies to any interest which does not consider the welfare of the people above everything else."

Neun said Dickmann "paints a picture of his heart bleeding for the poor taxpayers, yet he, a man of reputed wealth, makes a personal property tax return of only $100. Dickmann's personal property returns for 1929-32 valued his personal possessions at $100 each year, but, called in by the Assessor, he amended the return for last year to $740. His return for this year is $400. The Republican City Committee is attacking Dickmann and William Stone Madden, Democratic nominee for Comptroller, as personal tax dodgers. Madden has not paid his personal property taxes for 1923-25 and 1927-32.

NUGENT STORE ASSETS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Action First Planned in Delaware Will Take Place Here on Friday.

Assets of B. Nugent & Bro., operating a department store at Broadway and Washington avenue and a branch in Wellston, will be sold at auction at the downtown store Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The sale had been advertised for today at Wilmington, Del., where Federal Judge Nields has appointed receivers in a bankruptcy action against National Department Stores Co., a holding firm for Nugent's and other stores. Federal Judge Davis, however, communicated to Judge Nields the objections of St. Louis creditors and prospective bidders and the arrangement was changed.

Judge Davis was advised that two St. Louis department stores intend to bid. Ben Selkirk & Sons, who will conduct the auction, have had the property appraised at $863,000 and will offer it in bulk and by parcels.

ATTORNEY AND STENOGRAPHER ARE FOUND DEAD OF POISON

ALAMEDA, Cal., March 25.—A burning light in an apartment has led to an investigation disclosing the deaths from poison of Stanley H. Rich, former San Francisco attorney, and his stenographer, Mrs. Agnes MacNeil. The light had burned two days.

Rich's wife, Mrs. Hilda Rich of Oakland, made the identification, then collapsed. She said her husband had left Tuesday, saying he was going to Modesto on a business trip.

Investigators today said the man died first, but whether by suicide pact or otherwise they were not prepared to say. A note found at the apartment read:

"My mistake. Stanley gone. No hope. Hilda, forgive me. Agnes."

MAN, 78, ENDS HIS LIFE

Simon Angermair, 78 years old, strangled himself in his room at 2655A Armand place yesterday afternoon.

He fashioned a noose of sash cord, fastened it to the hinge of a closet door and slumped to the floor. Edgar Mauer, with whom Angermair made his home, found the body at 6 p. m. Mauer said he had seen Angermair reading in his room several hours earlier. Police found $100 in his effects and a bank book showing deposits amounting to $817. There was no note.

garden surrounding a scarcely miniature Greek temple.

The world-famous local institution also displays its tropical lilies, including the new yellow "St. Louis," the first yellow day-blooming hybrid of the variety, in the exhibition building. And, by an unfortunate circumstances, it has a fourth exhibit. This is a Japanese garden shown as a memorial to W. A. Manda of South Orange, N. J., who won this year's award of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society as the leading horticulturist of this country. He was preparing a cactus exhibit for the show when he was killed in a railroad accident last week.

Exhibits of cut flowers will be replaced each day, and in addition there will be a daily schedule—Monday, spring flowers; Tuesday, roses and cornations; Wednesday, sweet peas; Thursday, orchids, sweet peas and carnations; Friday and Saturday, roses; Sunday, novelties and new plants.

Soon after his death it was reported he was insured for more than $400,000, but no insurance is listed in the inventory. Among the holdings are 3766 shares of the common stock of Rothschild Brothers' Hat Co., having par value of $188,300.

BIRCH TREE, MO., BANK HELD UP

Robbers Escape with $3000, Locking Employes in Vault.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRCH TREE, Mo., March 25.—Two unmasked men held up the Bank of Birch Tree at 10 a. m. today, taking $3000 in cash and escaping in an automobile with two companions. They locked Mrs. Mary Thomas, assistant cashier, Charles Bowden, cashier, and Carl Kaufman, a customer, in the vault. Mrs. J. O. Martin, wife of a merchant next door, heard the shouts of the captives and released them. The bank was held up Nov. 13, 1931, also.

In order to carry on its business today the bank borrowed money from the Winona, Mo., Savings Bank.

JAPANESE DIET ENDS SESSION

Has Adopted Government Program, Including Record Budget.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, March 25.—A comparatively uneventful two months' session of the Japanese Diet ended today with all major features of the Government's legislative program including a record budget enacted virtually unopposed. The closing ceremony will be held tomorrow morning. Business sessions ended tonight.

The largest budget in the history of Japan, totaling 2,239,000,000 yen (about $480,300,000), was presented to the Japanese Diet. Appropriations for the army and navy totaled 821,000,000 yen (about $172,410,000). When the budget was voted on in the Imperial Diet Feb. 14 only three proletarians among the 450 members dissented.

Autopsy on Man Found Dead.

An autopsy will be performed on the body of Frank Burns, 42 years old, unemployed blacksmith, who was found dead in bed at his home, 618 Lynch street, yesterday. His wife, Anna, who found the body when she returned home from work, told police he recently had been drinking denatured alcohol.

METALLIC MASS IN FIELD AFTER METEOR IS SEEN

Green Wheat and Grass About It Burned—Five States Report Display.

By the Associated Press.

STRATFORD, Tex., March 25.—A four-pound metallic mass which observers here believed to be a fragment of the meteor which swept over the Southwest was found at the edge of a wheat field yesterday by Ed Hart, farmer.

Green wheat and grass about it had burned. The fragment itself was cool at the time of the discovery. It was flat in shape and had not been imbedded in the soil.

By the Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Tex., March 25. — The gigantic meteor which lighted the skies in five southwestern states before dawn yesterday and, with a rumble that rattled doors and windows, apparently was mostly disintegrated on its earthward plunge.

Persons in various localities of the North Texas plains region, the Oklahoma Panhandle, Southwestern Kansas, Southern Colorado and New Mexico expressed the belief that the meteor or fragments of it had fallen nearby. Many persons were awakened by the brilliance and the rumble which caused dwellings to vibrate.

The display was visible at Albuquerque for nearly 30 minutes in the form of a huge cloud of fiery gas and at Colorado Springs, Colo., the illumination lasted for an hour and a half after the ball of fire passed from view southward.

The rattling of doors and windows at Liberal, Kan., caused residents there to believe the meteor had struck the earth in that vicinity. At Guymon, Ok., it was thought it may have fallen somewhere northeast of Keyes, Ok.

HITLER PROMISES ACTION TO ADJUST JEWISH PROBLEM

It is humanly understanable if they took justice in their own hands.

"The world must be thankful to us, however, that we have established order so quickly.

"I will not ever stand for persecuting a man simply because he is a Jew."

Orders to Protect Foreigners.

He continued: "The strictest order also has been issued to all nationalistic organizations that under no circumstances are they to molest foreigners.

"Travelers from elsewhere coming here this summer will enjoy the fullest freedom and witness a nation proud of its resurrection.

"Jewish business men can continue unhindered. You who know how bitterly anti-Semitic many of our people are can realize what this means."

Goering said he knew what was being telephoned and cabled, yet he opposed establishing a censorship. He said the excesses of the present revolution were mild compared with those of 1918 and 1919. He was nettled over hostility to the Nazi revolution cropping up in a part of the world press.

"First one is alarmed, then angered, and finally completely nonplussed by reading what is written about us," he said. "But, on comparison with another period, namely May, 1922, one sees exactly the same kind of stories written about us as then appeared concerning the Fascist revolution in Italy."

While admitting on the one hand that some Jewish shops were compelled by nationalistic elements to close temporarily or even to display signs reading "buy only in gentile stores," yet on the other hand, he said, "storm troopers" had protected many department stores and other stores against violence and enabled them to reopen.

"To proclaim abroad that 'Judah declared war on Germany,'" Goering continued, "may result in the German masses reacting thereto in a different manner from what the proponents desire.

"What we are doing domestically is our affair and there is no more reason for protesting abroad than there is for holding protest meetings in Germany against, for instance, France's employment of black soldiers."

Goering pledged untiring efforts to maintain law and ordef.

"No Minister in Germany," he asserted, "worked as hard or accomplished as much work as I upon whom the responsibility for the police rests. I work daily until late at night.

"As for you of the foreign press I can only congratulate you upon the good fortune you had to witness these historic hours when the nation again found itself.

"As to visitors to Germany, all, including Jews, can travel unmolested."

He invited the group of correspondents to visit Ernst Thaelmann, candidate for President in the last executive election, and others who are in jail to see that they have not been harmed.

Police were kept busy yesterday in Halle, in Prussian Saxony, dispersing crowds that gathered at large Jewish stores and at a new Woolworth chain store. Police were forced to close the stores. Minor incidents marked the opening of the Woolworth store and the attitude of the crowd became so menacing that the store was temporarily closed both in the morning and the afternoon.

The German League of Jewish Front Soldiers sent a letter today to the United States Embassy protesting against the spreading of anti-semitic atrocity reports in the United States. The letter denounced the "so-called Jewish intellectuals abroad who are spreading false reports.

"They fled at a critical moment and therefore forfeited their right to a voice in German-Jewish matters," the letter says. "The badly exaggerated stories are harmful to Germany and German Jews."

A similar statement was made yesterday by the Central Union of German Citizens of the Jewish Faith and the Patriotic Society of National German Jews.

At Munich today the Minister of Justice ordered all Jewish Judges in the criminal and disciplinary courts transferred to the civil courts. He also directed that Jewish State's Attorneys must no longer appear as public prosecutors.

BANK PRESIDENT ADMITS KILLING STATE EXAMINER

J. C. Brock, Headrick, Ok., Shot W. C. Ernest, Who Had Reported Finding Shortage in Accounts.

By the Associated Press.

ALTUS, Ok., March 25.—J. C. Brock, president of the Citizens' State Bank of Headrick, was held in the county jail here today charged with the murder of Bank Examiner W. C. Ernest, who was shot to death yesterday after he had closed Brock's bank.

Ernest was shot through the head as he sat writing a telegram to the State Bank Commissioner, giving details of an alleged shortage in Brock's accounts which he had just reported by telephone.

The banker admitted he shot the examiner, asserting: "I was justified in doing what I did."

Bank Commissioner W. J. Barnett at Oklahoma City, where Ernest's body was taken for burial, assigned two Banking Department attorneys to aid the prosecution.

Barnett said he had talked with Brock on the telephone just before the fatal shooting.

"Ernest told me he had caught Brock in a shortage and that he recommended that the bank be closed and taken over by the department. I told him to close it and to give me the facts by telegraph. Then Brock talked to me.

"'Don't close the bank, Mr. Barnett,' he said. 'If there's any shortage chargeable to me, I'll make complete restitution, but if you close the bank, it will ruin me.'

"I told him that I would be a poor chief if I did not follow the recommendation of my examiner. 'Yes, that's right, but I can explain,' Brock said. Then I got Ernest back on the wire and told him there was no change in instructions."

Ernest, widely known in Southwestern Oklahoma, had been associated with the Banking Department 22 years. He leaves a widow and two children.

The closed bank has capital stock of $15,000 and deposits of about $59,000, which were under a 20 per cent withdrawal restriction under the new banking law.

There were no witnesses to the shooting. Miss Virginia Doane, stenographer for the Banking Department, said she left the room while the two men were talking and added, "I won't tell what they said until I have to."

MRS. E. R. MAIER AUTO VICTIM

Brewer's Wife Killed in Collision With Mrs. Charles Skouras' Car.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 25.—Mrs. Kathleen Maier, wife of E. R. Maier, sportsman and brewer, died in a hospital here last night from injuries received an hour earlier when her automobile was in a collision in West Los Angeles with a machine driven by Mrs. Charles Skouras, formerly of St. Louis, wife of the executive vice-president of the Fox West Coast Theaters.

Mrs. Skouras was uninjured. Mrs. Maier formerly was a resident of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

DICKMANN SAYS NEUN HAS HAD HIS NINE POINTS ON ICE

'Promises of Relief for Tax Payers Have Been in Cold Storage for Ten Years.'

Charges that President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, Republican nominee for Mayor, has seen favored contractors pile up "enormous" profits and observed "countless irregularities" were made last night by Bernard F. Dickmann, Democratic mayoralty nominee.

Dickmann addressed a mass meeting at 1441 Chouteau avenue and repeated the speech over radio station KWK. He said:

"Despite all the evasions my City Hall machine opponent may resort to, the fact remains that the chief issues involved are honesty, economy and fair dealing with the taxpayer. As one who pays many times more taxes than my opponent for the support of the city government, I will continue calling attention to the gross inefficiency, extravagance and waste of the taxpayers' money that have been rampant under this machine-ridden municipal government. I have asked question after question of my opponent concerning things in which the people are vitally interested, but he has no answer.

"He has sat in the game for 10 years and has had votes to cast on every item involved in the $87,000,000 bond issue, which is now practically exhausted. He has seen from the inside every phase of this abominable exhibit. He has seen favored contractors pile up enormous profits. He has seen payrollers who neither weave nor spin, nor do anything else to earn their city pay check. He has seen countless irregularities.

'Assaults on City Charter.

"He has seen assaults on the integrity of our city charter. He has looked on piously at the customary shakedown of the city employes, including the scrubwomen of the institutions and the poorly paid laborers employed on our public streets, and has done nothing. I'll have to qualify this statement; in a small thin voice he did recognize the system, but only after the collections were in the bag."

The Ryckoff scandal will overshadow any smoke screen the Republican machine could build, Dickmann asserted. This was a reference to the scandal in 1929 over payments on a contract for electric street light installation.

"My opponent," Dickmann continued, "has looked on complacently while every form of extravagance has been officially O. K'd, but when and where did he protest? The nine points he now talks about, if they mean anything and promise any relief to the oppressed taxpayers, must have been kept in cold storage during the 10 years he has been an important cog in the City Hall machine. Now he vaguely injects this campaign promise. He could just as well have made it 99 points. It is nothing but an alibi, an illusive, meaningless bit of verbiage to tempt that portion of the people who vote but never think.

"How my opponent expects to get away with his record of non-interference with the various jobs that were put over under his watchful eye surpasses my power of understanding. A negative record is a poor record for continuance in office."

Dickmann said Neun's heart was not touched with sympathy for the taxpayers "until these taxpayers became an enraged and threatening factor which promised his undoing as a city official." The Democratic nominee inquired if Neun could expect the people to "swallow any of the fairy tales he now gushes forth," adding: "If he does, he must be a firm believer in what P. T. Barnum used to say—'There is one born every minute.'"

Although Neun wants the voters to believe he has no entangling relations with the Republican machine, he is running, said Dickmann, "on the same ticket with those who, like himself, for a quarter century have made politics a profession in this city; like Old Dog Tray, he's still in mighty bad company.

Creature of Machine.

"The people of this city are tired of being hoodwinked and humbugged by those who make politics a profession and thrive by it. He has not only made politics his profession, but he has had his nose in the public feed trough for a good many years. He is the creature of this political machine. It has made him Assistant Circuit Attorney, Circuit Judge, chairman of the Republican City Committee and three times president of the Board of Aldermen.

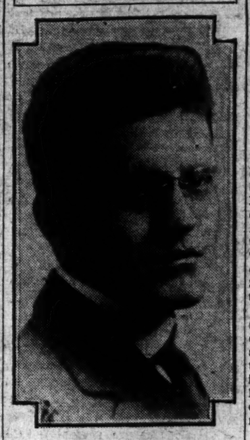

"While holding tenaciously to the latter job, he aspires to the office of Mayor, which is to say that while the people of this city are paying him a good stiff salary of $3000 a year for doing his little best to discharge the duties of one office, he is bouncingly chasing after another one. For the past two years my opponent has been spending his time, not in a reasonable effort to earn his salary, but in explaining to the people why he should be elevated to the office of Mayor, for which he has been duly indorsed by Mayor Miller.

The New Deal.

"When my opponent took the air Thursday night on the radio his first utterance was that 'a new deal' is not always a good deal. I leave it to the people if, when the present dealers contrive to deal all the aces to their own crowd, it isn't about time for a new deal? My opponent also told us that sinister influences are hiding behind the new deal. He was carrying you up to Jefferson City then, and it was my opponent who was doing the actual hiding. May I ask, is the legalization of the manufacture and sale of beer an act of hiding by the Democratic party of this State? The opportunity is before us to elect a business man. Don't you think we have had enough of machine government in our City Hall? Isn't it time for a new deal, a new dealer and a new deck?"

Dickmann's record for fairness to union labor was defended last night by Emmet J. Canty of the Plumbers and Steamfitters' Union, secretary of the Union Labor Democratic Club, speaking at Kingshighway and Reber place. Canty said his club represents 48 groups of organized labor, which have 8500 members, and is working for Dickmann's election. Canty explained a charge that Dickmann's real estate office had a non-union plumber do work on property at 211 South Jefferson avenue by saying the owner ordered the job. Dickmann's firm is agent for the non-resident owner.

INDICTED BANKER KILLED BY AUTO GAS

WILLIAM BRACE.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned at Evanston, Ill., yesterday in the death of William Brace, killed by carbon monoxide in a garage at the rear of his home. Brace, an attorney, was a director of Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. and Fidelity Bond & Mortgage Co. of St. Louis, both of which failed in 1931. He was indicted last November, charged with obtaining money by false pretenses in the sale of a second mortgage, but Gov. Emmerson, after a hearing, held he had committed no crime and refused to extradite him.

SIX CHILDREN AMONG 12 BITTEN BY DOGS YESTERDAY

One Victim Kills Animal With Brick After It Attacks Him and Girl, 13.

Twelve persons, including six children, were bitten by dogs yesterday.

Encarnatio Sandoval, 33 years old, step-grandfather of Francis Garcia, 13, killed a dog with a brick after the animal bit him and the girl in front of their home, 1319 Blair avenue, last night.

A stray dog ran into the home of Mrs. Mary Bommarito, 1408 North Nineteenth street, yesterday through an open door and bit Mrs. Bommarito's niece, Betty, 7 years old, on the hands. The dog escaped.

HAS $65,000 DEBTS AGAINST $90 ASSETS

Lonzo A. Duck Ordered by Referee to Give More Details About Claims.

Unable to explain fully the origin of $65,000 in debts listed in his bankruptcy schedules, Dr. Lonzo A. Duck of Webster Groves, salesman of medical books, was ordered by Referee in Bankruptcy Coles yesterday to return Monday with "complete details." Against his debts, he listed assets valued at $90, for which he claimed exemption.

When a group of lawyers representing creditors plied him with questions about the debts, he answered, "I can't tell you, I think they arose out of my wife's venture in building houses." His schedules listed $18,347 in unsecured debts, chiefly to firms supplying building materials, and $47,025 in secured debts, largely representing notes signed by himself and his wife.

"I suppose my wife contracted those unsecured debts," he said. "I signed some notes with her, but the properties have been foreclosed. I have lost everything."

He had lost even the equity in his home at 343 West Jackson road, Webster Groves, Dr. Duck said. "The contractor built part of the house on property we didn't own," he said. "I'm still living there by the grace of God and will stay until I am put out."

Dr. Duck said his salary from the C. V. Mosby Co., publisher of medical works, was $75 a week, having been reduced recently from $100 a week. He said in response to a question that he had no financial interest in the Mosby company, since he had sold his stock to satisfy a debt for money borrowed to aid his wife in her construction enterprises.

CHARGE AGAINST HENRY HEIER INVOLVING CHECK IS DROPPED

Federal Prosecutor Obtains Dismissal of Indictment Against Undertaker

An indictment charging Henry Heier, South St. Louis undertaker and former member of the Board of Education, with unlawfully receiving a Government burial check for $100, was struck from the docket in Federal Court yesterday on motion of the District Attorney.

The Court order granted the District Attorney authority to reinstate the charge if he chooses to do so later. Neither Judge Davis nor Assistant District Attorney Purteet, who moved that the charge be dismissed, made any comment.

At the time the indictment was returned against Heier the latter exhibited a receipt showing that the check had been turned over to the widow of a former soldier.

MAN WHO REPORTED BURGLARY SAID TO ADMIT $480 THEFT

Calls Police to House, Then Is Arrested When Landlady's Loss Is Discovered.

Police called to a rooming house at 4018 McPherson avenue Thursday afternoon were informed that $480 had been stolen from a locked closet, where it had been hidden by the proprietor, Mrs. Ida Pare, now a patient in City Hospital.

The police had been called to the house by Shirley Dooley, 30 years old, who said his room had been ransacked but only a razor had been stolen. An investigation yesterday, however, brought to light that Dooley is a former convict and within 24 hours after the theft, had paid $350 on a mortgage on a car he owned. Police questioned him again and report he signed a confession that he had stolen the money.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

In Behalf of Mayor Ruth.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTICED in recent issues of the Post-Dispatch letters in behalf of the candidacies of David Millar and Walter Hays for Mayor of University City, and I feel that citizens of University City would be pleased to see something published in behalf of Mayor Eugene D. Ruth Jr., who has served us faithfully for five years as Alderman and seven years as Mayor, at a great sacrifice to himself and to his business.

University City has become known throughout the United States as "the model city," because of the untiring efforts put forth by Mayor Ruth to make it attractive. The best evidence of this is the fact that since he became Mayor, the city's population has grown from a mere handful to approximately 28,000 persons and it has advanced from a suburb to the position of sixth city of Missouri.

Mayor Ruth's progressive administration has even been an example for the City of St. Louis, as it copied Ruth's progressiveness in building underpasses for the safety of the pedestrians; it copied Ruth in using windshield stickers for city automobile licenses as an economy measure and, perhaps, it may later copy him in collecting rubbish throughout the city, in exterminating mosquitoes and rodents, and in other progressive measures which Mayor Ruth has put into effect.

Mayor Ruth has also established four new playgrounds for children, baseball diamonds, tennis courts, soccer fields, a swimming pool and a municipal golf course, University City being one of the few small cities in the United States having the latter. Mayor Ruth also put into effect a monthly budget system, whereby a certified public accountant makes an audit of every cent spent.

All these improvements and services have been put into effect with no increase in the general revenue tax of 50 cents per hundred dollars, the same as it was before Ruth became Mayor.

I feel I speak the sentiments of the better class of residents of University City when I say University City does not want a change in Mayor, as Ruth has proved himself in every way.

E. A. CUMMISKEY.

Footnote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FOOTNOTE to your editorial on "Our Faithless Legislature," which has arranged to delay the end of prohibition in this State for two years: A bootlegger boasted to me yesterday that he expected to stay in business for "two years longer."

I am tired of paying real money for imitation liquor, and good taxes for imitation legislators. TIRED.

Buzzard Directors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"BUZZARD DIRECTORS" is the new name applied by John T. Flynn in the New Republic to bond and stock salesmen masquerading as bankers, who sit as "directors" on the boards of deposit banks. Mr. Flynn ranks buzzard directors as more objectionable than even dummy directors.

And yet, as he says, despite the many devices set up for safekeeping depositors' funds from attack and loss by outsiders, these alleged directors have the means and methods of reaching, obtaining and even using these deposits. Moreover, through their inside ability to obtain information which should be privileged, in the strictest sense of the term, they are in position to work to their own advantage with reference to their so-called syndicates, pool operations and downright speculative ventures.

But listen to Mr. Flynn. His words are even harsher: "The last man to be in authority in a bank, therefore, is the stock merchant with securities for sale. You will find these investment bankers in almost every large banking directorate. They should be chased outside those banks and made to take their place in line with all the other security salesmen."

In other words, ask your banker if he has any so-called investment banker (otherwise stock and bond salesmen) sitting on his board of directors. If his answer is in the affirmative, depositors should need no further advice as to where they leave their savings. And this applies no less to trust companies, handling funds which should be sacredly exempt from unholy speculative operations. ERNEST FRANK.

Those Privileged Minorities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOW that the whole pension problem has been taken out of politics and the sheep will at last be separated from the goats, can we not hope that the press will let up on those small minorities that were privileged in the last war to lie out in the open in freezing rains, to tramp over soggy, fresh-plowed fields with 80-pound packs, under the fatherly direction of sergeants with hearts of gold, while the big majorities were compelled to stay at home and make a living under war conditions?

We read of an army of job-seekers descending upon the new administration. Why are those jobs so desirable? Are the Postmasters, Collectors, Marshals, etc., necessary? Are the duties of these offices worth the salaries paid to perform them? Or could the work be done, as it is now perhaps, by underpaid civil service employes?

Belleville, Ill. LESTER MILLER.

Perils in the City Election

Having captured the national and State governments, the Democrats are making the most formidable drive on the City Hall since the Butler era. On April 4 they hope to elect a Mayor, a Comptroller and 14 Aldermen who, with the two already on the board, would give the Democrats control for the first time since the new Charter was adopted. We view the prospect with misgivings.

It is part of the Democratic strategy to capitalize what Roosevelt is doing at Washington, and when he signs a beer bill or advocates economy or holds out hope for the unemployed, his action is cited as a reason for supporting the local ticket. That, of course, is standard campaign buncombe. A New Deal at Washington does not necessarily mean a New Deal here.

Much more to the point, it seems to us, because it has a much more intimate bearing on what we may expect from a Democratic victory in St. Louis, is the spectacle at Jefferson City. If the New Deal at Washington means constructive statesmanship, the New Deal at Jefferson City is its exact opposite. The Democrats up there are engaging in one of the worst orgies of partisanship on record. The Governor, a creature of Boss Pendergast, stands by helplessly while the Legislature knifes every worthwhile measure presented to it. To date, its only achievement worthy of note is a beer bill, which it was afraid not to pass.

It is not for us to make a brief for the Republican administration of the city government. We exposed the Ryckoff scandal, by which the city was swindled out of some $170,000 on a street lighting contract. We have consistently and repeatedly pointed out the administration's defects and shortcomings. Nor are we under any illusions about Judge Neun who, for all his good qualities, lacks intellectual stability. But the question before St. Louis now is not whether the Republicans have abused their power in numerous ways, or whether they have failed to give the city the kind of government it should have, but whether the Democrats have anything better to offer.

We entertain grave doubts. Aside from the mayoralty, it is certain that St. Louis could not make a greater mistake than by replacing Louis Nolte as Comptroller by William S. Madden. Nolte has held the office since 1917. He has made a good record in it. He surmounted the great test of the depression by preserving the city's credit at a time when New York, Chicago, Detroit and many other cities find themselves in the sorest financial straits. The city, it is true, is operating at a deficit, but its bonds are selling at par or better and, relatively, it is in splendid shape. Nolte's independence was fully demonstrated in the Ryckoff case, when he doggedly cried out that the city had been cheated.

William S. Madden is the brother of the newly-elected Sheriff, Thomas Madden, whose interpretation of the New Deal was to fill his office with political hangers-on. As Comptroller, Madden would be called upon to check the accounts of Brother Thomas, a situation against sound public policy. So far as we know, William S. Madden has no qualifications for the office he seeks. Until recently, he was employed by the H. L. Doherty Co. to sell Cities Service stock, which was unloaded on the public in huge blocks before the market crash in 1929. Moreover, as recently revealed by City Hall records, he is a tax dodger who owes the city several hundred dollars in back taxes.

A Democratic victory on April 4 would put some 7000 city jobs on the block and this, of course, because of the prevalent unemployment, is one of the major factors in the campaign. Theoretically, St. Louis has a civil service system, but it was emasculated during Henry Kiel's administration and it has existed since largely in theory. The Republicans' failure to live up to the Charter now rises to plague them. If they lose the election, they may attribute it in great part to their own greed.

To throw 7000 men out of work for the sake of employing 7000 others represents no net gain. On the other hand, it means that good public servants will be scrapped with the bad, and the City Hall will be filled with untried men, unfamiliar with their new tasks. Such a happening would be fraught with danger to the city.

We fear giving so much political power to any one political party, especially one which, locally, does not inspire confidence. The Democrats already control here, in addition to the Sheriff's office, the Police and Election boards. With the City Hall thrown in, there can be no effective check upon them. If they choose to give the city good government, all well and good; but if they run wild, as they have at Jefferson City, we are in for four years of chaos.

Their control of the police power and election machinery is integrated with the Pendergast-Park regime at Jefferson City. Appointments to the Police and Election boards, which had been of generally high character under three Republican Governors, have been strongly political. There are some good men among the Park appointees, but not in 20 years has another Governor so savored these two powerful St. Louis agencies of the State with politics.

Do the people of St. Louis want to connect this great city politically with the Democratic control at Jefferson City and so with the Pendergast rule at Kansas City? Or do they want to interpose in their public affairs the safeguard of divided control? We hope they do want to interpose such a safeguard. We had a test of this when Mayor Miller tried to place his secretary upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which controls the fiscal affairs of the city. The people frustrated that design.

Mr. Neun has shown political independence in no small degree. He drove Mayor Miller out of the field for re-election by announcing his own candidacy early. He refused to tie up with the franchise grabbers trying to put over J. K. Newman's malodorous street railway deal. He challenged the political bosses in his own party by opposing Jules R. Field, aspiring to the presidency of the Board of Aldermen, and won a signal victory by taking his case to the people. He showed initiative and executive capacity in the settlement of the bridge issue, which had plagued the city for years. He proved his usefulness in the settlement of a threatened street car strike. He is not the strong man he might be, but he is far above the average public official in an American city.

We have no quarrel with Mr. Dickmann, no quarrel with Mr. Madden, no quarrel with the local Democratic organization. We are not interested in parties or partisans. Our interest is in the City of St. Louis. We mistrust Democratic control and its connotations. The people of St. Louis have been singularly fortunate, as metropolitan communities go. They have been fortunate in having an efficient Police Department, fortunate in Mr. Nolte as the watchdog of the treasury, fortunate in clean elections, fortunate in a modicum of that graft and corruption which have characterized government in so many cities.

Do they want to sweep out of the public service all those who have contributed to this good fortune and put none but Democrats on guard, tried and untried?

We doubt it.

HOW ABOUT THE HOUSE?

The Missouri Senate has finally passed the Brogan bill, repealing the State dry act. It took two hard plunges through center to do it, but the bill won.

How about the House? Is the House going to repudiate the Chicago platform and leave the iniquitous McCawley law upon the statute books? Or is it going to do what the Democratic Legislatures have done in a dozen other states and throw this piece of legislative tyranny into the Missouri River?

The House has an opportunity to redeem itself in this important respect by repudiating the deal it made with the drys. Its primary obligation is to the voters of the State. It had no right to agree that if beer was legalized the State dry law should remain inviolate. This was a trick put over on the House, an artifice worthy of Machiavelli.

The plea that confusion will result if the State dry law is abrogated before repeal of the eighteenth amendment ought not to deceive any member of the House who calls his soul his own. Confusion will result if beer is legalized and the State dry law remains to proscribe everything else. Already an instrument of revenge and tyranny, the State dry law would be an even greater disgrace to freedom.

The vote by which the Senate passed the Brogan bill was a declaration of freedom. The members of the Senate must all feel better for it. They are a representative body. They have no right to substitute their own will for the will of the people. Is the House a free body? Then let it make its own declaration of freedom.

ACTION IN THE JURY LIST SCANDAL.

The legal profession in St. Louis is going to do something about the waylaid jury lists.

The Executive Committee of its voluntary professional organization, the St. Louis Bar Association, has ordered an investigation by the Grievance Committee. According to William T. Jones, president of the local bar, the vote for such action was unanimous.

Everyone interested in the purification of the bar will be gratified to know that the St. Louis bar as a whole appreciates its responsibility in this case. The known facts have been widely printed. There is no need to repeat them here. Jury lists were found in a law office. That is enough to warrant searching investigation.

It has not been proved that any particular lawyer was responsible. However, if inquiry does establish such an identity, the bar will find it has in its midst a member who has violated his moral trust as an officer of the court. Such a member of the bar would be a subject for whatever discipline a voluntary bar association can exert.

This is an expensive matter for the association; a disbarment proceeding entails an expenditure by such an association of some $1000. Such is the sacrifice made by a great profession in defense of its good name.

The difficulty with which a voluntary bar association conducts such investigations has been described in these columns. Nevertheless, an investigation was imperative in this instance. Had the St. Louis bar passed the jury lists case by without notice, it would have yielded all claim to self-respect. It would have surrendered, as the Missouri Legislature did in refusing to authorize a better means of handling such unprofessionalism, to those powers of darkness which press always closer upon the throne of justice.

QUIBBLING MR. GREEN.

Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to relieve the unemployment situation by formation of a civilian conservation corps is opposed by William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Green fears the $1-a-day wage scale will affect adversely general wage standards; he refers to the semi-military character of the plan as a "regimentation of labor" such as occurs in Fascist Italy, Hitlerite Germany and Soviet Russia.

In other words, Rome is burning and Mr. Green has got out his fiddle. Mr. Green bitterly criticised the Hoover administration for failing to tackle the unemployment problem and, now that direct action is being taken on it, he presents a quibbling opposition that, in view of the great crisis, is thoroughly disheartening. It would be fine if the Government could give these men $10 a day. It cannot do so. As it is, the plan will cost $250,000,000 a year. Would Mr. Green make it cost $2,500,000,000 for the theoretical purpose of upholding general wage standards? Moreover, the men will be provided with food, clothing and housing, which, translated into money, would make the wage considerably higher than $1 a day.

It is all very well to talk of wage standards, but when 15,000,000 persons, more or less, are walking the streets, it is far more important to give them any kind of employment, at any figure, that is possible. The present measure is a relief measure. It is designed, not to represent what the Government thinks men should be paid, but to preserve their self-respect until other work is made available. The type of work they are to be assigned to do—reforestation—is new work, not in competition with labor already employed.

The term "regimentation of labor" implies that men will be drafted for the work, that they will be compelled to engage in it despite their own wishes. Nothing could be more absurd. If the civilian conservation corps is formed, entrance into it will be sought eagerly and enthusiastically by many more men than it can accommodate. There is no resemblance between this and the ruthless assignment of labor in Russia, and Mr. Green knows it. Of course, the organization will have a military flavor, but how else would Mr. Green organize and discipline such a movement?

We regret that a man who, because of his official position, should be the first to welcome any effort to rid the streets of idle men, turns up to play so mean a role.

REACHING FOR ST. LOUIS

Getting Rid of St. Louis Slums

City's slums can be rebuilt only if Legislature passes housing bill, making R. F. C. aid possible, as project evidently is too big for private capital; European cities and many in U. S. have built new homes for workers, improving health and social conditions; start of work now would revive building industry and create jobs.

By Benedict Farrar, St. Louis Architect.

THE housing bill recently introduced in the State Legislature should speedily be made law. The bill is based upon similar bills already adopted by New York and Ohio. With such a law on the statute books of Missouri, St. Louis, through limited dividend corporations, can reclaim her disgraceful slum areas. Without such a law, the city can do nothing, and our slum areas will continue to spread.

The question of these slum areas, which exist in every American city, has been under discussion for years. Social settlement work has been carried on for years in these sections. Admirable as this work has been, the slum areas have remained. Crowded, insanitary and dilapidated buildings create such an unhealthful environment for human beings that no amount of social training can overcome it. The only way this condition can be overcome is by wiping out these dilapidated and antiquated buildings and replacing them with modern, well-constructed buildings that will at once revolutionize the entire atmosphere of these sections.

The time is coming when we shall see great sections of our cities completely rebuilt; where we now find thousands of people crowded into tumble-down buildings, many of which were never intended for dwellings, we shall see great blocks of well-designed apartment houses, beautifully landscaped, in which anyone in modest circumstances will take pride in living. London has recently abandoned a great project calling for construction of a new bridge across the Thames, which would have cost many million dollars, and is diverting the funds into rehabilitation of one of its slum areas. The London County Council reported that it was more necessary to relieve congestion in living conditions than to relieve traffic congestion. New York City and Cleveland already have extensive housing plans under way.

In some instances, these projects have been undertaken by private enterprise, and it is to be hoped that public-spirited citizens in St. Louis will take the initial step to show what can and should be done by erecting one or more housing units. But if our slum areas are to be done away with completely, it will be a work that only the city itself can hope to accomplish.

The question will be asked, How can the city afford to make such an investment? The answer is, The city cannot afford not to do so. There are today in St. Louis sections of many blocks where the taxes collected scarcely pay for the cost of their police and fire protection. To this loss must be added the cost of maintaining schools and asylums, which are taking care of the many students and inmates that come from these districts. Nor can we ignore a perhaps still greater loss to society that arises from the ignorance and crime bred in these slum areas.

There are many reasons why the present is a most opportune time to begin this rehabilitation. The Government, through its Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is prepared to help finance these housing schemes, provided they are of merit and comply with certain legitimate conditions which the Government lays down. With the building industry practically at a standstill, commencement of these housing schemes would help to set its countless wheels in motion.

There is nothing new nor idealistic in a proposal to carry out these housing schemes in a large way. Throughout Europe, especially in Austria and Germany, vast housing schemes have already been accomplished. Immediately after the World War, both Germany and Austria put thousands of men to work building blocks of apartment houses, practically all of which were built by money advanced by the United States. These housing projects have been utilized by thousands of families. When our citizens were willing to advance funds to foreign countries to rehabilitate themselves, it is inconceivable that we are unwilling to help ourselves in like manner.

In nearly every instance, the slum areas are located in strategic positions in respect to the business and the manufacturing sections of our cities. It is only natural that this should be the case, for it allows the workman to live in walking distance of his work. It becomes evident that, if we are to construct modern buildings to take care of our working classes, the logical location is not on the outskirts of our cities, but in the heart of them. There is likewise little doubt as to the form that these buildings should take. In plan, they should not cover more than 40 to 60 per cent of the land, thus leaving ample space for light and air and an opportunity for proper landscaping. The construction, of course, should be absolutely fireproof. While in detail the buildings could in no sense be made elaborate, the use of the many new indestructible materials that can now be obtained should go into their construction.

As these buildings are to house families of small incomes, each apartment must be rented for an amount near the rent that these families are paying under present conditions. But to permit this low rental, the apartment should not be compressed or the rooms made too small. If this is done, it is obvious that much of the desired improvement in living conditions will be lost.

Where housing schemes have been carried out successfully, much consideration has been given to the proper use of the land not covered by the building structures. As the families occupying these apartments will have a large number of children, adequate playground space must be provided. In order that the lawns immediately surrounding the buildings may not be run down and destroyed by children playing on them, adequate and separate playground space must be provided. To overcome the objections to the noise of the playgrounds, considerable forethought and planning will be required. We have only to look at any of our city schools to see how this problem of playground space may be handled. Almost all our schools have landscaped yards surrounding them and, at a distance, an adequate playground. Ideal planning for a housing scheme necessarily should embrace several blocks. An undertaking of this scale would permit certain blocks to be converted into small parks which would supply all the necessary recreational space.

Only the enactment of the housing bill will make possible the reclamation of our slum areas.

Dictators and Democracy

The Rev. M. Ashby Jones in the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

THE popular interpretation of the bill granting President Roosevelt authority to work out a program of governmental economy, by decreasing salaries and appropriations, is that it grants him the power of a "dictator." Even those who approve of this course accept this interpretation but justify what they admit to be a temporary surrender of democracy on the ground that the economic emergency demands it. If this interpretation of delegation of authority to the President is correct, then there is an admission that in an hour of great emergency democracy is a failure, and we are forced to resort to some form of tyranny, even though it be temporary.

To accept such a superficial interpretation of this sovereign right of the people to delegate authority to their chief executive is fatal to any sound philosophy of democracy and deadly to any hope of future progress in the art of self-government.

Because a people may at one time delegate its authority to do certain things to a legislative assembly of its representatives does not rob them of the right to transfer some part of that authority from its legislative representative to its executive representative. Our democracy is essentially "representative," which means the delegation of authority. But we are not tied to any inflexible form of representation. Our principle gives us the right to delegate any part, or all, of that authority to many or a few representatives, as we may choose.

Perhaps we may find here the weakness of our use of the principle of democracy and the reason for the oft-repeated alarm that democracy has failed. We have delegated authority to so many representatives that, in its inevitable division, we have sacrificed efficiency and destroyed responsibility. In the long struggle for the suffrage people have come to identify democracy with the ballot, until they think the oftener they vote the more democratic they are. This demand to vote for everything and everybody has made the ballot in many of our cities so long in its list of unknown names that to choose intelligently has become impossible. Thus the voice of the people has about destroyed the choice of the people.

The economy bill was, in its last analysis, the act of the people of the United States. It was the lawful act of their legally appointed representatives. While the people did not directly vote by ballot on this specific question, there was a very definite expression of public opinion to which their representatives quickly responded.

In this legislative act, authority is delegated by the people to the President, their representative, for a definite purpose. That authority may be revoked by the people through their representatives in Congress whenever they choose to do so.

To call this a surrender of democracy by a "dictator" is to lose one's power of discrimination and one's sense of political values. A political dictatorship, whether it be a group or an individual, seizes and maintains its power by force. In Soviet Russia and in Fascist Italy, supreme authority was won through bloodshed and is maintained by terrorism. Hitler, while using the forms of a democratic election, bludgeoned and shot his way to authority and thus far is maintaining it by the ruthless acts of his brown-shirt bandits. Franklin Roosevelt won his authority by first winning the confidence of the American people, and he can maintain that authority only so long as he maintains that confidence.

GOV. PARK SAYS HE HAS NO INTEREST IN BUFORD MEASURE

Bill to Oust Public Service Commission and Change Utility Laws Not Administration Plan.

PASSED IN SENATE ON SECOND VOTE

Proposal Carried on Reconsideration by Margin of One—Four St. Louis Men for It.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 25.—Gov. Park today made clear to a group of members of the House and to newspaper men that the Buford bill advocated by public utility interests to oust the members of the Public Service Commission and radically change the public utilities law, was not an administration bill. The Governor said he had no interest in it.

Votes of Democratic members have been sought for the bill by public utility interests on the ground that it would give the Governor power to name an entirely new commission, and put Democrats in jobs now held by Republicans.

"If the purpose of the Buford bill really is to give the Governor power to substitute his own selections for the present members of the Commission," the Governor said, "then I think that could be accomplished in a better way by the passage of another bill which is pending, giving the Governor power to remove appointive officials at his pleasure.

Responsibility in Governor.

"I have not read the Buford bill and have not taken exact position on it. However, I do not see the necessity of consolidating the Grain and Warehouse Inspection and the Oil Inspection Departments with the Public Service Commission, as this bill proposes to do. I cannot see that the duties of these three departments are in anyway related.

"I am in favor of the passage of the bill giving the Governor the right to make his own selections for the offices. The responsibility for the conduct of the State government rests in the Governor and he should be in a position to surround himself with men he knows and in whom he has confidence.

"That power will be given in the bill which has passed the House and which is now before the Senate. As I have said, if that is the purpose of the Buford bill, I see no reason to pass it instead of the House bill, and thus change the utility laws."

Passed on Reconsideration.

The Buford bill was passed in the Senate yesterday on a reconsideration. Senator Shotwell of St. Louis County, who voted against the bill Thursday, supported it yesterday and three Senators who were absent on the first vote lined up for it on the second.

When the bill was defeated Thursday, Senator Clark of Richmond, managing it on the floor in the absence of Senator Buford, who appears on the record as its author, changed his vote to no to be in a position to move its reconsideration.

Active supporters of the bill were busy Thursday night and yesterday morning and by noon were assured of sufficient votes to pass it. In addition to Shotwell, the bill received the support of Senators Doran of St. Louis, Dail of Marceline and Gordon of Liberty, all of whom were either absent or not voting Thursday, and it carried with 19 affirmative votes, one more than the required number.

Four St. Louisans for It.

Notwithstanding the bill if passed will deprive St. Louis of the power to regulate and license busses and service cars, four St. Louis Senators, Depleheuer, Brogan, Kinney and Doran voted for it. Though it was blatantly advertised by Buford as a Democratic job grabbing bill, two Republican Senators, Depelheuer and Terry of Festus voted for it.

Those voting for the bill were Briggs, Brogan, Casey, Clark, Clayton, Crouse, Daggs, Dail, Depleheuer, Doran, Gordon, Hixson, Kennedy, Kinney, McDowell, Robberson, Shotwell, Terry and Wisdom.

Those voting against it were Bales, Donnelly, Gunn, Haymes, Henry, Joffee, Jones, Morgan, Nolte, Rollins, Russell, and Titus.

The absentees were Buford, Kelley (who voted for the bill Thursday) and Bates (who voted against it Thursday).

Prepare for Fight in House.

With the bill passed in the Senate, the utility interests began making their plans for the fight they will encounter in the House, and the "anti-power trust" group in the House, headed by Representative Maxey, began checking up to ascertain the number of votes they can count on against the bill.

Representative Maxey said he believed the bill would be killed in the House.

"I recognize the fact that the utilities have strong support," he said, "but I do not believe there are 76 members who will vote for this iniquitous measure.

"It gives to the utilities many advantages they do not now have and

"Our party has come into power after 12 years of Republican rule. We promised the people a new deal. It would be a disgrace for the Legislature to take action which would put the power trust brand on the Democratic party in Missouri.

Effect on St. Louis Election.

"The Democrats carried St. Louis in the last election and, I think, our party can carry it in the municipal election next month if we convince the people that we have the interests of the State at heart and do not submit to the rule of the public utilities.

"We had to win Republican votes to carry St. Louis and we cannot carry it in the municipal election except by votes of Republicans. Those Republicans who voted with us last fall did not do so with the idea that they were simply voting to give jobs to a lot of Democrats. If we do not justify public confidence here in Jefferson City we cannot expect continued public support."

By an examination of the Senate record yesterday Maxey discovered that the bill passed by the Senate never had been properly introduced in that body. It was adopted as a substitute for a committee substitute but there is no record showing that the second substitute was officially and formally presented. It appeared to have been "just thrown in," Maxey said.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PUTS HER TIME ON BUDGET

So Many Visitors and Phone Calls That She Misses Horseback Ride.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—After three weeks in the White House, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has decided she will have to do something about budgeting her time, she said on her arrival in New York last evening for her second visit since inauguration day.

She is going to have one hour a day, she said, set aside for receiving. There will be two hours when neither she nor her secretary will answer the telephone.

She reached her decision partly because Thursday there were so many visitors and so much telephoning that she had no time for the horseback ride that she wants to take every day.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Explanation.

"Every day there are visitors who just come for a few minutes. I like to see them, as many of them as want to come, but I think the thing for me to do will be to set aside one hour each day when I'll just see people and not try to do anything else.

"And I'll simply have to do something about the telephone. We're getting away behind with the mail because whenever I try to dictate we're interrupted all the time. So I think I'll set aside two hours each day when neither Tommy nor I will answer the telephone."

Tommy is Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheidel.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived from Washington aboard an Eastern Air Transport plane. She was accompanied by Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Henry Morgenthau III.

"It was a bit bumpy," she said, "although I didn't mind.

"Over Baltimore the pilot climbed up to 6000 feet to get out of the rough going, but later he told us he had to come down because at 6000 feet ice started forming on his wings."

Mrs. Roosevelt came to New York to attend last night the dinner in honor of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, at which she was one of the speakers. She will remain until Wednesday, spending the week-end at Hyde Park.

Will Meet Two Sons.

Today her sons, Franklin Jr. and John, arrive from Groton School for their Easter holidays. Franklin Jr. will continue on to a house party in Georgia. John will remain in New York for a few days with his mother.

On ner arrival in New York Mrs. Roosevelt visited a display of furniture from her factory at a Fifth avenue shop and then went to a flower show. There, while a band blared "Happy Days Are Here Again," she posed in front of a bank of prize winning "Better Times" roses, holding in her arms a huge bouquet of brilliant yellow roses which bear her own name. The "Mrs. Roosevelt" roses received a gold medal.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she would open a flower show in St. Louis this afternoon by pressing a button here.

SYMPHONY'S CLOSING PROGRAM OF SEASON

Orchestra Plays Brahms' C Minor Opus — Conductor Golschmann Says Farewell.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra played its final Friday afternoon program of the season at the Odeon yesterday. Everything connected with the concert—the music, the direction, the performance, Mr. Golschmann's speech of farewell, the responsiveness of the audience and the warmhearted resolutions to preserve the orchestra at any cost that one heard being made in the lobby—contributed toward making it a stimulating and enheartening occasion.

Certainly there is nothing in the whole literature of music better calculated to leave one in a state of exaltation than the Brahms C Minor symphony. Like the Beethoven symphony in the same key, it unrolls the panorama of man's encounter with his fate, concedes the existence of sadness and struggle as inevitable concomitants of this encounter, but closes with an apocalyptic affirmation of life. In the last movement of this symphony, the gates of heaven, as another enraptured commentator has already said, seem to fly open. The propulsive emotion behind the music becomes so intense that the musical utterance ceases to be a mere act of communication and takes on the attributes of cosmic experience.

It is gratifying to report that both conductor and orchestra gave a performance of this music that was appropriate to its size and quality. Mr. Golschmann has had his troubles with Brahms in the past but the minor flaws which were discernible in yesterday's performance did not arise from any failure to grasp its peculiarities of idiom and structure. The rolling phrases, the surf-like pulsations, the conflict of rhythms, the highly significant oppositions of flowing lyricism an qualifying inner harmonies, and the richness of orchestral texture were all in evidence.

The architecture of the symphony was always preserved, and if one has a particularly happy recollection of certain passages it was because the music demanded a particular vividness or intensity of eloquence at those points.

The opening measures of the first movement with its foreshadowing of momentous things to come is such a point, the rapturous ascending and descending spirals with the violins crossing and recrossing in the second movement is another, the horn call floating above a string tremolando in the introduction of the fourth movement is another, and the obligato provided by Mr. Guidi's solo violin at the end of the second movement is another. On these occasions the men in the orchestra spared nothing in their efforts to give the music its full measure of glory.

The first part of the program also consisted of ideal choices for the occasion. The "Bartered Bride" overture, the two excerpts from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music and the "Meistersinger" overture all express an essential joy in life.

The solo part in the "Midsummer Night's Dream" nocturne was played by Edward A. Murphy, the gifted first horn player of the orchestra and in recognition of his beautiful tone quality and intelligent phrasing, Mr. Golschmann asked him to take the applause of the audience alone.

A similar tribute was paid to Laurent Torno, first flute, for the brilliance of his performance in the "Scherzo." Messrs. Torno and Murphy have rendered valiant service to the orchestra all season and the audience seemed glad of the chance to give them some special evidence of approval.

Mr. Golschmann's speech came at the end of the first part of the program. He thanked the audience and his colleagues for their support and hoped that subsequent events would prove that he was saying "au revoir" and not farewell. The decision as to that lay with the audience. If they demonstrated by their subscriptions that they wanted the orchestra next year they would have it.

The audience was larger than usual despite the unpleasantness of the weather. And for once the rush to get into wraps and retrieve umbrellas was forgotten for a moment at the concert's conclusion in the desire to tender a sincere ovation to the musicians.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH TO SEND CASE OF BEER TO ROOSEVELT

First Bottles Released by Brewery Will Be Rushed by Plane to Washington.

The first case of 3.2 per cent brew released by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., when the new beer bill becomes effective, will be shipped by airplane to President Roosevelt, it was said at the brewery today. Present plans call for placing the case on a Transcontinental Western Air plane at the municipal airport at 12:01 a. m., April 7, for delivery to Mr. Roosevelt later in the morning.

Cases of beer from the first lot are also to be sent by plane at the same time to Vice-President Garner and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith. A case will be sent to Gov. Park, probably by automobile, since there is no airline service between St. Louis and Jefferson City.

WASHINGTON POST PLACED IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

Appointment Follows Failure of Mrs. McLean to Devise Plan to Keep Paper in Family.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Benjamin S. Minor, a Washington attorney, today was appointed receiver for the Washington Post by Justice Joseph Cox in District of Columbia Supreme Court after counsel for Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife of the former publisher of the newspaper, had informed the Court she had been unsuccessful in her efforts to devise a plan for keeping the paper in the McLean family.

An effort to have Arthur Marks, business manager of the newspaper, appointed co-receiver, was unsuccessful. Justice Cox indicated, however, that Marks and Ira Bennett, who is in charge of editorial work on the Post, should be retained in their present capacities.

After the appointment of the receiver, A. Coulter Wells, a Washington attorney, asked Justice Cox if it would be proper to submit an offer for the newspaper at this time. He was told to confer with Minor. Wells said later he expected to submit an offer next week, but that he could not disclose for whom he was acting.

The receivership was sought by the International Paper Co., whose attorney told the Court the Post owed it $250,000.

SAYS 1100 MISSOURI SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE UNLESS STATE AIDS

Superintendent Lee Makes Statement at Hearing Before Commission on Education.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—Missouri and Oklahoma public school officials said yesterday that unless State aid were forthcoming some schools would be forced to close next fall. The statements were made by the Superintendents of schools of those two states before the joint commission on the emergency in education, headed by John K. Norton, professor of education at the Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York.

Charles A. Lee, Missouri Superintendent of Schools, said he knew of 100 high schools in this State which would be unable to open, and of more than 1000 grade schools which would be unable to pay their teachers more than $35 monthly unless something would be done about the situation.

"The State will be able to pay only about one-fifth of the amount set by the law next year," he said.

TREASURY'S POSITION ON HARRIMAN DELAY

Acting Comptroller Says Examiner Worked 5 Months Trying to Avoid Run.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—F. G. Awalt, Acting Comptroller of the Currency, said yesterday a bank examiner spent five months attempting to straighten out the affairs of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co. of New York before alleged irregularities were turned over to the Department of Justice for prosecution.

This delay between the time the examiner discovered the bank's condition and the presentation of the evidence to the prosecuting authorities, and another delay of several months at the Justice Department, have been the subject of criticism from Capitol Hill. Last week Joseph W. Harriman, head of the bank, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement, nearly eight months after the examiner first reported to Washington.

Discussing the delay, Attorney-General Cummings said it had been judged necessary apparently because the financial situation existing at the time might have started a run on the bank which would spread to others in New York.

Pole Never Saw Letter.

Awalt, explaining the Treasury's point in the affair, said the examiner reported first to the Department on July 25, 1932, that the bank's affairs were in bad condition but he asked for time to make it more liquid before any prosecution was begun. Awalt said John W. Pole, the Comptroller at that time, had not seen the letter from the examiner, as it was merely one of thousands coming to the office.

The examiner was said to have continued his efforts to put the bank's affairs in shape, "hoping to get co-operation from Harriman," until Dec. 23. On that date he presented his formal report and Awalt ordered it sent immediately to the Department of Justice.

On Dec. 30, Awalt said, Henry E. Cooper, new president of the bank, and its vice-president talked to Awalt and asked more time to get the bank liquid.

"That's up to the Department of Justice," Awalt said he told them.

Suggested Holding Off.

They replied they had sought his recommendation to the Justice Department and on that basis Awalt said he talked to Nugent Dodds, the Assistant Atorney-General in charge of the criminal division, and told him he "didn't want him (Dodds) to do anything inconsistent with the aims of justice.

Awalt added that he suggested the depositors would profit by holding off prosecution temporarily.

Throughout this period, the Comptroller pointed out, the officials were acting on the premise that grand jury proceedings and accompanying publicity would start a run on the Harriman Bank.

Awalt, said that with his recommendation, the Department of Justice did halt proceedings temporarily since the statute of limitations was not involved in the case and action could be started at any time.

The Justice Department said yesterday that William D. Mitchell, Attorney-General in the Hoover administration, knew nothing of the Harriman case but that it was all handled by subordinates.

FRANCE SOON TO OPEN NEGOTIATIONS ON DEBT

Conversation to Begin in Washington Soon After Arrival of Envoy April 12.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 25.—France intends to open debt negotiations soon after the new Ambassador to the United States, Andre Lefevre de la Boulaye, arrives in America April 12.

A Government spokesman declined to say whether the Government was ready to grant tariff concessions in return for debt revision.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Out of the administration's first diplomatic discussion on war debts there have emerged indications that the United States will use its position as the greatest creditor nation to obtain international co-operation to break the world depression.

The plan took shape yesterday at a conference between Secretary of State Hull and Ambassador Lindsay of Great Britain.

The administration believes that the fundamental remedy for present economic conditions lies in a revival of international trade. Just how far the administration is prepared to go in making war debt concessions in return for an agreement to lower trade walls is a question which probably has not been worked out.

The Weather Bureau is co-operating in the study and observation posts will be established at St. Paul Island in the Bering Sea, in Dutch Harbor and on Kanaga Island in the Aleutian chain. In announcing the expedition, the Navy said that many storms affecting not only the Pacific Coast, but the East as well are offshoots of a low pressure area in the vicinity of the Aleutian Islands.

APPLICATIONS TAKEN FOR BEER LICENSES

Blanks to Be Mailed Retailers Who Request Them From Jefferson City.

Acting on orders of the Pure Food and Drug Commissioner at Jefferson City, Inspector B. J. Carragher continued today to receive at his office at 1804 Chemical Building preliminary applications for State licenses of prospective beer retailers, to be relayed to the State capital.

About 100 preliminary applications were filed yesterday after Inspector Carragher announced he was prepared to take them. His assistants record the name and address of prospective dealers, together with a statement whether they intend to dispense beer on their premises, as is the case for restaurants and beer houses, or whether it is to be taken away for consumption, as in the case of grocery stores.

The statements are sent to Jefferson City. No fee is taken. As soon as application blanks have been printed they will be mailed to those who have left names and statements with Carragher. The blanks must be filled out and signed under oath, after which licenses will be issued. The State fee for dispensers who serve beer on the premises is $10 annually. Those who sell beer to be consumed away from the premises will pay a State fee of $5.

The Federal fee required of retailers is $20 annually. Collector of Internal Revenue Becker has stated he expected 5000 such licenses to be applied for in the eastern district of Missouri, which includes St. Louis.

The Collector yesterday wired to Washington an order for $1,250,000 in beer tax stamps. A stamp is to be placed over the bung of each 31-gallon barrel of brew signifying that a tax of $5 has been paid to the Government. The order was based on estimates of breweries of their production for the balance of the fiscal year ending July 1. In addition they will pay a State inspection tax of 1 cent per barrel.

Pending arrival of the stamps, Collector Becker announced to the breweries that they might go ahead with bottling operations. To do so, they will be required to post in cash with the Collector an amount sufficient to cover tax on their estimated output for a given period.

As the brew is placed in barrels, preparatory either to bottling or storage for barrel-lot delivery, an inspector of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol will check off the proper amount to be charged against their tax deposit, and will notify the brewers when their output draws near to the amount covered by their deposit, so that new sums may be placed with the Collector.

In the western part of the State, bordering on states which have not legalized the sale of the 3.2 per cent beer, retailers are preparing for an influx of out-state visitors the night of April 6, in preparation for sale of beer as soon as midnight has passed. Railroads are offering excursion rates to Joplin, Kansas City, St. Joseph and other points. One Sheriff in Northeastern Oklahoma announced he would have a special traffic patrol on duty to keep traffic moving on the roads leading into Missouri.

Market Spends a Session of Idle Drifting, Recovering in Late Deals After Working Somewhat Lower.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.— The stock market again spent a session of idle drifting today, working somewhat lower for a time, but recovering in the late dealings to close narrowly irregular. The volume for the two-hour session approximated 400,000 shares.

A number of soft spots appeared in the earlier dealings, when such issues as American Telephone, Case and du Pont lost 2 to 2½ points. These losses were largely recovered, however, save in du Pont, which came back only a fraction.

Declines of a point or more in U. S. Steel common, American Can, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical and Santa Fe were recovered or reduced to minor fractions. Firm spots were few, but some of the "wet" issues and the New York tractions, still reflecting latest unification steps, finished a little higher.

News of the Day.

The day's business statistics included the weekly report of freight car loadings for class 1 carriers, indicating a fair comeback after the sharp drop occasioned by the banking holiday. The total gained 11,899 cars over the previous week, reaching 449,712 cars. This was a decrease of 23 per cent from the like week of 1932, comparing with a drop of nearly 24 per cent in the previous week. Coal shipments declined again, in keeping with seasonal trends, but merchandise and grain shipments were higher.

With Wall street's attention focused on Washington, and the Senate and the House in recess for the weekend, the tendency here was to mark time. Farm relief and railroad developments were the outstanding problms on which impending action was anxiously awaited in financial quarters.

The principal commodity markets acted well. Cotton futures closed unchanged to 15 cents a bale higher, and wheat was up fractions to a cent in the earlier dealings.

Foreign exchanges were mildly irregular, with the dollar advancing against principal Europeans. The pound sterling ruled 1⅛ cents lower at $3.42½ for cables and the French franc was off fractionally.

Interest was centered on the action of the House committee on interstate commerce which reported favorably on two bills providing for retroactive repeal of the recapture provision of the Interstate Commerce Act, and jurisdiction by the commission over railroad holding companies.

WHEAT CLOSES UNSETTLED AT ADVANCE IN PRICES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Broadening of speculative interest in wheat hoisted prices fast today after transient setbacks at the start.

Prospects that the Senate might bring about a modified plan of farm legislation acted as a stimulus to buyers of wheat. Unfavorable crop comment from the Southwest were also present.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝@1⅛c above yesterday's finish. Corn ½@⅞c up. Oats ⅜@½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of c.

Grain prices averaged lower early today, influenced by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations had failed to reflect yesterday's advance here.

Unsettlement of securities at New York acted also as a bearish factor. Opening ⅛@⅜c down Chicago wheat futures recovered early. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c off and subsequently advanced.

Independent strength which the corn market soon developed was an aid to a rally in wheat values. Washington advices that a thorough revamping of the House agricultural bill would probably be accomplished in the Senate tended also to give wheat decided firmness. At about yesterday's closing level, selling on the part of certain brokers was encountered, and this acted as a temporary curb on wheat upturns, but gains later were rapid.

At one outburst of buying activity, wheat went more than a cent a bushel above yesterday's finish. Attention of traders at this stage centered mainly on expressions of belief by trade leaders that the farm bill would be modified to a material extent.

Corn prices advanced to the best figures since Dec. 1. Oats sympathized. Provisions held about steady.

Grain Note.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Uhlmann Grain Co. pointed out that: In 1928 the United States exported 186,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour; in 1929, exports were 142,000,000 bushels; in 1930 they were 140,000,000 bushels and in 1931 they dropped to 100,000,000 bushels, increased slightly to 121,000,000 bushels in 1932 and this year may be under 35,000,000.

UNEVEN TREND TO MARKET FOR BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Uneven trends gave the bond market a rather cloudy appearance today, although trading was quiet and generally featureless.

While mild rallying tendencies were exhibited by some United States Government securities, notably Liberty loans, further weakness of German issues and the apparent feebleness of some of the domestic corporation mortgages caused most traders and investors to maintain an ultra-cautious policy.

The majority of German obligations were off 1 to around 3 points at one time to their lowest prices of the year. On the other hand, British 5½s were active at gains of around a point and French 7½s rallied more than a point. Belgian, Italian and Japanese loans steadied.

American Telephone bonds again were subjected to quiet selling although most of their losses were fractional. International Telephone issues dipped a point or more and some of the Western Union maturities were down around 2 points at one time. Issues of Texas Corp., United Drug, Dodge Bros., Goodrich and Postal Telegraph sagged. Loew's 6s, which recently slumped several points, recovered more than 2 and U. S. Rubber 5s were up nearly a point.

Railroad liens showed little inclination to breast the ebbing price current, although a few carrier issues apparently were cheered by reports that proposed rail legislation, especially the retroactive repeal of the recapture clause of the national transportation act, would be favorably considered by Congress. Some bonds of Santa Fe, Boston & Maine, Chesapeake and Ohio and Frisco steadied, but there were many fractional declines to offset the improvement.

CURB IS IRREGULAR IN A NARROW RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—In typical Saturday dullness curb prices moved irregularly and within narrow limits today. Utilities were heavy, but most other groups contributed a fair number of small advances.

Electric Bond & Share common and second preferred each receded a point or more, and American Gas & Electric yielded a major fraction.

Oils ranged slightly above the previous finals. Gulf climbed nearly a point.

A. O. Smith, an inactive member of the industrial division, rose nearly 2 points to 20½. Great Atlantic & Pacific preferred on a fair number of small sales gained 2 points.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Broadening of speculative interest in wheat hoisted prices fast today after transient setbacks at the start.

Prospects that the Senate might bring about a modified plan of farm legislation acted as a stimulus to buyers of wheat. Unfavorable crop comment from the Southwest were also present.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝@1⅛c above yesterday's finish. Corn ½@⅞c up, Oats ⅜@½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of c.

Grain prices averaged lower early today, influenced by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations had failed to reflect yesterday's advance here.

Unsettlement of securities at New York acted also as a bearish factor. Opening ⅛@¾c down Chicago wheat futures recovered early. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c off and subsquently advanced.

Independent strength which the corn market soon developed was an aid to a rally in wheat values. Washington advices that a thorough revamping of the House agricultural bill would probably be accomplished in the Senate tended also to give wheat decided firmness. At about yesterday's closing level, selling on the part of certain brokers was encountered, and this acted as a temporary curb on wheat upturns, but gains later were rapid.

At one outburst of buying activity, wheat went more than a cent a bushel above yesterday's finish. Attention of traders at this stage centered mainly on expressions of belief by trade leaders that the farm bill would be modified to a material extent.

Corn prices advanced to the best figures since Dec. 1. Oats sympathized.

Provisions held about steady.

Grain Note.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Uhlmann Grain Co. pointed out that: In 1928 the United States exported 186,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour; in 1929, exports were 142,000,000 bushels; in 1930 they were 140,000,000 bushels and in 1931 they dropped to 100,000,000 bushels, increased slightly to 121,000,000 bushels in 1932 and this year may be under 35,000,000.

UNEVEN TREND TO MARKET FOR BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Uneven trends gave the bond market a rather cloudy appearance today, although trading was quiet and generally featureless.

While mild rallying tendencies were exhibited by some United States Government securities, notably Liberty loans, further weakness of German issues and the apparent feebleness of some of the domestic corporation mortgages caused most traders and investors to maintain an ultra-cautious policy.

The majority of German obligations were off 1 to around 3 points at one time to their lowest prices of the year. On the other hand, British 5½s were active at gains of around a point and French 7½s rallied more than a point. Belgian, Italian and Japanese loans steadied.

American Telephone bonds again were subjected to quiet selling although most of their losses were fractional. International Telephone issues dipped a point or more and some of the Western Union maturities were down around 2 points at one time. Issues of Texas Corp., United Drug, Dodge Bros., Goodrich and Postal Telegraph sagged. Loew's 6s, which recently slumped several points, recovered more than 2 and U. S. Rubber 5s were up nearly a point.

Railroad liens showed little inclination to breast the ebbing price current, although a few carrier issues apparently were cheered by reports that proposed relief legislation, especially the retroactive repeal of the recapture clause of the national transportation act, would be favorably considered by Congress. Some bonds of Santa Fe, Boston & Maine, Chesapeake & Ohio and Frisco steadied, but there were many fractional declines to offset the improvement.

CURB IS IRREGULAR IN A NARROW RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—In typical Saturday dullness curb prices moved irregularly and within narrow limits today. Utilities were heavy, but most other groups contributed a fair number of small advances.

Electric Bond & Share common and second preferred each receded a point or so, and American Gas & Electric yielded a major fraction.

Oils ranged slightly above the previous finals. Gulf climbed nearly a point.

A. O. Smith, an inactive member of the industrial division, rose nearly 2 points to 20½. Great Atlantic & Pacific preferred on a fair number of small sales gained 2 points.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Tabloid Summary of Business

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Tabloid review of business reported by Dun-Bradstreet in the four divisions of whole sale and jobbing, retail trade, manufacturing and industry, and collections this week, compared with the corresponding period last year. Good (G) means above; fair (F) equal to; quiet (Q); slow (S) below last year:

	Who.	Ret.	Mfg.	Col.	—Comment—
ST. LOUIS	F.	F.	F.	S.	Confidence restored to a great extent, throughout this district. Retail sales holding at last week's level. Wholesalers of textile lines releasing shipments. Farm commodity prices unsteady; livestock prices unimproved. Flour mills report little new business.
BOSTON	G.	G.	Q.	S.	There was a material improvement in retail trade this week. With sales running ahead of last year's level in many instances. Some of the small manufacturers report the first upturn in many months. Wool market active, bus business in cotton goods slower.
PHILADELPHIA	G.	F.	S.	S.	Retail trade retarded by rainy weather during most of the week. Manufacturers of men's clothing and dresses busier. Shoe production increasing, but no improvement noted in output in hosiery. Building trade still dull. Banking situation retards collections.
PITTSBURGH	F.	G.	G.	S.	Floods in the Ohio Valley retard wholesale distribution. Reopening of banks accelerates buying movement, which is being helped by better consumer sentiment. Industrial operations improve slightly, with steel schedules and window glass output higher.
BALTIMORE	F.	F.	Q.	F.	Staples in the dry goods, hosiery and notion lines are in fair demand, but men's and women's wear is not moving well. Fertilizer sales decrease. Reports emanating from the steel industry more encouraging. Tobacco markets more active than last week.
DALLAS	F.	G.	S.	F.	Renewed retail activity the most important development of the week. All department stores report it the best week of the year. Wholesale buying broadens perceptibly. There is a strong feeling of confidence that the present deflationary tendency has run its course.
MEMPHIS	S.	Q.	S.	S.	Business still disorganized, but retail volume is being well maintained in groceries and foodstuffs. Merchants awaiting developments before placing wholesale orders. Condition of cotton market unsatisfactory. Little progress made thus far in field work, due to unfavorable weather.
DENVER	S.	S.	S.	S.	Both wholesale and retail sales off 25 to 40 per cent, compared to those of the previous week. Prices are stable in most instances, but some distress merchandise is in evidence. No improvement expected until all local banks will have reopened.
SAN FRANCISCO	F.	G.	G.	F.	Business improving sharply in all directions. Retail demand improving rapidly as the banks reopen. Bank deposits exceeding withdrawals. The commencement work of the two large bridges has relieved the unemployment situation.
CHICAGO	Q.	G	G.	F.	Wholesale buying delayed on account of failure of large number of small banks in country districts to open so far. Retail trade nearly up to last week's high level. Millinery manufacturers continue active; dress trades less active. Good gain in employment.
CINCINNATI	F.	G	F.	S.	Retail trade being stimulated by widely-advertised promotional events of spring merchandise. Wholesale movement hampered by unsettled prices. Shoe manufacturers reducing production schedules.
CLEVELAND	F.	G.	S.	S.	Restoration of confidence reflected in large increase in retail sales. Closing of theaters, because of strike, has affected downtown retail trade. More buyers in wholesale market than last week. Manufacturing in all lines below normal. Revival of confidence general.
KANSAS CITY	G.	G	F.	S.	Wholesale orders for groceries, hardware, dry goods and drugs increase sharply; road salesmen report general run of orders chiefly for nearby requirements. Retail sales higher than last week, particularly in necessities. Livestock receipts steady; flour orders gain.
MINNEAPOLIS	G.	G.	S.	S.	Definite pickup in volume of sales in both wholesale and retail quarters. Foodstuff and textile prices stiffening. Flour sales increasing; depleted jobbers' stocks lead to increased milling activity. Industrial outlook improved, but orders still are light.

SAYS 1100 MISSOURI SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE UNLESS STATE AIDS

Superintendent Lee Makes Statement at Hearing Before Commission on Education.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—Missouri and Oklahoma public school officials said yesterday that unless State aid were forthcoming some schools would be forced to close next fall. The statements were made by the Superintendents of schools of those two states before the joint commission on the emergency in education, headed by John K. Norton, professor of education at the Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York.

Charles A. Lee, Missouri Superintendent of Schools, said he knew of 100 high schools in this State which would be unable to open, and of more than 1000 grade schools which would be unable to pay their teachers more than $35 monthly unless something would be done about the situation.

"The State will be able to pay only about one-fifth of the amount set by the law next year," he said.

QUESTIONS DIVORCE OF SMITH REYNOLDS

Trustee of 3 Estates Also Seeks Ruling on Validity of Marriage of Libby Holman.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 25.—The validity of the divorce of Zachary Smith Reynolds, late heir of the R. J. Reynolds fortune, by his first wife and his subsequent marriage to Libby Holman, Broadway singer, was questioned in Circuit Court today in a suit for judicial determination of disposition of Reynold's trust funds.

The suit, filed by the Safe Deposit & Trust Co., Baltimore, trustee of three trust estates payable to Reynolds, asserted operations of the trusts could not be safely completed or continued unless the court assumed jurisdiction and determined the course to be followed in their distribution.

The Court was requested to untangle the complications arising from the death of Smith Reynolds who was found fatally wounded last July 6 at his home near Winston-Salem, N. C. The settlement of future legal technicalities also was sought in the ruling of the Court.

Definition of Rights Sought.

The determination of the "validity" of the marriage of Reynolds and "Elizabeth Holman" on Nov. 29, 1931, was sought by the petitioner in subsequence to the determination of "the validity of the divorce of the said Anne Cannon Reynolds from the said Zachary Smith Reynolds" in Nevada on Nov. 23, 1931.

The rights of the widow, Libby Holman Reynolds; her son, referred to in the suit for "convenience" as "Zachary Smith Reynolds Jr."; the first wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, and her daughter, Anne Cannon Reynolds, were asked to be defined.

The suit also asked a ruling concerning the provisions of the R. J. Reynolds will, leaving a portion of his estate to his son when he became 28 years old; a will left by Reynolds, a minor, in New York and a North Carolina court settlement with the first wife for herself and her daughter.

78 Defendants Named.

Seventy-eight defendants, including the two wives of Reynolds, the two children, all relatives who might have an interest in the trust estate as collateral heirs and the legatees in his will, were named in the trustee's suit.

It said all the property of the trust estates was personal property and within the jurisdiction of he Court. It did not disclose the value of the estates, which have been estimated at $20,000,000.

The three estates of Reynolds were listed as one from his father, the late Richard Joshua Reynolds' one created under the will of his mother, and a deed of trust through which his mother set aside certain shares of stock.

POLISH MINERS COME UP AFTER 6-DAY STRIKE UNDER GROUND

They Are Assured That Work Will Be Suspended Only Temporarily.

By the Associated Press.

SOSNOWIEC, Poland, March 25.—After remaining underground for six days in a protest strike, 700 coal miners at Klimontown returned to the surface last night. They received assurances that the mines would not be abandoned but merely shut down temporarily.

The strike became effective at the close of work last Saturday. Until Wednesday night the strikers refused to take any food. Then, on the Government's promise it would intervene, they put an end to the hunger demonstration.

Under pressure from the Labor Minister, Stefan Hubicki, the operators agreed not to dismantle the shafts and the Governor of Kielce Province informed the miners of this decision, promising jobs to all of them.

At the beginniing of the strike the men announced they preferred to die underground rather than starve to death without jobs. The mine operators had planned to flood the shafts because the Government declined to permit a 15 per cent wage cut and decreed average reductions in the price of domestic coal of 17 per cent.

DRY AGENTS SUSPENDED AFTER FATAL SHOOTING

Alleged to Have Violated Department's Rule Against Firing Except in Self Defense.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., March 25.—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, yesterday announced the indefinite suspension of three Federal prohibition agents from the Newark office in connection with a still raid in Madison Township last week. Frank Wondowsky, one of the alleged operators of the still, was found shot to death in a brook nearby after the raid.

Woodcock said the suspensions were given "for violating the department's rule of using guns for self defense only." Two of the agents, Leslie S. Tweed and Thomas P. Waters, admitted firing "in the air" during the raid, but Arthur V. Duff, the third agent, said he had not fired.

Tweed was released in $5000 bail by Middlesex County authorities on a charge of manslaughter. Waters and Duff also were free under bail as material witnesses.

First National of Clayton Licensed to Reopen Without Restrictions.

The First National Bank of Clayton reopened for unrestricted business today under license issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis. It was the twenty-fourth bank in the county to reopen. Eight have not yet received licenses.

Walter D. Lindeman, president of the bank, said it had been strengthened by the addition to its capital of $150,000 in preferred stock. Directors and depositors subscribed for $120,000 of the stock, he said, and business men of the vicinity for $30,000.

The bank's statement for Dec. 31 showed resources of $1,691,595 and deposits of $717,210. Capital was listed at $100,000 and surplus at $28,000.

St. Louis County funds are deposited with the bank. The total before the bank holiday was declared, was about $494,000.

Southern Illinois Trust Co. in East St. Louis Reopened.

The Southern Illinois Trust Co. of East St. Louis reopened for unrestricted business today under a license from State Auditor Barrett. Conrad Reeb, president, said a "substantial" amount of new capital had been put into the bank. He would not tell the amount.

The Southern Illinois Trust Co. is affiliated with Southern Illinois National Bank and shares quarters with it at Broadway and Collinsville avenue. The national bank was reopened for general business 10 days ago.

Deposits of the Southern Illinois Trust Co., Reeb said, were about $1,800,000; resources about $2,300,000, and capital and surplus, $300,000.

By the Associated Press.

T. J. Higgins, detective chief, said he had been informed that Moore, who signed a statement admitting writing threatening letters to Mrs. Loose, had an accomplice named Mary.

"Her name is not going to be brought into this affair," Higgins quoted Moore as saying. "I have made a confession, taking all the blame. No woman knows anything about this at all."

Moore is held in default of $15,000 bond for the action of the grand jury.

JEWS HERE ARRANGE PROTEST MEETING

To Meet Tomorrow Afternoon to Discuss Reported Attacks in Germany.

A protest meeting for discussion of reported anti-Semitic outrages of the Hitler Government in Germany, and a day of fasting and alms-giving were scheduled as rabbis in St. Louis temples last night discussed the serious situation into which German Jews have been precipitated by the rise of the new German Chancellor and his National Socialists.

A mass meeting to protest against persecution of Jews will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Beth Jacon Congregation, Clara and Etzel avenues, under auspices of Agudas Hakahelos, a patriotic organization. A day of fasting and almsgiving will be observed Monday by the Congregation Agudas Achim at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue, East St. Louis.

Sermon by Rabbi Isserman.

"More than a menace to the Jew, I see Hitler as a menace to the culture and the people of Germany," said Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel, in a sermon to his congregation last night.

Rabbi Isserman ascribed the German acceptance of Hitler as due to his strong emotional appeal which many of the people accept through despair generated by the evil fortunes of Germany since the World War. Driven to desperation by the tragedies of the war, the flight of their rulers, and the oppressive peace terms, they have taken up a false Messiah, he declared.

In his sermon at United Hebrew Temple last night, Rabbi Samuel Thurman also discussed the situation of the Jews in Germany, and like Rabbi Isserman concluded with an appeal to Christians to add their voices in protest against "the outrages of the Hitler Government."

CRUSADING PUBLISHER AND WIFE INDICTED FOR KILLING

Charged With the Murder of Constable Who Was Serving Warrant.

By the Associated Press.

MEDFORD, Ore., March 25.—A joint indictment charging Lewellyn A. Banks, former crusading newspaper publisher here, and his wife, Edith R. Banks, with the first degree murder of Constable George Prescott of Medford was returned by the Jackson County grand jury yesterday.

Mrs. Henrietta B. Martin, president of the "Good Government Congress," which Banks organized, was indicted for riotous conduct, as was E. L. Fitch, and O. L. Vanwegan. These charges grew out of an alleged attempt by the three to horsewhip Leonard Hall, Jacksonville editor, for a reference to Mrs. Martin in his paper. C. H. Brown, secretary of the Good Government Congress, was indicted for alleged slander against a bank.

Constable Prescott was shot to death two weeks ago when he attempted to serve a warrant on Banks at his home. E. A. Flemming of Jacksonville, who was arrested on a first degree murder charge in connection with the shooting, was not mentioned in the indictment.

4 SHOT IN MINE ROW AT ELDORADO, ILL.

3 Progressive Pickets Wounded in Clash With Members of United Union.

By the Associated Press.

ELDORADO, Ill., March 25. — Four miners were shot and six others beaten in a clash late yesterday between United Mine Workers employed at the No. 2 mine of the Tex Coal Co. and pickets said to be in sympathy with the Progressive Miners' Union.

Of the miners wounded, only one was a working digger employed at the mine, the others being pickets.

The men wounded were: David Price, Eldorado, picket, shot in the back; James Dewar, Eldorado, picket, shot in the left arm; Clyde Bates, Eldorado, working miner at the Rex mine, shot in the foot. The name of the fourth man wounded could not be learned, but he was said to be a picket and reported to have been shot in the ear.

The rioting started after the working miners, who had been held on the mine property by 200 pickets for about two hours after the close of work, finally decided to attempt to break through the line.

As six automobiles and a truck loaded with working miners reached the road, officers said the pickets started throwing bricks and stones at the men. The truck and one car were overturned in the melee and shooting started.

Officers said today they did not know who fired the shots and reported no arrests had been made.

Fearing further violence, the mine was not in operation today.

GLOBE & RUTGERS INSURANCE REORGANIZATION IS ORDERED

New York State Superintendent Authorized to Direct Rehabilitation of Company.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25. — Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Glennon today signed an order authorizing George S. Van Schaick, State Superintendent of Insurance, to take over for rehabilitation the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Co. of this city. The company was described as the third largest fire insurance company incorporated in New York State. In his application the Insurance Superintendent said he was acting at the request of the company itself.

The Court order permits the Insurance Superintendent to conduct the business of the company "toward the removal of the causes and conditions which have made the application necessary." The order restrains the company itself from transacting any business. The papers filed by Van Schaick gave no specific cause for the company's condition, but a statement issued by his office last night announcing the signing of the petition for the order said:

"Serious decline in the value of securities held by this company, together with widespread rumors of financial difficulties resulting in loss of confidence created a hazardous situation to the public. Pending efforts to effect a reorganization of the company, the order for rehabilitation is sought in order to conserve the assets and protect the interests of the policy holders and all others concerned."

The company is a consolidation of the Globe Fire Insurance Co., organized in 1863, and the Rutgers Fire Insurance Co., founded in 1853. The consolidated company was incorporated in 1899.

TWO CLOSED DETROIT BANKS WILL NOT BE REOPENED

Their Depositors Will Be Paid by New Firm as Assets of Old Ones Are Liquidated.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 25.—More than $12,000,000 was on deposit in the National Bank of Detroit today, the second day of its existence as fully liquid institution backed equally by the Federal Government and the General Motors Corporation.

Early today it was announced in Washington that the Federal administration would carry out its plan to liquidate the assets of Detroit's two old national banks, the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, and that the two banks would not be reopened.

Jesse H. Jones, director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said withdrawals from the new National Bank of Detroit amounting to 40 per cent of deposits in the two old banks would be permitted soon. He added that additional withdrawals would be permitted as liquidation of the old banks' assets by the Federal conservators advanced.

"Candor compels me," Jones said, "to say that losses in both of these banks extend far beyond their capital structure, and neither of them can be permitted to carry on as sound banks. It is also clear that any other course than is being pursued would cause greater loss to depositors and stockholders."

MEXICO CITY, March 25. — More than 100 grade school children, acting, they said, on lessons teaching kindness to animals, stormed the dog catcher's wagon Thursday, overpowered a policeman and the chauffeur, and released 100 mongrel dogs. Police failed to find any of the leaders or escaped dogs.

SALES TAX NEEDED, DECLARES GOV. PARK

Says Next Legislature Must Levy One If Present Session Does Not.

By the Associated Press.

MOBERLY, Mo., March 25.—Gov. Guy B. Park in a defense of his proposed luxury sales tax told the Northeast Missouri Press Association here last night that "If this Legislature doesn't pass this bill, the next one will have to."

Predicting that the tax would relieve farmers and reduce school taxes, Gov. Park said "Merchants opposing this bill must realize that they cannot be any better off than their surrounding community, and this bill will help the community."

Saying "I am honest in my belief in it and fearless in expressing my convictions," Park said, "The tax is equitable because it places the burden upon those able to carry it."

He urged editors of Missouri and small-town merchants to support it.

Park also expressed hope that the present Legislature would pass a bill allowing the State penitentiary to make motor-car license tags and road markers in order to save the State about $200,000.

He said that reduction of the State motor-car license fee had been postponed in order to carry on the farm-to-market road program and unemployment relief. He hoped the license could be cut within the next two years and that the present Legislature might yet make some reduction.

He added that as a member of the State Board of Equalization, he would stand for a lower valuation on property.

Col. Hatfield Wins, Spicsom Is Second In Louisiana Derby

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—Col. Hatfield, three-year-old brown gelding by Hildur-Chatter Drum, and owned by M. B. Cohen, won the $5000 added Louisiana Derby here this afternoon. L. M. Severson's Spicson was second and Giro, the C. V. Whitney entry, third.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—Ten three-year-olds, none of which has yet established a reputation for real derby caliber, have entered for the twelfth renewal of the Louisiana Derby, to be run at the Fair Grounds track here today. The race is at one-and-one-eighth miles and the top weight of 116 pounds is ten pounds below the usual derby scale.

The unbeaten Beefsteak, paired with Bobsled as the E. R. Bradley entry, will probably be the popular favorite for the race, notwithstanding Beefsteak, a gelding, son of North Star III, and the main reliance of the stable, has been to the post only twice.

Principal contention is expected to come from Col. Hatfield, owned by M. B. Cohen. The Colonel has done his stuff better than any other candidate in the race. Early in the year the Colonel began to round to form, and he has won his last four races in succession at distances ranging from three-fourths of a mile to one-and-one sixteenth miles. Neither his opposition nor his time was impressive, however.

Beefsteak, on the other hand, in his only two races, has looked the part of a good horse. Not raced at all as a two-year-old, Beefsteak in his first start at six furlongs, ran over a field of ordinary horses to win by eight lengths eased up, in 1:13 3-5.

His only other start was at one mile and he won this handily, but carried only 117 pounds. His time of 1:40 was not impressive. He won by two and one-half lengths, not extended, from Ennis, which is starting in today's race. In both previous starts, Beefsteak was favorite.

Two recent victories by Strideaway have attracted attention to this colt, by Phalaros-Sandrine, by Fair Play. He, too, has gone a route, winning his last race at one and one-sixteenth miles from Gyro, a starter today.

Outside of Ennis, considered a fair horse, the remainder of the field does not appear to class on this year's form. Eva B looked promising, early in the winter season.

This year's race will have a total value of about $6625, as compared with the top money year of 1929 when Calf Roper won $15,826.

Several winners of this winter Derby have figured in the Kentucky Derby, Black Gold winning both in 1924. Quatrain, winner of the Louisiana classic, was Kentucky Derby favorite, but "also ran." Baggenbaggage, winner in 1926, ran second to Bubbling Over, in the Kentucky Derby.

Five Kayos, Seven New Title-Holders Feature Valley Boxing Finals

By W. J. McGoogan.

Seven new champions reign today in the Mississippi Valley Amateur Athletic Association after the conclusion of the annual senior tournament last night at the South Broadway Club, in which only one 1932 titleholder retained his laurels.

The only survivor after two nights of hard fighting at the South Broadway A. C. was Irwin Striebel, heavyweight of the South Broadway, who defeated Babe Davis of the Sherman Park Community center to retain the crown which he won last year.

Two other South Broadway boys won championships to give the South Side club three out of eight. They were Duke Luckens, who captured the middleweight title, and Harry Groll, who won in the welterweight division.

East Side Entries Fail.

The other five titles were divided among three clubs, two of the Business Men's A. C., two of the Tower A. C. and one to the Jefferson. The boys from Madison and Granite City, Ill., failed to gain a championship although one of them, Marcel Tarris, youthful flyweight from the Granite City A. C. extended the veteran amateur, Spider Kadrabek of the Jefferson A. C., to the limit before losing.

Tarris is the youth who broke Dewey Morse's jaw in the preliminaries, Thursday night. Morse, incidentally, was reported doing nicely at the hospital.

The going was extremely rough for Louis Kimmell, young light-heavyweight of the Tower Athletic Club. Louis had two hard battles

WRAY'S COLUMN

Make Haste Slowly.

ON the heels of his victory over the old iron horse Billy Petrolle, his friends are trying to "sic" Barney Ross on Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion. Well, a tom-cat is a good fighter, but a bull terrier is better—especially when the tom-cat is new to the backyard fences.

It is natural to think that a fighter who can easily outpoint a veteran of Petrolle's prestige, is entitled to go places—or try to. Also, it's all right to think; and after thinking, to change one's mind. Many would recommend that to Barney.

Canzoneri is now at his very best. He has had a world of experience; he can fight; he can box; he can hit like a whizzbang; he can turn on the speed; and you can't outgame him.

Ross, reports indicate, as compared to Tony, is on the short end of all of these except speed and courage. It is early in his promising career to face the gamecock of the lightweight walk. And while it's all right to be the early bird, there's no future in being the early worm.

On the Other Hand.

THERE is another line of reasoning—it wins with most fighters and managers. For example, if you should ask why Ross doesn't play safe by fighting Johnny Jadick or some other top rank lightweight, Sam Pian, who dates Ross, would rise up out of a theoretical coffin, white cravat and all, to exclaim: "What's that? Fight Jadick and get my boy licked, by chance?"

To which the normal comeback is: "No, by Jadick."

"Well, ain't it the same? If he was lucky and the referee was blind, Jadick might do it. Then what? Why, no championship fight for my boy! But if we fight Canzoneri we get a chance at the title. If Barney beats him he's the greatest ever, see? If he loses —why, then everybody, even his manager, knows it is because he was 'advanced too rapidly.' So, we get the opportunity at the title without losing prestige—am I right?"

Sam, you're not only right—you win. At least I hope you will. But there's no law against thinking you won't.

Credit to the Profession.

WHILE on the subject, it may be just as well to mention that the evident side-tracking of Petrolle, the one-time "Fargo Express," will cause a genuine regret in the fight world.

This rugged battler has given fans everywhere the best he had at all times. Knocked out, beaten often enough to discourage most ring hopes, he returned to the struggle to conquer his conquerors and win fans by his insistent and forward fighting.

Almost wrecked in a fight with King Tut, forced out of the ring for a year or more, he came back to knock out his conquerors and climb up even out of his real weight class. That he never quite won a title is really too bad; for in Petrolle are embodied most of the virtues that go to make up one.

Here's a Rare Animal.

ALMOST as unique in this safety-first fight world is Jack Hurley, manager of Petrolle. Here is perhaps the one manager of fighters in the country who enjoys the confidence of all with whom he deals.

In a day when a bond is a natural object of suspicion, it does no good to pull the trite one that Hurley's word is as good as his bond. We'll amend it to read that his word is as good as his Government bond—if he hasn't given the last one of these away to

FOUR RECORDS SET AS KIRKSVILLE WINS STATE INDOOR MEET

WASHINGTON U. TEAM GETS ONLY SEVEN POINTS; TIGERS SECOND

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 25.—Chauncey Simpson's Kirksville State Teachers' College performers won the fourth annual all-Missouri college indoor track and field championships here last night by half a point over the University of Missouri, 28 to 27½. Disqualification of the Missouri half-mile relay team after it won that event gave Kirksville the victory.

The Tigers and the Washington Bears, third place finishers in the 880-yard relay were disqualified when one runner from each team advanced too far before receiving the baton.

But for the disqualification Coach H. J. Huff's Tigers would have scored 32½ points to 26 for Kirksville.

Cape Girardeau Teachers, with only a handful of men entered, finished third with 20 points, and the Springfield Teachers came in fourth with 18 points.

Others finished as follows: Warrensburg Teachers 8½ points; Rolla School of Mines, 8; Washington University, 7; Westminster and Maryville Teachers, 4 each; Culver-Stockton and Central College 3 each; and Drury College, 1.

Four new records were established. Joe Killion of Springfield won the mile run in 4:41.3. Aaron Baxter of Kirksville put the shot 44 feet 10 inches, Charles Childress of Warrensburg vaulted 12 feet, 6 inches, and the Kirksville medley relay team, composed of Hawkins, Rohde, Baxter and Heyden, was timed in 3:41.5. Martin Rohde tied the 60-yard dash record in 6.3 seconds.

Killion, who also won the two-mile run, tied for scoring honors with Sam Teter, Missouri sophomore, who won both hurdle races. Both scored 10 points.

Famous Engineer a Golfer.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., March 25.—Col. Hugh Couper, engineer in charge of the $100,000,000 Dneiper dam in Russia, which was completed last year after six years of work, spends most of his waking hours following a little white ball over the Sea Island golf course. He is here for a vacation.

Miss Orcutt Wins Third North and South Golf Title

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25.—Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., won the North and South golf championship for the third successive year today, defeating Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., five and four in the 18-hole final.

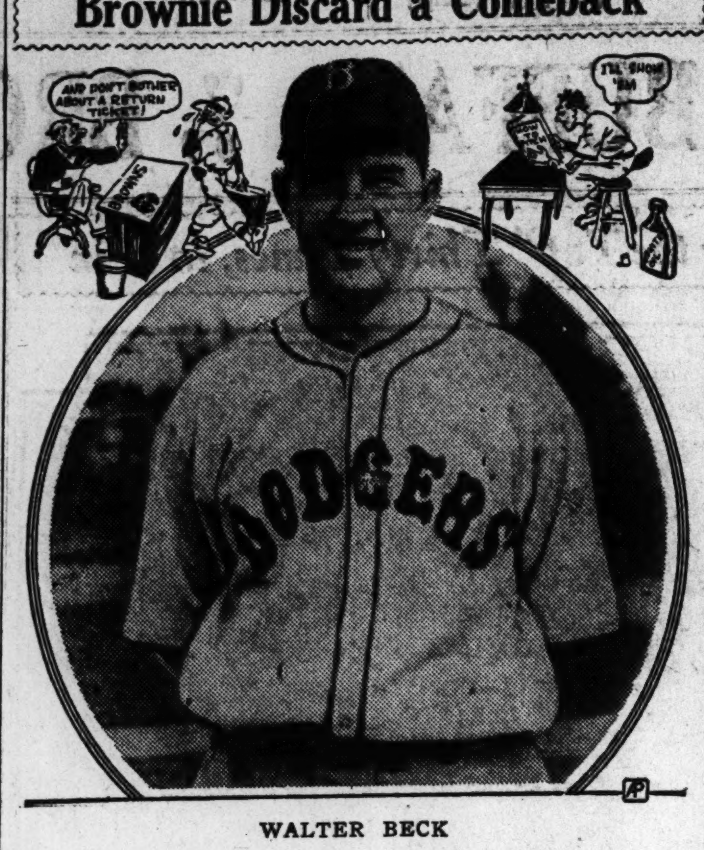

Playing the first nine holes in 40 strokes to go 4 up, Miss Orcutt finished out the 14 holes in two above women's par for the course.

The champion's long and accurate drives and steady playing on the greens were too much for the Westerner. She won the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth holes, lost the sixth and halved the others in the first nine.

Coming home, Miss Orcutt dropped the tenth when she went over par, but secured birdies on the next two holes to win against Miss Wall's par golf.

Five up with six to play, the champion halved the thirteenth in 5 as her drive was trapped and her second went into the rough. However, she closed out the match on the next hole as both had par threes.

Brownie Discard a Comeback

WALTER BECK

MIAMI, Fla., March 25.

THE best two rookie pitching prospects in the Brooklyn Dodger camp, says Manager Max Carey, are Walter Beck and Thornton Schwenk.

Beck is the right-hander from Memphis, who has allowed only two unearned runs in exhibition games so far. He is a former St. Louis Brown. Schwenk is a left-hander from Dayton, with lots of stuff on the ball.

"As runner-up to these two," said Carey, "I would name Ray Lucas, who can pitch side-arm, overhand and underhand. Beck thinks he can win 15 games for me. So does Ray Benge. If these two produce, we're in."

Collins to Start Season As Cards' First Baseman

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

MIAMI, Fla., March 25.—James "Ripper" Collins, the slugging young man who shared the first base duties with James Leroy Bottomley during 1931 and 1932, after establishing a reputation as a slugger in the International League, appears to have first call on a regular job at his favorite position with the 1933 Cardinals.

For a time it seemed that Pat Crawford was going to crowd Jimmy to the bench, but Collins' natural advantage in being left-handed and diligence in overcoming an outstanding batting fault have restored him to favor and unless something happens to change Manager Street's plans, "Ripper" will be at first base when the National League season opens.

Collins always was a natural hitter. He burned up the International League at Rochester and did some fancy slugging with the Cardinals during his two major league years. But he had one bad fault. He hit at bad balls and when he was riding the crest of a batting streak he was able to hit the bad ones, as well as the good ones. But when a slump overtook him, as slumps will do to the best hitters, he was a mark for pitchers who knew enough to give him nothing but bad balls. He would wave at high ones and chop into the ground at balls that hit the dust near his feet. Street stormed and protested and cajoled, but Collins went merrily on, hitting at anything and everything.

But it will be different this year. Collins has been doing a daily stretch in the batting cage and he is happy to tell you that he is through with bad ones. Collins, during the drills, acted as his own umpire. He stands at the plate, in batting position, with a bat in hand and calls each pitch a strike or ball. Behind the cage is Buzzy Wares, or Manager Street, or a catcher and Collins is informed on each pitch if his call is correct.

Results have been more than pleasing and now after each game Collins can tell you that he didn't strike at a single bad ball and he is delighted with his improvement.

Crawford, of course, will be retained as No. 2 first-sacker and general utility man. He is an unusually capable reserve. He can play an excellent game at first, second or third, and if things shape up the way Street hopes they will, Crawford will help to make the Cardinal reserve corps the strongest in either league. And he is such a good ball player that if any of the regulars sag, Pat is likely to move from the bench to steady duty.

Three Pitchers Released.

Secretary Clarence Lloyd announced last night that Pitchers Ted Nobriga and Al Fisher had been released to the Houston Club of the Texas League and this morning he added that Pitcher Jim Winford had been transferred to the Rochester club of the International League.

Title Game Tonight.

The second game of the series between the Evangelical and Walther League basketball champions will be played at Bethany Hall tonight with the St. Mathews opposing the Emmaus Blues, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Hurst Quits Phils' Camp When Salary Demand Is Not Met

By the Associated Press.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 25.

ENDING a three-week siege of the Phillies spring training camp, Don Hurst, big league baseball's last remaining holdout, left for California yesterday prepared to retire if his salary terms are not met.

The first baseman of the Quaker City National leaguers, accompanied by his wife and 2-year-old son, drove away from the camp, announcing he was on his way to his Beverly Hills home. He said he has hopes his terms eventually will be met.

That the 200-pound first-sacker is on the trade market was indicated by Gerry Nugent, the Phils president, after hearing of Hurst's departure.

FLYERS OPPOSE TULSA CLUB IN MATCH TONIGHT

The St. Louis Flyers are scheduled to oppose the Tulsa Oilers in the fifth of the six-game round robin playoff for the American Hockey Association championship at Tulsa tonight and then go to Kansas City for the final contest, Monday night.

Tulsa has been the big disappointment of the series, failing to win a game in three starts, while the Flyers and Kansas City have each won two to tie for the lead although St. Louis has scored seven goals in the two games the Flyers have played while Kansas City has counted but six in three. In the event of a tie at the end of the playoffs, in games won and lost, total goals will count.

As the Flyers have not even been able to practice skating since last Sunday night, because of the ice being removed from the Arena floor, they will be at a great disadvantage. The players did not leave St. Louis until last night and therefore will be unable to do any practicing before the game.

The Oilers, on the other hand, have played two hard games with Kansas City this week and should be on edge.

SEVEN NEW CHAMPIONS CROWNED IN VALLEY BOXING TOURNAMENT

last night, knocking out Andy Barney of the Jefferson A. C. in the first and losing the decision to Jackie Nichols of the Business Men's A. C. in the 175-pound final.

Louis was a sorry-looking spectacle when he left the ring after dropping the decision to Nichols. He had a badly damaged nose, cut lips, battered eyes and cheeks.

Some of the injuries were suffered in his first bout and aggravated in the second. A professional boxer would have called off a good fight if he were in the condition Louis was after the encounter with Barney, let alone boxing again the same evening.

Four Other Kayos Scored.

In addition to Kimmell's kayo of Barney there were four other knockouts last night. Nichols gained a technical knockout over Bob Barth of the Tower A. C. in the third round of their semifinal light heavyweight contest; Dave Stanfield gained a clean and business-like knockout over John Cippie of Madison, Ill., to win the bantamweight championship; Elmer Savage stowed away Al Brendel of the Tower A. C. in the third round of the featherweight final while Duke Luckens gained the welterweight crown by knocking out Louis Grobe of the Tower A. C. in the third round.

Irwin Striebel, the only surviving champion, was voted the "best fighter of the final evening" and for this feat he received a special prize donated by a South Broadway jeweler.

Striebel took the play right out of Babe Davis' hands and won the verdict over the Sherman Park Community Center heavyweight who previously had defeated Striebel twice. Striebel outweighed Davis 50 pounds, scaling 233 pounds to 183 for Davis. He made this weight count and although he made little impression on Davis, he clearly outpointed him.

Highlights of the Tourney.

Al Brendel contributed a little humor to the final night in his bout with Elmer Savage. Brendel floored by Savage's blows, took the referee's command to Savage to get to a neutral corner to be directed at himself, so the poor kid picked himself up off the floor without a count and staggered to a far corner, too goofy to know what was going on. He did that twice but the third time he went down he stayed down.

Only about 500 persons waded through the rain to witness the bouts, making the total attendance for the two nights about 1000.

RESULTS OF FINALS

112 Pounds—Harold "Spider" Kaderabeck, Jefferson A. C. defeated Marcel "Midget" Tarris, Granite City Y. M. C. A. (final).

Local Legion Posts Want Legionnaire for Boxing Commissioner

THE circulation of petitions favoring Seneca Taylor for appointment as Boxing Commissioner, and reported as having the indorsement of the Legion posts here, has no Legion sanction, according to a member of the Fred W. Stockham Post Boxing Committee, Joseph Zirnheld.

On the contrary, Zirnheld writes, there has been no official indorsement of anyone, the only action taken being the passage of a resolution favoring the appointment of a member of the Legion for the job.

A Legionnaire from St. Louis, whose name has been withheld, is campaigning actively for the post. Zirnheld's letter follows:

Sports Editor, Post-Dispatch—My attention has been called to the fact that a great many people have been informed and believe that the petitions circulated in behalf of Seneca Taylor, seeking his reappointment as State Boxing Commissioner, are being distributed by the American Legion, and that he has the indorsement of that organization.

I want to take this opportunity to correct that impression.

At a meeting of the commanders' conference held on Friday, the seventeenth, the Richard Anderson Post of the American Legion presented a resolution which had been adopted by their post and in which the Governor was urged to appoint a member of the American Legion as the St. Louis Commissioner. This resolution was not acted upon by the conference, due to an earnest plea by one of its officers that he would lose his position as inspector for the Boxing Commission if there was a change in the Commissioners.

So far as I know, there has been no official indorsement given anyone by the American Legion, and no official action taken by our organization other than the resolution urging the appointment of a legionnaire to that position.

A member of the Legion is an applicant for the post and is, in the writer's opinion, well qualified to act due to the experience he has had. He has been personally indorsed by a great many of the past and present officers of the American Legion and also has the official indorsement of the Spanish-American War Veterans' City Council, which represents that organization in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

May I again emphasize that the American Legion has no connection with the petitions now in circulation and which are offered to signers in various downtown barber shops, cigar stores and other places?

Yours truly,
JOE F. ZIRNHELD,
Member of the Boxing Committee,
Fred Stockham Post.

34 AMATEUR ENTRIES FOR BOXING PROGRAM

Matchmaker Herbert M. Hart has announced the filing of 34 entries for the Naval Reserve Base amateur boxing show, Tuesday night, at the Naval Reserve Armory at the Foot of Ferry street off north Broadway. Hart also announced that the show will be staged under the sanction of the Mississippi Valley A. A.

Such battlers as Jack Nichols, light heavyweight of the Business Men's Gymnasium; Bill Beauhold, lightweight of the Tower A. C.; Danny Durso, former claimant to the Western A. A. U. bantamweight belt; Arthur (Babe) Davis, Junior heavyweight of the Sherman Park A. C.; Eddie Miller, lightweight representing the Naval Reserve; John Coleman of Jefferson City, Mo.; and Irwin Streibel, another heavyweight, are reported to be seeking places on the card.

St. John's Juniors Win.

St. John's, champions of the South Side Junior Walther League, defeated Bethlehem, North Side Junior Walther League champions, 27 to 21, in a basketball game at St. John's Hall.

SPORT SALAD by L. Davis

The Passing Show.

I SEE where Frisch blew into camp,
Recovered from the writer's cramp,
And straightway signed the papers.
The signing of the Fordham Flash,
Into the Cards will put some dash,
And start them cutting capers.

That Sergeant Street, the master mind,
Is glad that Frankie Frisch has signed
He doesn't mind admitting.
For the machine at Sportsman's Park,
The Fordham Flash supplies the spark
That keeps the engine hitting.

The Browns and Cards are now complete,
And primed and ready to compete
In their respective races.
So give the boys the right of way
For there is something tells us they
Will both be going places.

With winning teams and legal beer,
And prospect for a banner year,
The fans will be in clover.
In other words it's evident
The winter of our discontent
Is practically over.

Quite So.

Babe Ruth may have lost some of his old time punch, and beer, too, for that matter, but Col. Ruppert thinks there still is plenty of kick left in his two big meal tickets.

The old 1794 blue law of Pennsylvania is hanging on the ropes and stalling for time but will not yield until counted out. The first 200 years are the hardest.

Experts claim that wine with an alcoholic content of 3.2 is more or less of a gold brick. Maybe we'd better stick to Mabel Willebrandt's grape bricks.

There's not much kick in 3 point 2,
But any "port" in a storm will do.

A Step Backward.

We don't see eye to eye with President Heydler in his attitude against a spirit of friendly rivalry in baseball. Even box fighters shake hands before beating each other into an unrecognizable pulp.

If it shows a lack of aggressiveness for a ball player to say "howdy" to a former teammate as they pass each other on the ball field, then it is time to sharpen the spikes, suspend the rules and start a survival of the fittest.

Furthermore, we believe that 99 per cent of the cash customers go to the ball park to see a game of ball rather than a brawl.

After spending years in educating the women and making them baseball conscious, why go back to the old McGraw school where the three R's stood for roughness, rowdyism and ruthlessness?

However, why worry? The old fetish about hand-shaking ball players bobs up every time the question of what's the matter with baseball comes up.

There is nothing the matter with baseball except that there is a little too much rubber in it. Ask any pitcher.

Burt Shotton says give him one 20-game pitcher and the Phils will win the pennant. Try and get him, Burt.

You won't find the benches in anybody's ball park cluttered up with 20-game pitchers. When you own one of those babies, you got sump'n, as the feller says.

WRAY'S COLUMN

help some down-and-out friend.

It isn't extravagant to say that if all managers lived up to the best concept of the fight game as Hurley has done, and if all fighters were as dependable as Billy Petrolle, there would never have been any before-the-fight-chatter such as was broadcast in advance of the Schaaf-Carnera fatality.

* * *

This Will Surprise You.

AS a rule, the vanquished fighter and his manager carry on like this about the conqueror:

"That boy's the next champion, sure. You know how tough my fighter is. If he can do this and that to my boy, he's going to have easy sailing when he fights the champ."

Here's what Manager Hurley and Billy Petrolle had to say about Ross, who had just whipped Petrolle:

HURLEY—"Ross is a pretty clever boy. He is not yet ready for Canzoneri, however. If they meet in the next few months, I have no doubt Canzoneri will beat him."

PETROLLE — "Ross? He'll make a great fighter. He needs experience. No, I don't think he can beat Canzoneri right now. A year or two later he may turn the trick."

In other words, rather than praise Ross and thus take the sting out of their own defeat, Hurley and Petrolle gave an honest estimate of Ross.

Imagine a fight manager who says what he really thinks, and you will appreciate Hurley.

Not So Bad.

THE Petrolle-Ross fight interests fans from the financial angle. It attracted 14,068 persons, who paid $25,687 to see the fight. That's evidence that fight interest is still alive even if it isn't able to pay triple admission fees. The sum represents an average ticket price of around $2, and for a large arena in these days that is pretty good in a nontitle contest.

As to Ross' future, he has almost every attribute that goes to make a great fighter, Chicago advices say. Still, it is evident from his record that he has not a knockout punch, in the sense that Leonard and Gans had one—or even as good a one as Canzoneri.

It is encouraging to know, however, that he can fight both aggressively and defensively; and that if he employs counter fighting tactics at the start of his bouts he is usually found forcing the battle at the close, after having satisfied himself as to his opponent's weaknesses.

That's the mark of a promising fighter.

MIDWEST WRESTLERS ARE FAVORED TO WIN IN COLLEGE TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 25.—Indiana's wrestlers led the way for a powerful Mid-Western contingent into the semi-finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association wrestling championships today.

Five men from Indiana occupied semi-final brackets. Oklahoma A. and M., Iowa State Teachers, Southwestern State Teachers' College of Oklahoma and Lehigh, the only strong Eastern school, each qualified four grapplers in last night's second round matches. Illinois and Iowa State were represented by two men each, including the only defending champions on the lists, Joe Puerta of Illinois in the 118-pound class and Robert Hess of Iowa State in the 175-pound division.

Single representatives of Virginia Military Institute, Northwestern, Brown, Lafayette, Ursinus, Harvard and the University of Oklahoma completed the list of 32 survivors in the eight divisions.

GODWIN STOPPED BY ROSENBLOOM IN FOURTH ROUND OF TITLE FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25. — The man no one can beat when a title's at stake, "Slapsy Maxey" Rosenbloom held undisputed possession of the world's light-heavyweight championship today.

Recognized as world's titleholder by the New York State Athletic Commission since 1930, Rosenbloom settled all disputes over the 175-pound diadem in Madison Square Garden, last night, when he stopped the National Boxing Association nominee, Bob Godwin of Daytona, Fla., in the fourth round of a 15-round match.

Thus, for the first time since Tommy Loughran abandoned the title to battle the heavyweights in 1929, the light-heavyweight throne is in the hands of a universally recognized owner.

A slim crowd of 9000 saw the Harlem night club king floor Godwin twice in the first round, slap and cuff him around in the second and third, and cut him so badly about the eyes that Referee Pete Hartley stopped the milling after one minutes 16 seconds of the fourth session.

Godwin's Eyes Both Taped.

Godwin tried to fight back as well as he knew how, but he was outclassed by the veteran of more than 200 ring duels. The Southerner entered the ring with white tape plastered over both eyes, but it failed to provide much protection. Maxey's cuffing, unorthodox attack quickly tore away the tape and started the wounds to bleeding.

Finally one deep cut over Godwin's left eye began bleeding so badly that it was dangerous for him to continue, so Hartley stepped in and awarded Rosenbloom the victory on a technical knockout.

The fight had barely opened when Rosenbloom, whose light hitting is notorious, floored Godwin with a left hook to the body. The Southerner bounced up without a count, but another left to the body sent him to the floor for a count of three. He did not seem badly hurt, but he took a bad cuffing before the round ended.

Rosenbloom's Defense Perfect.

He fought back gamely in the second and third rounds, but the clever Rosenbloom presented an all but impregnable defense.

Rosenbloom, a 3 to 1 betting favorite, weighed 172¾ pounds, against 167¼ for Godwin.

It was Rosenbloom's second successful title defense in two weeks. He beat Adolph Heuser, German slugger, in the Garden, March 10. Godwin won N. B. A. recognition as champion on March 1 by outpointing Joe Knight at West Palm Beach, Fla.

"PETE" BOSTWICK FINISHES FOURTH IN AINTREE RACE

By the Associated Press.

AINTREE, England, March 25.—George H. (Pete) Bostwick, who fell yesterday with John Hay Whitney's Dusty Foot at Becher's Brook in the Grand National, today conquered the high jumps of the difficult course but could do no better than fourth in the four and one-half mile Fox Hunters chase.

Bostwick also finished fourth with his brother's Story of Eden in the Liverpool hurdle race, which was decided over the two and one-eighth miles. The hurdle event went to B. Warner's Free Fare.

As adopted the bill places a tax of $5 on the first store, $10 on the second, $20 on the third, $30 on the fourth, $60 on the fifth, $75 on the sixth, $100 on the Seventh, $150 on the eighth, $300 on the ninth, $350 on the tenth and $500 on each in excess of 10.

RIVAL DELEGATIONS CHOSEN TO JUDICIAL CONVENTION

Two Groups of St. Clair County Republicans to Fight for Seats at Belleville Meeting.

Unable to agree on which candidate they would support for Circuit Judge, St. Clair County Republicans at Belleville yesterday named two groups of 49 delegates and an equal number of alternates, who will fight it out for seats at the nominating convention to be held at Belleville, April 12.

The meeting was divided between Circuit Judge Henry G. Miller, opponent of dog tracks, who is seeking re-election, and John T. Thomas, former Assistant State's Attorney in St. Clair County. Although a vote of township representatives showed a majority in favor of instructing the delegation to the nominating convention for Judge Miller, the Thomas faction, headed by Daniel McGlynn, chairman of the St. Clair County Central Republican Committee, refused to accept the instruction and elected their own delegates. The Miller group adopted similar measures, leaving to the Credentials Committee the problem of deciding which group should be seated at the convention.

Speakers were booed and heckled. At the nominating convention three candidates will be nominated for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial District by delegates from seven counties.

The Washington County delegation, selected at a meeting at Nashville last night, was instructed to support Judge Louis P. Bernreuter, who will seek re-election.

Public notice is hereby given to all banking corporations, associations or individual bankers in the County of St. Louis, County of St. Charles, County of Franklin, County of Jefferson, and the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, that I, the undersigned, Secretary of the Board of Education of the School District of University City, Missouri, pursuant to an order of record of said Board made and entered on the 16th day of March, 1933, at the office of said Board in the Junior High School Building, 6701 Delmar boulevard, of said University City, Missouri, until the hour of 8:00 p. m. on Thursday, the 20th day of April, 1933, receive sealed proposals from banking corporations, associations, or individual bankers of St. Louis County, County of St. Charles, County of Franklin, County of Jefferson and the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, who may desire to be selected as the depository of the funds of said School District of University City, Missouri, for the unexpired period ending June 30th, 1934. The funds, by order of record of the Board, have been divided into two equal parts, each part being for one-half of the whole amount of said funds, together with such additions and interest as may hereafter accrue thereon.

The general school funds received by said District during the last previous fiscal year were the sum of $691,537.34.

The Sinking Fund and the Interest Fund on School Bond Issues received by said District during the last previous fiscal year were the sum of $167,024.25.

Further information as to the details of all of these matters will be furnished upon application to the Secretary of the Board.

The bids on the school funds shall be for the unexpired period ending June 30th, 1934.

To the Banks and Trust Companies of St. Louis County, St. Charles County, Franklin County, Jefferson County and the City of St. Louis:

March 24th, 1933.

All sealed proposals shall state the rate of interest that such banking corporation, association or individual banker offers to pay on the funds aforesaid during the time of deposit, and also said proposals shall state the number of parts of said funds for which such banking corporation, association or individual banker desires to bid. (Bids may be made on one or both parts thereof.) All interest shall be computed upon the daily balances of the funds aforesaid on deposit with such depository or depositories, and shall be payable to the Treasurer of said Board monthly, and if such interest is left on deposit with such depository or depositories, then such additional increment, by virtue of interest accrued, shall bear the same rate of interest as the banking corporation, association or individual banker bids for the part or parts of the funds aforesaid.

Each of said bids shall be accompanied by a certified check for $7,000.00 for each part of said funds bid for, made payable to the order of the Treasurer of the Board as a guaranty of good faith on the part of the bidder that if his bid shall be accepted he will enter into a contract and bond, according to law, such bond to be payable to the said School Board with not less than five solvent sureties who shall own unencumbered real estate in this State of as great value as the amount of the bond, or with a surety or Trust Company authorized by the laws of the State of Missouri to execute bonds as surety; provided, that the Board may accept in lieu of real estate as security, bonds of the United States or the State of Missouri, which said bonds shall be deposited as the Board may direct. The Board further reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Done by order of the Board of Education and dated at University City, Missouri, the 16th day of March, 1933.

Japan's Business Not Ours.
The Whole Duty of Man.
A Lady Won It.
Who Is Happiest?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

YOSUKE MATSUOKA, who headed Japan's delegation in the League of Nations, and "walked out on them," arrived in New York yesterday, and, polite, smiling, reminded us that Japan is "not a vassal state of America," and need not justify her actions in Manchuria or elsewhere.

Of that the United States is aware. We approved when England and France took all of Germany's colonies. Why roar when Japan nibbles off a piece of China? It is not, after all, our business, which is to look after our solid corner of the world on this North American continent, plus islands in various places, the Philippines, Guam, etc., and the big empire of Alaska. That is enough for any country.

One young Chinese named Lin Nap Nin, in the crowd waiting for Mr. Matsuoka, looked, police said, as though he had some opinions about Manchuria. He had a loaded revolver, for which he had a permit.

Mr. Matsuoka talked earnestly and thought the American fleet should be moved from the Pacific back to the Atlantic. That is not reasonable.

Japan's territory borders on the Pacific. We do not ask her to take her ships out of the Pacific. Our land borders on the Pacific, more of it than all territory possessed by Japan, and we may, adopting Mr. Matsuoka's expression, remark that the United States is not "a vassal of Japan," and can therefore keep her ships on its East or West coast, as preferred.

There is no faintest spark of hostility toward Japan in this country, now that labor competition has practically ceased. Only some "inferiority complex" could make either nation suspect hostility in the other.

What is the whole duty of man in America?

According to the Bible it is "to visit the fatherless, and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

But in civilized 1933, you might believe that the most important part of the whole duty of man is to drink beer.

Solemnly, newspapers discuss the day on which beer drinking may begin. Fear is expressed that in New York a misunderstanding of the legislature may delay beer's arrival by a whole week. What a calamity.

That men up to their necks in depression, with the world topsy turvy, should concentrate heart, mind and soul on a glass of beer, shows how much they amount to.

Next Thursday at midnight will come a new American celebration to be called "brew year's eve." Beer becomes legal at one minute after midnight on April 7, as the new year begins one minute after midnight on Dec. 31. Hotels and restaurants will be ready for "brew year's eve" celebrators, beer steins will be on the table, and joy, presumably, unconfined.

An American owner, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, wins this year's grand national steeplechase at Aintree, England, with betting against her horse 25 to 1.

All kinds of geese bet on all kinds of races. Some, extra foolish, bought lottery tickets on the race. The most utterly foolish bought tickets that were counterfeit.

Of $1,000,000 bet on a race, the bettors supply 100 per cent. If they are fortunate, and book-makers unusually liberal in odds, they get back 70 per cent or $700,000 of their $1,000,000 bet. In other words, they pay $300,000 for the pleasure of betting on a horse race. After they repeat this performance three times, the bookmakers, or the betting machines, have ONE HUNDRED PER CENT OF THE BETTORS' MONEY, and the bettors have the experience.

George Bernard Shaw, now in America and at this time visiting W. R. Hearst on his California ranch, replies "in the cemetery" when asked, "where have you seen the happiest people?"

That quick answer was not seriously meant, as often happens with quick answers by brilliant men.

The happiest of all humanity is the mother, holding a newly born child in her arms. The happiest

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY HUSBAND and I have been married two years now and have a little baby three months old. Lately, a friend of my husband has been coaxing him to go out with him both Sundays and evenings, which not only keeps him from his friends and home, but interferes with his business. Recently, I asked this friend, as politely as I could, please to try staying away for a while, or, at least, not to ask my husband to be constantly on the go. I tried not to hurt his feelings and he even said I was right; but he was two-faced about it and went to my husband. This made my husband very angry. My husband said he would go where he pleased and I could do likewise.

Of course this would not be right and I think his attitude entirely unfair, because I asked this for the good of both. We have talked it over, but still he thinks he is right and I just wonder if I should pick up and go home. He says if I do, he will never ask me back—but then, it may bring him to his senses. Just what is your opinion?

C. P.

I would not try the "going home" just now. And I am sorry to tell you that in the mind of a husband, young or old, you can commit no greater crime than to let another man see you are trying to "boss" his "goings and comings." Oh dear! His precious vanity! The male is the (ahem!) "head of the house." And he probably would not give in on that if your motives had been to save him from a burning pyre.

You did the straightforward and natural thing. But it was not diplomatic. I rather hate the kind of diplomacy (to call it a pretty name) necessary. You should have flattered your husband into thinking he was sadly missed and that you would like them both to stay at home with you, asking another lady in. Then, if you could have cast a few moon eyes at the gentleman when you thought your husband was sure to observe, it might have started a little difference. After that, you could have grown icy to the gentleman, just as if he had offended you in some way; but, of course, declaring, when asked, that there was "Oh nothing at all the matter."

I am sure your husband would have felt it necessary to look into things. Don't ask the man to come again; and if your husband starts gallivanting again, say your say to him at once, as a warning; then shut up and be nice, showing that you want to do your part towards mending the rift. Gradually he may have the grace to be ashamed.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL you please tell me when wearing a veil over the face at a wedding, to wear it through the ceremony and then remove it immediately before leaving the altar, or to remove it at the altar before the ceremony? M. P.

When the bride wears a veil over her face, it is not turned back until after the ceremony, just before she starts down the aisle. The maid of honor hands her bouquet to the bridesmaid standing next and arranges the veil for the bride.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

YOU have solved problems for so many girls, perhaps you will help me.

I am engaged to one of the finest young men in the world. I find only one or two faults. They are these:

He never thinks to hop out of the machine and open the door for me and he does not think to let me get in first. He opens the door and enters first. Generally he walks on the outside of the sidewalk, although he once walked on the inside and I heard some remarks by people passing.

He never brings me any small gifts, not even a box of candy. You know how it is with other girls and their fiances; I hate to admit that mine does not bring me presents—not even a small valentine.

Mrs. Carr, he is sweet and I know he loves me, and I can't for the world say anything about these things for fear of hurting him. Please tell me what to do. The girls notice these little, neglectful ways, I know. Shall I forget about these little faults?

This boy works and could afford to think of me once in a while. You see he has no sister, so it is different. She probably would tell him that girls like surprises.

I hope other boys will read this. It doesn't take lots of money; just a little remembrance. JENNIE.

There is some comfort in the knowledge that the omissions you speak of are not of the head or the heart; but rather due to the lack of home training and ignorance of the amenities. And it is not, in the least, a matter of what other girls think or expect. That sort of crudeness does grate, and while it would be narrow-minded and ungenerous to condemn a man for sheer ignorance, to a cultivated person and to one who knows the polish and graciousness to expect in a gentleman, it is most trying.

I am sure this boy, from what you say, has bigger qualities, which other girls would give anything for some of their friends to possess. These are far more vital and far more sustaining in married life, though gracious manners are necessary, too. This is what everybody knows and everybody says—and I do not doubt that you, too, already know it. The few small faults do not figure largely, and you can afford to ignore them temporarily, until you can teach him better—this can be done tactfully)—and think of his good qualities.

If it will help you any, I can tell you of a very dear old Britisher who sang in a choir with such an excruciating basso that everybody suffered. But such was his place in the affections of the parish that, regularly, the moment he started, everybody quickly summed up his good points and dwelt upon them tenaciously while he literally "sawed" through the offertory. The old gentlemar was happy and the congregation properly chastened.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you please tell me where I can get information about being a "Girl Scout?" I am 11 years old and love all outdoor sports. ANXIOUS.

You will find the Girl Scouts of St. Louis, 4253 Magnolia, and the Girl Scout National Branch office at 1120 Locust street, both listed in the telephone book.

Dear Martha:

I AM putting this letter in a rather friendly way; for I certainly consider you as such.

My trouble is this: In the latter part of April I will attend my first formal. 1—Would a pale green be appropriate (I am a natural blonde)? 2—Silver slippers. 3—Should gloves be necessary and if so, should they be white? 4—White handbag? 5—My winter's coat, as I haven't a jacket?

JUST A SENIOR.

Nothing prettier for a blonde than green—not too pale, if you are buying it new. And see that your color is right, just a little extra touch on the cheeks (but far from dobbing). The silver slippers are back in style and the gloves should be white. A tiny ornamental bag embroidery, beads or silver, rather than pure white. As to the coat, it would depend upon the material. Couldn't you manage a little velvet jacket to the waistline—black? They are to be had very cheap, or if you could make it, it would cost still less. You could wear your coat over this jacket if the night were cool, and take it off and leave it in the car or take it off just before going in and have your escort carry it.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

AFTER reading the letters of "Schopenhauer Jr." and "One Who Knows," I want to say that I agree entirely with the latter.

This restlessness and unrest comes to all of us at some time in our lives. And there is no permanent cure, except through the teachings of Christ. And these teachings are all to be found in the Bible. The only time we have this "peace which passeth understanding" is when we are in harmony with the One who inspired this Book. May Schopenhauer and all others find this peace is my wish.

ANOTHER WHO KNOWS.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

The psychologists believe that it sometimes does. When it occurs it is is usually a deep, lasting and beautiful love. Dr. Wiggam has prepared a small pamphlet explaining the psychology and factors underlying this occurrence. It will be sent upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope and one three cent stamp to cover printing charges. Address Dr. Albert Edward Wiggam, care of this newspaper.

1.—No. The fact that marriages of people who fall in love while students in college, according to Popenoe, show a far lower divorce rate than marriages in general, indicates that education and good opportunity to observe each other at serious work has more to do with picking out a good mate than any pre-arrangements made elsewhere. Happy marriage depends mainly upon the teaching young people to be good judges of human nature and then arranging for their wholesome association at both play and work. Heaven helps those to find a mate who help themselves.

2.—Yes, as one psychologist expressed it to me: "You will make more friends in a week by being genuinely interested in other people than you will in a year, by being interested in yourself." This applies to marriage as well as to all of life. Forgetfulness of self in service to others, without worrying whether we are appreciated or not, brings the highest happiness we ever secure either in marriage or other phases of life.

3.—No, although nearly all business firms and salesmen answer yes. But Dr. Henry Link, a noted psychologist, has shown by a wide study that: "The personality of the salesmen is the least important and a study of the customer's personality and buying habits is the most important in successful selling." He told me of one girl of a very poor personality in a big store who outsold all others because she studied the customer's personality, got onto his curves quickly and met his ideas and needs. Personal charm is worthwhile but reading your customer's thoughts is the main thing in selling.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

BY THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

Beyond Our Incomes

THE REV. J. F. NEWTON.

THE world is well nigh bankrupt; only one nation on earth is free from debt. In every land we hear of debts, deficits, defaults, until we are almost afraid to pray as Jesus taught us: "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." All nations are burdened with budgets which will not balance and taxes that climb higher. As of nations so of individuals—at the feet of each of us yawns an abyss of ruin.

Why is it so; what is it all about? It is an intricate problem, but one thing is plain enough: If war is a necessity, as some argue, we see now that it is also a luxury, as costly as it is ghastly. We are paying the piper who played the tune for the hideous dance of death in the World War, and his fees are high. We cannot shoot gold and silver bullets, much less burn up billions in values, and not be the poorer for it.

Still, if we learn the lesson which all the poets and prophets have tried to teach us, perhaps it is worth it. The human mind is almost impervious to ideas, and that makes all progress a bloody business. If we are poorer and sadder, let us hope that we are also wiser, with a clearer sense of verities and values. At last we may learn that righteousness is common sense, and that brotherhood is good business.

Yet, from another angle, all human advance has been due to our desire to live beyond our incomes. We want the best things and puzzle out all sorts of inventions to get what we want. It is not simply self-interest; for it is not merely better food, clothes and houses that we want. More than all these we want the luxuries of the heart—love, liberty, truth, order, beauty—and we fret if they are missing from the house of life. We live recklessly above our incomes to win the boon we seek.

In this sense we shall go on living beyond our incomes; for we are at our best when we live grandly, like spendthrifts, in behalf of the best. It is this type of extravagance—"magnificence," the old writers called it—which carries man beyond himself, and makes him throw away even life itself to gain those expensive luxuries—truth, beauty, love.

P. HAL SIMS

The first fourteen articles in this series by P. Hal Sims have been reprinted in an attractive booklet. This booklet will be sent without cost to anyone requesting it. Address P. Hal Sims, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

P. Hal Sims is acclaimed the greatest contract and auction player. He is captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, and has won 20 national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

Rebidding Procedure of Original No-Trump Bidder

CONTINUING without interruption yesterday's discussion of the situation when opener has a concealed long suit and responder makes a suit take-out which leaves the hand's destiny still in doubt I wish to stress the reason for my making a rigid rule—they are rare in my system — that when once you have opened the bidding with a no-trump, you may not bid a four-card suit until the bidding has gone beyond three no trumps.

HAL SIMS

This is to guard against the necessity for both partners to deny each other's suits and thereby waste precious bidding opportunities which should be serving a more constructive purpose.

The principle of "instalment bidding" necessarily applies to the responding hand's take-out. By this I mean that he needs a second round of bidding to show whether he is very weak (he will then rebid his suit) or strong enough to raise the two-no-trump rebid to three, or perhaps bid a second suit. This we must concede and we can afford it. We cannot afford for there to be doubt also about the length of the opening bidder's concealed suit. Responder must feel safe in passing or raising that suit bid with adequate trump support for a suit known to consist of more than four cards.

Responder Has Very Definite Knowledge About a Suit Bid by Opener Subsequently to an Original No-Trump.

When the opener bids a suit under the game level, after having opened with one no-trump, the responder not only knows that it consists of more than four cards, he also knows that it is a strong suit, headed by tops, because if the long suit is weak, the opener should, as we have seen in recent articles, bid the suit and not no trumps. Consequently, the responder should know whether a partial score contract will be safer in his suit or in the declarer's If his own suit is in any way comparable to the suit he now knows declarer to hold, he will undoubtedly be strong enough to wish the hand to be played in three no trumps, and bid accordingly. Of course, if responder's suit is a major but opener's is a minor, it devolves on the responding hand to take a less subsidiary part in the bidding, and to rebid a five-card major suit in the hope that the opening bidder may be able to contract for game in no trumps or in the suit.

Let Us Analyze a Few Examples.

Sp. K x — Di. A J 9
Hts. K 10 x — Cl. A K x x x and he rightly bids a no-trump rather than a club, since the lead up to this hand is a positive necessity in no trumps.

Responder's hand is

Sp. Q J x x x — Di. K x x
Hts. x x x — Cl. x x and the bidding goes — one no trump, two spades. Opener's hand is so very "minimum" that he should now bid three clubs, not two no trumps, and thus pass to his partner the decision whether game or partial score shall be the destiny of the bidding. Partner must of course bid three spades, which opener will pass. Had opener's hand been

Sp. K x — Di. A J 10
Hts. K Q 10 — Cl. A K x x x

he would, over two spades, bid two no trumps, hoping his partner could next bid three hearts or three no trumps. Over the despondent three-spade rebid, he would himself bid three no trumps. there being now no need to tell any one about the club suit.

With

Sp. K x x — Di. A Q 9
Hts. K x — Cl. A K x x x

the opener should, on this same bidding, bid four spades over three spades. Were the club holding A K Q x x, I would at this point bid three no trumps rather than four spades, because now I will expect to lose no club trick in no trumps. With the weaker club suit, I would expect to lose at least one trick in it at no trumps, whereas in spades I may hope to find my partner with only two of them. Thus he will ruff out the suit and obtain discards of one or more losers from his own hand. The game in spades is then likely to depend on the location of the ace of hearts and a normal spade division in the opponent's hands.

Monday—Valuable interference by the opening bidder.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

ONE of the anonymous contributors forwards this simile which we gladly print—"As dull as Winchell's gag column without Elinson!"

And so—here's the busy Izzy again: Beer ought to discourage nudism. Well, anyway, with the return of the brass rail, the nudists will start wearing shoes!

I hear that Kate Smith is wearing men's clothes. I saw Kate last night. She had on a suit—with two pair of pants!

WALTER WINCHELL.

SWAN SONG

"A chap by the name of Walter Winchell, a vaudeville hoofer, appears to be the current fad on Broadway, with a newspaper column. There are many people, however, who agree with this department that within another few months he will prove to be a typical Broadway "flash-in-the-pan." Gilbert Swan in dozens of newspapers in 1927.

THE RETORT PROPER

A few weeks after Al Jolson opened on his recent radio program, John Royal, one of the major executives up at the National Broadcasting Company, sent a memo to Jolson which read: "My only suggestion to you is to omit the personal pronoun. Don't keep talking about yourself. Cut out all the I's."

BUTTERFLY

The Spring we met I was superbly young,
Too gay with unrepentant, fickle ways,
And little cared how much your heart was wrung,
Because I flitted on through shining days.

Yours was a love too serious I found,
Your steady hand reached out to stay my wings,
And laughter came to me because you frowned
Upon my careless way of doing things.

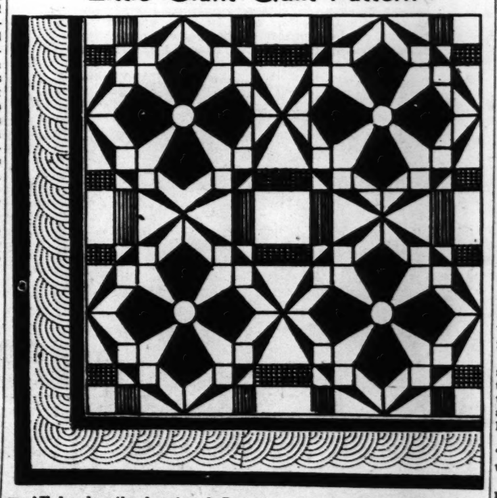

Since your restraint is gone, I'm quiet now,
Without a stimulus for seeming free,
And I recall the time you mentioned how
A butterfly reminded you of me. . . . .

You said, "How brief is beauty; butterflies

people, generally speaking, are those doing useful work, well.

There is no happiness except IN WORK and there is no work in the grave.

Shaw, a worker, happy, successful, all his life, would not accept the pessimistic theory that real happiness is "absence of pain." Happiness is in accomplishment. There is no substitute.

Winston Churchill, discussing "terrorism in Germany," and speaking in the House of Commons "thanks God for the French army, in the face of the anti-Jewish violence in Germany."

He means that he has in mind the power of France to curb Hitler and his "new Germany." He might better thank God for the French air fleet. Planes, bombs and deadly gas from the air, not in a creeping caterpillar army, will be the reliance of France, and of Germany too, if war should come.

Gov. Lehman of New York, has a "beer plan." You buy the beer, take it away, or drink it on the premises. You may not put your left foot on a brass rail, your right elbow on a polished bar and drink thus. That's illegal. You may drink in a beer garden if you can find one. Beer gardens take much room, and in winter they must have roofs. Brewers may have no interest, direct or indirect, in any retail beer selling emporium. That may be a mistake, for brewers having real interest in beer distribution might manage drinking places better than some others.

STAMP NEWS

THE Postoffice Department will issue two stamps to commemorate the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago beginning on June 1. The denominations will be one and three cent. The one cent will have for its design a replica of Fort Dearborn while the three-cent stamp will depict the Administration Building on the Exposition grounds.

Cermak Memorial.

The Postmaster-General is being urged to authorize the issuance of a stamp in memory of the late Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, killed by an assassin't bullet intended for President Roosevelt. The design has not been decided upon but if issued it will be of the five cent denomination.

Do You Know

That the United States handled more mail than Great Britain, France, Germany and Russia combined?

That Columbus appears hundreds of times on the stamps of dozens of countries but Columbus, the country which was named after him, has honored him just once with a postage stamp and that recently?

That a skull and cross bones was used as a design on a stamp of Epirus during the world war?

New Issues.

ABYSSINIA—There has been discovered a double surcharge in both carmine and blue on the 1m on 2m stamp of 1931.

ANDORA—The current 30c stamp has appeared perforated 11.

ARGENTINE — The origin amount of the "La Plata" issue will be doubled due to the enthusiasm of stamp collectors for this set.

Type A 104, 3c green, has been overprinted "M. R. C." in Sans-Serif capitals for use as an official stamp.

AUSTRALIA—The 1sh4p light blue, King George Type, A4 and 5sh yellow and gray, Kangaroo Type, A1, stamps have recently been issued on the new paper, watermarked Small Crown and C of A Multiple.

Four stamps have been overprinted "O. S." for official use. They are on paper watermarked, Multiple Crown and C of A. These stamps are ½p orange and 5p buff, both in Type A4 and 6p brown and 2sh red brown, both in Type A1.

ANGOLA — Three values have been added to the new set recently listed in the Post-Dispatch. They are 1c bistre, 5c olive brown and 10c violet.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC — The set announced a few weeks ago to be issued in honor of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Fernando Arturo de Marino has just made its appearance. Not having the values or the colors at the time of the first announcement we are listing them below:

½c violet (Tomb of Marino), 1c green (Bishop Marino), 2c orange (Portrait of Marino), 3c purple (Bishop Marino), 5c deep blue (Tomb of Marino), 7c blue (Portrait of Marino), 8c green (Tomb of Marino), 10c yellow (Bishop Marino), 20c carmine (Portrait of Marino), 50c olive and 1 peso brown (Cathedral of Santo Domingo).

EGYPT—The colors of the new Air Mail stamp listed last Monday is as follows: 1m orange and black, 2m gray and black, 3m brown and black, 4m green and black, 5m orange, brown and black, 6m dark green and black, 6m dark blue and black, 8m purple and black, 9m copper red and black, 10m purple and brown, 20m dark green and brown, 30m dark blue and brown, 40m copper red and brown, 50m orange and brown, 60m gray and brown, 70m dark blue and blue green, 90m orange and blue green, 100m purple and blue green, 200m copper red and blue green.

ITALY—The famous poet Lodo Vico Aristo is to be honored by the issuance of a special set of stamps.

NEWFOUNDLAND — A special series of stamps commemorating the "Fourth Centenary of Occupation" will be issued shortly. A new air mail stamp will be issued in the latter part of June.

POLAND—In August special "service" stamps will be issued for use of government departments.

RUSSIA—To the recent commemorative set recently listed by the Post-Dispatch add yet another value. This time it is a 20 kop red brown, picturing a factory seen from the air. An air post series is coming out early in April. This series is to commemorate the tenth anniversary of civil aviation and air posts. The stamps are more in the nature of posters than anything else. They are large pictorials of the following denominations and designs: 5k, Airplane over the blast-furnaces of Koosnetsky; 10k, Airplane over the napth works, 20k, Airplane of the rural economy collectives, 50k, Airplane over Volga-Moscow River construction, 80k, Airplane over the Arctic.

Saving Snaps

When removing snaps from one garment to use on one in the future, snap them together on a piece of paper and place in the sewing cabinet. Then you will really have them when they are needed, not be able to find just one section of the snap.

In a beer garden if you can find one. Beer gardens take much room, and in winter they must have roofs. Brewers may have no interest, direct or indirect, in any retail beer selling emporium. That may be a mistake, for brewers having real interest in beer distribution might manage drinking places better than some others.

GOOD TASTE

By EMILY POST

The Woman in Business

IN APPEARANCE, a woman applying for a business position should be as smartly turned out as possible. Business smartness, however, is about 80 per cent neatness and 18 per cent fashion and at most 2 per cent undetectable makeup. In answering the questions put to her by whoever interviews her, she should be as frank and concise as possible, and keep strictly to actual business qualifications; where she was educated and what positions she has held. After the interviewer either engages her or tells her he will let her know, she should hand him a card with her name and address and telephone number on it, then stand up, say good-by and leave. In other words, she should not sit as though planted, nor be a dawdling leave-taker.

EMILY POST

One piece of advice is important. Remember that sex is one thing which has no place in business. Much as a man may admire a pretty or magnetic or amusing woman in his leisure hours, in his hours of work he wants someone to help him with that work, and the more help she can give him, the more he values her and the more salary he is willing to pay.

Naturally he likes one whose personality is attractive, rather than one who is strikingly the reverse, but business personality and leisure personality are two different things. They are sometimes combined in one person, and sometimes romance is an outcome of business, but so seldom as to be negligible.

Every man likes a woman whose beautifully adjusted neatness of person denotes that her mind is clear, efficient and polished, and that she can keep these qualities, no matter what the stress and strain of circumstances may be. In short, he might liken a perfect business woman to a perfect motor, which is valve-ground and shining and ready to go any distance without boiling over—or breaking down because of weak structure, which cannot hold up under strain.

In addition to normal ability, the asset most likely to take a woman to the top of a professional career is a man's own quality of impersonality. By "impersonality" is meant exactly that. A woman's point of view must be focused on the work in hand and not on her own reactions to it, or to anyone's reactions to herself.

At the very top of the list of women's business shortcomings is the inability of most of them to achieve impersonality. Mood, temper, jealousy, especially when induced by a "crush on" her employer, is a chief flaw of the woman in business and a constant source of annoyance in every office where she exists. The greatest handicap to a woman's advancement in business is her inability to leave her personal feelings at home.

An anonymous expert on business gave as the receipt for success: "The ability to work efficiently and pleasantly with other people." The receipt is perfect—there is nothing to add except to acknowledge that it takes no small amount of will and self-control to "get on" with any constant companion under the daily friction of an enforced relationship, which is unrelieved day after day, week after week. It is wonderful that human nature stands the strain as well as it does, especially in situations where one's own work is dependent upon the co-operation of others for its efficiency.

That a likable personality is an asset no one will for an instant deny. Unfortunately one cannot acquire likability as one can acquire a hat or a wrist watch. A likable business personality can be cultivated by means of knowledge, skill, and above all, by an unfailing good temper and fairness. And one can, of course, find out antipathetic traits, which are handicaps to personality, and try to overcome them. The most antipathetic trait possible to have, and one that is almost certain to block any girl's advancement, and more than likely to cause her to lose her position, is persistently to announce her presence to others by any of the odors of the careless.

If you have the slightest impression that others withdraw at your approach, ask someone—or more than one—for the truth. The reason no one ever tells another of this failing is that it is supposed to be lack of bathing. But quite often it is a physical condition, curable with the simplest sort of astringent or lotion or gargle. But remember, after asking a friend to tell you about this, or any other failing frankly, that her advice will result in nothing but ruptured friendship unless you are the one in a thousand who, asking for the truth, can accept it without anger, and profit by it with courage.

POLAND—In August special "service" stamps will be issued for use of government departments

RUSSIA—To the recent commemorative set recently listed by the Post-Dispatch add yet another value. This time it is a 20 kop red brown, picturing a factory site from the air. An air post series is coming out early in April. This series is to commemorate the tenth anniversary of civil aviation and air posts. The stamps are more in the nature of posters than anything else. They are large pictorials of the following denominations and designs: 5k, Airplane over the blast-furnaces of Koosnetzkstroy, 10k, Airplane over the napth works, 20k, Airplane of the rural economy collectives, 50k, Airplane over Volga-Moscow River construction, 80k, Airplane over the Arctic.

Saving Snaps

When removing snaps from one garment to use on one in the future, snap them together on a piece of paper and place in the sewing cabinet. Then you will really have them when they are needed, not be able to find just one section of the snap.

in a beer garden if you can find one. Beer gardens take much room, and in winter they must have roofs. Brewers may have no interest, direct or indirect, in any retail beer selling emporium. That may be a mistake, for brewers having real interest in beer distribution might manage drinking places better than some others.

GOOD TASTE

The Woman in Business

IN APPEARANCE, a woman applying for a business position should be as smartly turned out as possible. Business smartness, however, is about 80 per cent neatness and 18 per cent fashion and at most 2 per cent undetectable makeup. In answering the questions put to her by whoever interviews her, she should be as frank and concise as possible, and keep strictly to actual business qualifications; where she was educated and what positions she has held. After the interviewer either engages her or tells her he will let her know, she should hand him a card with her name and address and telephone number on it, then stand up, say good-by and leave. In other words, she should not sit as though planted, nor be a dawdling leave-taker.

EMILY POST

One piece of advice is important. Remember that sex is one thing which has no place in business. Much as a man may admire a pretty or magnetic or amusing woman in his leisure hours, in his hours of work he wants someone to help him with that work, and the more help she can give him, the more he values her and the more salary he is willing to pay.

Naturally he likes one whose personality is attractive, rather than one who is strikingly the reverse, but business personality and leisure personality are two different things. They are sometimes combined in one person, and sometimes romance is an outcome of business, but so seldom as to be negligible.

Every man likes a woman whose beautifully adjusted neatness of person denotes that her mind is clear, efficient and polished, and that she can keep these qualities, no matter what the stress and strain of circumstances may be. In short, he might liken a perfect business woman to a perfect motor, which is valve-ground and shining and ready to go any distance without boiling over—or breaking down because of weak structure, which cannot hold up under strain.

In addition to normal ability, the asset most likely to take a woman to the top of a professional career is a man's own quality of impersonality. By "impersonality" is meant exactly that. A woman's point of view must be focused on the work in hand and not on her own reactions to it, or to anyone's reactions to herself.

At the very top of the list of women's business shortcomings is the inability of most of them to achieve impersonality. Mood, temper, jealousy, especially when induced by a "crush on" her employer, is a chief flaw of the woman in business and a constant source of annoyance in every office where she exists. The greatest handicap to a woman's advancement in business is her inability to leave her personal feelings at home.

An anonymous expert on business gave as the receipt for success: "The ability to work efficiently and pleasantly with other people." The receipt is perfect—there is nothing to add except to acknowledge that it takes no small amount of will and self-control to "get on" with any constant companion under the daily friction of an enforced relationship, which is unrelieved day after day, week after week. It is wonderful that human nature stands the strain as well as it does, especially in situations where one's own work is dependent upon the co-operation of others for its efficiency.

That a likable personality is an asset no one will for an instant deny. Unfortunately one cannot acquire likability as one can acquire a hat or a wrist watch. A likable business personality can be cultivated by means of knowledge, skill, and above all, by an unfailing good temper and fairness. And one can, of course, find out antipathetic traits, which are handicaps to personality, and try to overcome them. The most antipathetic trait possible to have, and one that is almost certain to block any girl's advancement, and more than likely to cause her to lose her position, is persistently to announce her presence to others by any of the odors of the careless.

If you have the slightest impression that others withdraw at your approach, ask someone—or more than one—for the truth. The reason no one ever tells another of this failing is that it is supposed to be lack of bathing. But quite often it is a physical condition, curable with the simplest sort of astringent or lotion or gargle. But remember, after asking a friend to tell you about this, or any other failing frankly, that her advice will result in nothing but ruptured friendship unless you are the one in a thousand who, asking for the truth, can accept it without anger, and profit by it with courage.

INTERESTING INTERIORS of Attractive ST. LOUIS HOMES

Charming Color Schemes in the Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Morse

The attractive dining room in the Morse home. Sky blue and gold harmonize in an effective color scheme.

The master bedroom with furniture of the French provincial style.

By JOSEPHINE WALTER.

SOME homes are notable for their fine architectural background, others for the rare antiques used in furnishing; that of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Morse in Glen Forest is distinguished for the charming color schemes which have been developed throughout the house. Tones of blue and yellow have been consistently utilized, accented by shades ranging from rose to the deeper wines and rusts.

From the viewpoint of color, the dining room is the most interesting in the house. Here a rather deep, soft shade which is termed "ciel" or sky blue, has been used for the walls, with the panels faintly outlined in gold. This gold tone is echoed in the lustrous satin curtains, edged with a tassel fringe, which are interestingly draped with swag valances on the casement windows. The chairs, of Sheraton design, as is the rest of the furniture in this room, are covered in a Burgundy chintz patterned in blue and rose. A Burgundy carpet of the same shade as the chintz completes the regal coloring of this room.

Softer shades of the same colors are used in the living room, thus establishing a pleasant harmony between the two rooms. The deep yellow cream of the walls is set off by the copper rose tone of the silk damask curtains. A handsome Paisley shawl, hung on one wall over a Queen Anne knee-hole desk, repeats this deep rose note. The large couch and two lounging chairs are covered in a very light green-blue blocked linen, designed with deep rose-colored flowers. The furniture in the room is English in character, as is the architecture of the house; the most striking feature of the room being the handsome fireplace, which has a mantelpiece of wood reaching to the ceiling, with the facing of carved stone.

The master bedroom and adjoining dressing room continue with the same colors as those used on the lower floor, except that here they are in much softer, more delicate hues. The bedroom wall has been painted a pale jonquil yellow with a border of light blue flowers; the panels being outlined with the same blue. The blue of hydrangea is used for the ground color of the percale drapes with the pattern of roses ranging in tone from pale yellow to deep rose. These curtains are edged with yellow ball fringe and on the two small windows at either side of the beds are draped on only one side instead of two.

The furniture in this room is in the French Provincial style, a period well suited to a country house. The charmingly carved beds are covered with sateen over which are placed spreads of Brussels net with blue ribbon tied in a series of bows around the edge. A slipper chair covered in the same fabric as the curtains and another covered in a plain yellow damask are added bits of color in the room.

The dressing room walls are of the same yellow as the bedroom, with the doors of the closets having a delicate design in blue. A deeper yellow taffeta bound in blue is used for the curtains, which are attractively draped above the dressing table, with an extra swag placed at the top of the mirror. The dressing table itself and the accompanying stool are covered in a blue chintz patterned in a crocus design in tones of yellow and rose, a deep yellow ruffle being used instead of binding.

This home demonstrates effectively the fact that various periods of furniture may be drawn together into a related whole by a consistently handled color treatment. Here a personal preference for tones of blue and yellow has been the basis for a decorative scheme which expresses the individuality of the owner.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts, Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Invisible Perspiration

AS LONG ago as 1614 a scientist by the name of Sanctorius published the results of extensive experiments on insensible perspiration.

Man had been acquainted with visible or perceptible sweat, but that the body constantly gives off water, gases and other substances in a manner that is not ordinarily appreciated by the individual was a newer realization.

An individual weighing himself on a sensitive scale upon retiring and when rising in the morning will find that he has lost from one to two pounds. This loss in weight represents the passing from the body of a variety of substances most of them in an impercetible form.

In experimental studies it has been found that the hourly loss of weight in mature, healthy individuals may amount to almost two ounces. A rise in the surrounding temperature will increase this loss up to a point at which visible perspiration appears.

Recent studies have revealed that there is a loss of water vapor through the skin itself, the skin being, as is now evident, a semi-permeable membrane through which water may diffuse.

It is interesting to note, too, that the insensible giving off of water vapor is not a simple mechanical process, for when the relative humidity of the air is raised to about 70 per cent, the insensible perspiration increases perceptibly.

The skin therefore acts as a vital organ, rather than as a simple membrane.

Perceptible sweat is a complicated solution containing chemical substances such as chlorides, phosphates, sulphates, sugar, urea and other non-nitrogenous compounds.

Sweating not only regulates the temperature and water balance of the body, but also helps to maintain the acid-base balance of the blood, a delicate chemical balance which profoundly affects well-being.

Under abnormal conditions sweat may aid the body in removing excessive acid from the body.

Pale Gravy

If you make good, greasless gravy but always seem to have it about three shades too pale, invest in a bottle of kitchen bouquet. A few drops of this will give that lovely rich brown to your gravy without changing its flavor in the least.

Add a little ammonia to the water when washing the pantry shelves to help keep ants away.

White Mess Jackets Have Varied Vogue For All Occasions

CHICAGO.

PARIS decreed those cocky white heavy pique mess jackets with their wide and bulky shoulder line for evening wear, but Chicagoans, especially the younger set, are donning them for morning, noon and night.

One was glimpsed beneath a black cloth coat on the street. Another was spotted at lunch in a department store tea room.

The shops also are showing them as part of a dresses ensemble. One had them in light colors as well as white. The dresses are of silk crepe, and so far, come in dark colors with the black frock and white jacket being the smart combination. The dresses generally have a bit of the pique on them—a modest yoke, a collar, a bow or trimming somewhere.

The swanky tailored cut of the mess jackets gives them a military dash, but, as one is apt to be reminded by style-conscious saleswomen, they are dressy—not sport togs. Thus they go to luncheon, teas, cocktail parties, dinners, dances, even shopping, but so far not to the golf course.

The one seen at luncheon was worn over a black crepe frock. The wearer's hat was one of those new Turkish fez patterns, black with a white ornament. The wearer's shoes and large oblong bag were also black. Her gloves, slip-on style, were white.

When part of a dress ensemble the jacket it sometimes of lighter weight pique than in those designed for evening wraps. Also the sleeves may be less bulky. There are a number of weaves in the pique being shown from the narorw to the wide wale and the basket effect.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

The Twenty-Third Psalm

THE Lord is my shepherd.

(Like some poor sheep I wander with the human flock, not knowing why I am, or where I go. I cannot see God's face, or hear His voice, for I am blind with ignorance and deaf with doubt and fear; yet, as sheep feel the shepherd's guiding will, so do I feel a Force behind my life, and dimly sense a Purpose and a Plan. And when I falter, something in me cries, "Go on! You are not lost. The Shepherd knows the fold to which you go.")

ELSIE ROBINSON

I shall not want.

(My body may know poverty and pain. But God has placed within me secret springs, which shall sustain me when I'm poor and weak. I still have Beauty, when my gold is gone; and Friendship, when my pantry shelf is bare; and Courage, like red wine, to warm my soul!)

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside still waters.

(Earth pastures wither when the winters come. Earth waters dry when springtime rains are done. But Love has pastures which are ever green, and Faith has fountains which no drouth can seal.)

He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

(Two selves live in me; one a greedy brute, the other a bright stranger, whom I call my Soul. And often the fierce brute drives out the Soul. But something draws it back to me again, and turns my face once more to seek the truth.)

YEA, THOUGH I WALK THROUGH THE VALLEY OF THE SHADOW OF DEATH I WILL FEAR NO EVIL; FOR THOU ART WITH ME, THY ROD AND THY STAFF THEY COMFORT ME.

(There are so many deaths in every life. Death of our loved ones; death of cherished dreams; death of our pride, and confidence, and peace. Each day death's shadow falls across our path, but bright against the shadow blazes Hope. For always after night the morning comes, and always after winter comes the spring. And not one grain of sand is ever lost. Shall man, alone, be wasted from God's hand?)

THOU PREPAREST A TABLE BEFORE ME IN THE PRESENCE OF MINE ENEMIES; THOU ANOINTEST MY HEAD WITH OIL; MY CUP RUNNETH OVER.

("Mine enemies." They are those foes that live in mine own self—my hate and fear, my envy and conceit. How often they have won the victory! But when I catch a vision of the Truth and lift myself a little higher from the mire, then, for a time, I'm freed from my base self, and know the pride and joy of some great conqueror.)

SURELY GOODNESS AND MERCY SHALL FOLLOW ME ALL THE DAYS OF MY LIFE, AND I WILL DWELL IN THE HOUSE OF THE LORD FOREVER.

("My Father's house." That's not some strange, far place, but just the common world in which I spend my days. All of my hours are His arching rooms. My life is built into His living walls. All that I am or do is part of Him. His mercy comprehends my blundering. His goodness girds His weak and stupid child. I cannot go so far that He is left behind.

(So, though I do not know the how or why, and though I never yet have seen His face, I need not fear. For where life goes, I go, and life is God. And I am part of His eternal mystery.)

The HUSBAND CAMPAIGN

By Anne Gardner

CHAPTER THIRTY.

JODY walked on air for days after her Sunday afternoon with Sybil Crosby. Her honest confession to this sympathetic listener gave her a feeling of being cleansed.

To be sure, there was much that she had not told Sybil—about the husband campaign, for instance. But everything she had said was true, and Sybil seemed to have an added respect for her.

The friendship continued. Sybil lingered for long talks when she visited the store, and several times they had lunch together. There was just one sign of the social and economic gap between them. Neither mentioned names, since, presumably, names would mean nothing to the other.

And so, from Sibyl, Jody drank in many of the things that she wanted to know. Observing the other, she learned how to conduct herself in various situations, what exhibits and concerts to attend. She learned to watch her speech, not for blunders—she was past that worry now—but to give words their phonetic value after the manner of Sybil.

And Sybil drank in the warm, vivid life of the bookstore clerk. Sybil Crosby had come into the world with every gift but one—the need to make some practical use of her talents. She envied Dal his absorption in business, Esther her zest in the diversions open to the youthful rich.

FOR Sybil these had never been enough. And yet, having everything and being extremely sensitive, she had never been able to lose herself in any pursuit. Her love gave her the thing she had lacked—and she had lost it.

Sometimes now she could feel it vicariously in the bookstore girl and told herself sadly that she was the gainer in the friendship, since she could a little revive her paralyzed spirit at Josephine's glowing fires.

But never, it happened, did either mention Paul by name. Josephine spoke of him as "he." Sybil knew whom she meant, and called him "he" to tease Jody.

Once Sybil was in the store at closing time and took Jody home, in a great glittering car with a chauffeur, the combination causing much excitement at the rooming house. But Jody did not recognize the car, though she had seen it before. When Sybil spoke of Josephine at home, it was as "my bookstore lassie." And so both continued, unconscious of their common interest in Paul.

Harris Anson's attentions became more pronounced, to Josephine's confusion. He did not often now join the expeditions with Paul, but seeming to know when she was not engaged, asked her to go some place with him on these occasions.

She found excuses when he invited her to dinner, for she was growing to feel that this man was no friend of Paul. On Vesey street, his actions would have been interpreted as "double-crossing a pal." Josephine was losing enough of her awe of Park avenue to feel that in a Harris Anson these actions were just as treacherous.

Trying to cut in on a friend's girl—how else explain him? But still she hesitated about offending him.

EVENTUALLY he understood that she would not go out in the evening with him. And then she found him constantly appearing as if by accident. She would be walking home from work when someone would fall into step beside her, a hand would touch her elbow—it would be Harris Anson and he would stroll with her to her rooming house, exerting every effort to be charming.

Jody began to find it necessary to exercise fantastic precautions on the evenings when she went to have supper with Em and Hannah.

She never knew, now, when Anson would appear, and it was almost impossible to get away from him except at the door of her rooming house.

When she was expected at Vesey street, therefore, she made it a practice to stand in a doorway, looking fearfully up and down the street to make sure that he was not in sight, before dashing like a hunted thing into the subway entrance.

Several times she saw him, even then. She would stroll back to the rooming house, wait until he was out of sight and then resume her interrupted journey.

A little fear of Harris Anson began to grow in her heart. Why did he pursue her when she so plainly did not wish it? And while his manner was subtly loverlike, she could not feel that sentimental interest dictated his actions.

She would have liked to appeal to Paul—but what was there to say? She could not complain that he made love, for he had not, exactly. She shrank from making trouble without imperative cause.

Thus she said nothing, but began to dread the evenings when she was not to be with Paul, and when Harris Anson might appear. She went home by roundabout routes, but in spite of her precautions, every once in a while he would drop into step beside her. There could be no doubt of it. He was following her. Why?

SHE would not have guessed the answer even had she known that one night when she went to Vesey street he was behind her, letting her merge with the crowd at the subway entrance, but keeping her little hat always in sight.

BEGIN HERE:

EMMA HAGGERTY, matchmaking scrubwoman, picked rich, lonely PAUL GRAFTON as a husband for her beautiful foster daughter, "JODY" LASCA. Her plot to bring them together succeeds, but Josephine rebels against the husband campaign and gets herself a job in a book store. Paul finds her here, and the affair continues under circumstances more acceptable to Josephine's self-respect.

But she will not let him introduce her to his rich friends. SYBIL CROSBY, a society girl whom Paul greatly admires, meets Jody at the book store and takes a fancy to her, neither knowing of the other's connection with Paul.

HARRIS ANSON, the one friend from Paul's own class who has met Josephine, begins showing her some attentions which make her uneasy.

He slipped out behind her at the station and kept out of sight until she had left the station, then followed her at a safe distance until he saw her go into a tenement.

There he made discreet inquiries. And when he went home that night he made a lengthy notation, inserting it in the envelope marked "Grafton." That envelope was becoming bulky. He had not the key to the puzzle as yet, but some day it, too, would fall into his hands.

It was on their next meeting after this incident that Harris Anson, waiting when she came out of the door, really forced Jody to have dinner with him.

"This isn't social courtesy," he pointed out. "I've got to talk with you. I don't know why you avoid me. Some people seem to like me. But tonight I won't leave you until you go somewhere and have a chat with me."

Josephine saw no graceful way of refusing. They went to a restaurant on the second floor of an old mansion, a speakeasy, though Jody did not know it until cocktails were brought.

"Go on and drink it; why not?" Anson urged. "I know you don't when you're with Paul, but you needn't pretend with me."

He had gone too far. Jody froze into rigid dignity.

"I don't pretend when I'm with Paul. I think you just have a wrong idea about me, Mr. Anson."

"I wonder." Harris Anson, having finished his cocktail, helped himself to hers, and then turned the stem of the glass between his fingers, not looking at her. "I wonder. I thought it was time I was finding out."

Finding out what?" Jody's voice was sharp.

"Of course I know what you're up to," he went on softly. "What I wondered was—what sort are you, anyway?"

Jody's fingernails dug into the tablecloth. "What do you mean by saying that you know what I am up to?"

Now he looked at her, his face drawn into a smile that had no mirth in it, his eyes probing her mercilessly.

"A girl—a very pretty girl I might say—disappears suddenly from Vesey street without leaving her address." Jody gasped, and the color drained slowly out of her cheeks. He went on, well pleased.

"At the same time she shows up in a respectable locality and in a respectable position, and in a very intimate friendship with a young millionaire.

"The answer should be obvious, but it isn't. The girl supports herself, if I am any judge, and I believe I am. She continues her visits to her aunts—but, of course, Paul knows all about the aunts who—a—scrub floors for a living?"

Josephine bit her lip. "No," she whispered.

"DEAR, dear, he doesn't know that the pretty girl is a niece of the scrubwoman in his building! That may be complicating, you know, very complicating.

"Well, to get back to our knitting. The girl supports herself in honest poverty. She goes out with our millionaire, who happens to be very prudish in his tastes, to the most respectable places only. Doesn't dine in speakeasies, even. Think of it! Doesn't drink, doesn't smoke. Funny thing, our millionaire doesn't approve of women who drink and smoke.

"What's the answer?" suddenly his tone was savage. "What's our little girl playing for?"

Jody tasted the depths of shame and degradation. This suave devil knew all about her, all about the pitiful little secret they had tried so hard to hide! She could not speak, and Anson, measuring her misery, answered his own question.

'Something big, that's obvious. But haven't you made a fatal blunder in deceiving him? Suppose he should find it out?"

Jody found her courage. She lifted her head and faced her tormentor. "What is all this to you?"

He raised his eyebrows expressively.

"It's going to mean a great deal to me. You're going to let me in on your little game."

NEW GLOVES for EASTER

HERE'S a spring thought for the girl who knows crochet needles as well as the styles. Long gloves for the Easter parade, crocheted in cotton, will give charm and allure to your new dark costume.

And if you have time before Easter Sunday, the 16th of April, you might also enrich your wardrobe with the four-pointed collar the young woman in the photograph has crocheted for herself.

Your store will probably be able to show you how to crochet these accessories. Go to the needlework department.

Neither of these accessories is especially difficult to make, and either one will snap up your costume surprisingly. And incidentally—as you can see by glancing at the photograph—the two go awfully well together.

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

A GIRL with secret ambitions to look pretty can be nonchalantly so in one of those new conehithery starched chiffon evening frocks that are pinked to perfection. After all, the designers don't seem able to improve on pink as the shade for prettiness. Take your choice of a striped organza that is white but has self flowers tinted pink; another shimmering creation that is white through the middle but has a rosy tinted flounce for its skirt and its shoulders; and a pink and white candy striped affair looking good enough to eat.

Take a good look at the sleeves illustrated and cut yourself a pattern. A last year's spring coat will become this year's if you are clever enough to manipulate those new sleeves. If you're not, then break down and buy the coat just because of its sleeves. They are made of transparent velvet, shirred at the shoulders and at the wrists.

As though encouraging us into believing that the hour of plenty is drawing near, the latest pottery vases to arrive in one shop are cornucopia in shape. They come in pairs, too, if that means anything. A shade that is a little off white seems to be preferred. As for a place to put them, why not try wall brackets? You can get these brackets now of compressed wood pulp instead of plaster, so that they'll stand for a lot without getting chipped.

• • •

When you see the new gingham bouttonaires you'll want to hurry and buy a tailored suit for the sole purpose of finding a proper spot to wear these gay cotton sprigs. Red and white checks or red and white plaids are the brightest of the lot, especially when backed by red patent leather leaves.

A riding crop doesn't call for a habit and a horse when it is only four inches long and is worn instead of carried. The swankiest new pins for cravats are wood and ivory crops. An arrow is another means of pointing to a cravat.

This BEAUTY EXPERT Says:

CLEANING with cleansing cream and toning with skin tonic are the first two steps in the home facial and form a perfect basic treatment for every woman. The tonic should always be used following the cleansing cream to remove every bit of cream, dust, grime, makeup and make the skin more receptive for the softening skin food which is to follow.

Today we study the actual movements in kneading and molding the skin with an emollient cream or skin food. Those movements are similar to the kneading and molding that facial operators in leading, luxurious salons use.

Unless the skin is excessively oily, a softening, suppling cream should be used to keep fine lines at bay, to overcome dryness (which seem to be an increasingly common complaint). Proper method is important because strenuous massage may do more harm than good, pulling muscles downward, stretching the skin and forming more lines. But properly applied a good cream will keep the skin soft, smooth and youthful.

FIRST MOVEMENT: Begin at base of neck, applying the cream with long, sweeping upward strokes, upward and outward over face and forehead. Now start at the left side of the neck, using the right hand (palm and cushion part of fingers). Press and lift—about seven distinct movements to back of neck. Repeat about six times. Then with left hand on right side.

SECOND MOVEMENT: Start at center under chin—cushion parts of fingers of right hand on left side. Press and lift under chin, under contour, up with about seven distinct movements until you come to the front of the ear. Repeat on right side with left hand. The muscle in front of ear controls the contour, and this step helps keep contour firm.

THIRD MOVEMENT: Use three fingers of both hands. Start on chin and lift, lift, lift—up from chin, around mouth to side of nose with six movements. This is for the important muscles around mouth and to keep at bay the lines from nose to mouth.

FOURTH MOVEMENT: Practice this movement night and morning to form contour. Palms of both hands. Grasp chin firmly. Hold it. Tense slightly. Use five movements, lifting each time, lift under chin, lift under contour up to just below the ears.

FIFTH MOVEMENT: For youthful eyelids. Bend index fingers of both hands. Now lift brows, press gently, lift, continue moving outward to temple. Now under eyes, at inner corner, with cushion part of middle finger press and lift-moving outward to temple.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, March 26.

BE particularly attentive to occupational matters during the early part of this coming week. Today is generally favorable for constructive purposes and moral motives. But put your foot on the brake in evening. Don't coast.

It Can't Be Done.

There are many kinds of faith (enthusiasm) that we can and should use every day we live, breathe and work. Faith in yourself; faith in all the members of your family; faith in the other citizens of your city; faith in the officials of your city, of your state, of your nation; and faith in this world. True faith is a force, as we have said here before—it is the force of Life itself, moving within us and by which we move. This is the difference between ancient masters of scientific psychology, the old teachers of the Astrology-Wisdom religion, and our modern psychologists, who attempt to explain existence while leaving God, Faith, Enthusiasm and the Life Principle out of their formulas. It can't be done with good results.

Your Year Ahead.

General conditions in your vicinity are becoming calmer, but there is still much action ahead, if this is your birthday; make shifts of location and mind positively and constructively. Watch finances and business judgment, particularly from Aug. 27 to Oct. 7; haste makes the causes of worry. Avoid danger and negative emotion Nov. 19 to 26, and March 16 to 22, 1934.

For Monday, March 27.

Use the balance of this month for looking ahead, as far as you can. Today getting better all the way for those who are not narrowly selfish. The afternoon and evening hold opportunity for making and doing things positively.

Faith in Yourself.

The use of faith in your daily life is essential to happiness and success. You really can't get along for one minute without it. That is how real and ever present it is. Without the subconscious strength that you use for breathing, awake or asleep, you couldn't exist. That subconscious strength is faith, your confidence in the supporting power of the life essence of which the masters of old have told us. This is the basis of faith in yourself. It is what is meant by the phrase: "While there is life there is hope." By the way, please note that you must have faith in yourself before you can have the right kind of faith in others. Note the errors of your friends, possibly of yourself, who try to have faith in someone else taking care of them.

Your Year Ahead.

Sons and daughters of this anniversary have before them a year mixed with both judgment and feelings; keep both these large departments of your life and affairs on the build-up side and all will go better than if you take chances with selfishness. Caution with finances; all September and first half of October. Avoid danger; No. 21 to 27, and March 17 to 23, 1934.

Tomorrow.

Take no chances; not a reliable set of celestial influences.

A piece of carpet on the treadle of the sewing machine is easier on the feet of the steamstress if much stitching is to be done.

LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 24.

ERNST LUBITSCH has rejected "Design for Living," starring Frederic March, Miriam Hopkins and Herbert Marshall. He cannot see a picture in Noel Coward's play. Everyone who knows Norman Foster likes him. That's why there was gloom in Hollywood when it became known that he had been seriously injured in an automobile accident. We all kowtowed to the cast of "Grand Hotel." You ain't heard nothing. Listen to the roundup that David Selznick has for 'Dinner at Eight." Marie Dressler, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, John Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Jean Hersholt, Louise Closser Hale, Grant Mitchell, Karen Morley and May Robson. Someone outtalked Rudy Vallee. He is no longer peeved at Paramount. In fact, he has forgotten that he wants to play Charles Laughton roles and has compromised by agreeing to sing a song in "International House."

Chatter in Hollywood: Only a few intimate friends know that Ramon Novarro and Myrna Loy have a tremendous yen for each other. Eddie Robinson sent a telegram to friends in Hollywood saying: "It's a boy. Contrary to all expectations, baby had no cigar in his mouth." A cable from Countess di Frasso: She and Mary Pickford are returning to the United States. Constance Bennett is reported as having gained 10 pounds during her 20 days aboard the Dutch freighter. Greta Garbo, our correspondent, also tells us, shopped in Paris. Here is a laugh. She bought two tweed suits. The friends of Verree Teasdale are just now hearing of her operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Leslie Carter, who has made her home in Hollywood for some years, is leaving.

Raquel Torres, dark-eyed, dark-haired Mexican beauty, escorted to the fights by Gene Raymond. The Torres-Charles Feldman romance seems in cold storage. Louis B. Mayer in a ringside seat with Eddie Mannix. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Winfield Sheehan and other fight fans. Nell Hamilton traveling the 113 miles to Palm Springs on a bicycle Wages on whether he will hitchhike en route. Jean Harlow dancing with the popular man of the hour, Randolph Scott. Howard Hughes and Ginger Rogers also out stepping at the club New Yorker. Ethel Sutherland Butterworth back again in Hollywood with her bridegroom.

MY Beauty Hint

By LOUISE CLOSSER HALE

LOUISE CLOSSER HALE

OF COURSE I wash my face and use a good powder, but those are the only exterior steps I take toward beauty.

I think more wrinkles have been acquired through feverish efforts for their prevention than through ignoring their existence, and that if the mind is at rest the face will remain youthful.

Therefore I concentrate on keeping my mind at rest. I start the day by having a period of quiet before the rush begins. I arise early enough to allow time for a leisurely breakfast, at which time I glance through the paper, arrange my schedule for the day, and thus put my thoughts in a tranquil frame.

A garbage pail will last twice as long if given a coat of paint on the inside before being used for the first time.

Stripes Stand Out In Spring Styles

NEW YORK.

THE stripes have it, in the spring fashion parade. Striped suits, coats and ensembles are brightening up our best shop windows these days. And it seems the great American woman will go strolling in stripes this season.

We've had striped blouses, candy-striped shirting silk frocks, striped collars and cuffs and striped handbags, but the striped coats and suits seen about town are distinctly new. For instance, there's a stunning ensemble which consists of a gray wool lace one-piece tailored dress and a candy-striped three-quarter woolen coat with full sleeves drawn into a tight cuff.

The dress, trim and tailored, has a high neckline and is laced up the front with narrow bands of the candy-striped woolen, which also fashions the half-belt. The coat has wide, flaring revers and hangs straight from the shoulder, in a most dashing fashion. It's big sleeves are box-pleated onto the shoulder, and end in long, tight cuffs, almost to the elbow.

Another ensemble in stripes consists of a skirt and three-quarter coat of blue and gray pin-striped woolen, worn with a lemon yellow tunic blouse, trimmed in narrow bands and bows of white pique.

Mary Graham Bonner

At The Party

THE party given by the Quackers of Quackerville for all the Ducks was a very fine one, and Mrs. Quacko's costume was much admired.

When they discovered that she was going to tell fortunes the Ducks could hardly wait in turn. She would tell each Duck to stand on one foot and make a wish. Then she would hold the Duck's other webbed foot with an outstretched wing and would tell fortunes such as this:

"My dear, you are going to have some wonderful luck. Yes, I see it in this line in your foot. You are going to take a trip—down to the end of the pond and back anyway,

"You're going to meet a handsome Duck with a yellow beak and—well, I'm not sure whether I see a wedding ahead or not. Certainly I notice that the marriage line in your foot is very clear. And your wish is going to come true."

After the fortune telling was over the Ducks all swam over to the big pond lily leaves, where supper was being served. Each Duck had a special, small leaf with a white feather with the name of the Duck who was to sit in this place written upon it.

After the party was over Mrs. Quacko took a number of the Ducks home in her one-and-a-half cylinder Duck coupe, and right away she put the car in the Willow Tree garage and said:

"I've had a beautiful time, but I must say I'm tired and sleepy now." So she stood by the side of the pond with her head under one wing and went sound, sound asleep to dream sweet Duck dreams.

THUMBNAIL REVIEWS OF THE NEW MOTION PICTURES

By NIE

AMBASSADOR—George Raft and Sylvia Sidney doing a swell piece of work in a story about ex-convicts and taxi drivers called "Pick Up." George would have married the gal right at the start but she couldn't get rid of her husband until reel eight.

LOEW'S—All of the Barrymores in "Rasputin and the Empress" which played the American Theater a few weeks ago at road show prices.

GRAND CENTRAL—Life inside a prison under the shadow of the electric chair as painted in Warden Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." A good sermon on prison ethics with no suggestion of the sex angle so loudly proclaimed in the advance ballyhoo.

MISSOURI—Constance Bennett, Gilbert Roland and a fine cast in "Our Betters," the sophisticated tale of the carryings on of Our Set in London. For a No. 2 film the Missouri has "Luxury Liner" with George Brent, Zita Johann and Alice White cutting up at sea.

FOX—Life on the ocean wave is pictured, too, in "Pleasure Cruise" here. Roland Young, Genevieve Tobin, Ralph Forbes, Herbert Mundin and Minna Gombel doing a sort of Grand Hotel story aboard ship.

Linton Wells, an American newspaper man stationed in Moscow, will open the broadcast of folk music sung by the Pianitzky Chorus and songs by Irma Yaounsen. Part II will bring three pieces by Tschaikowsky, played by the State Symphony Orchestra of Moscow, with Dershinskaya, soprano of the Moscow Grand Opera, as soloist. The Soviet Music Chorus will conclude the broadcast.

KSD's bill for tonight will include part of Archer Gibson's organ recital, at 7 o'clock; the "Economic World To..ay" program, at 7:30; Hugo Reisenfeld's Viennese concert, at 8 o'clock; Ethel Schutta, Gus Van and George Olsen's orchestra, at 8:30, and B. The program will include Hawaiian melodies, hulas and fox trots and waltzes based on folk songs. If the transmission is successful, the program may be scheduled regularly Saturday nights.

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

by Alice Judson Peale

Being Receptive

AS a parent you naturally want your chil- to appear clever and capable.

You wait him to be mentally advanced beyond his age and a credit to you generally. The temptation is to teach him at every opportunity.

If he shows curiosity, you try to drain the last drop of response out of that curiosity by deluging him with detailed information.

You check up on him later to see if he has understood and you try to add more facts to his store. Always you push him to think in a logical way.

You forget or you have not realized that often when he asks you a question he does not want you to answer. He wants you to turn it back to him so that he can tell you.

Remember, too, that his mood is not always an intellectual one. He does not always want to be taught things. Sometimes his conversational advances are a preface to self-revelation.

If you always insist upon taking the lead in talking to him you may never learn what he really thinks and feels.

Because he loves you, he will try to meet you on the level you seem to desire, but his inner self will remain solitary and inarticulate.

Originality, imaginative flights, the self-confidence which enables him to find his own particular bent and follow it have little chance of coming to the surface where the pressure of the parent's ideas is ever present and overwhelming.

To be sure, it is the imaginative and sensitive child whose development suffers most under this well-meant type of domination.

But even a realistic youngster finds his own capacities more quickly and develops more richly an individuality of his own if his parents learn to practice the art of being receptive.

If a cement floor is to be covered with linoleum, be sure it has been waterproofed first.

At The Party

THE party given by the Quackers of Quackerville for all the Ducks was a very fine one, and Mrs. Quacko's costume was much admired.

When they discovered that she was going to tell fortunes the Ducks could hardly wait in turn. She would tell each Duck to stand on one foot and make a wish. Then she would hold the Duck's other webbed foot with an outstretched wing and would tell fortunes such as this:

"My dear, you are going to have some wonderful luck. Yes, I see it in this line in your foot. You are going to take a trip—down to the end of the pond and back anyway.

"You're going to meet a handsome Duck with a yellow beak and—well, I'm not sure whether I see a wedding ahead or not. Certainly I notice that the marriage line in your foot is very clear. And your wish is going to come true."

After the fortune telling was over the Ducks all swam over to the big pond lily leaves, where supper was being served. Each Duck had a special, small leaf with a white feather with the name of the Duck who was to sit in this place written upon it.

After the party was over Mrs. Quacko took a number of the Ducks home in her one-and-a-half cylinder Duck coupe, and right away she put the car in the Willow Tree garage and said:

"I've had a beautiful time, but I must say I'm tired and sleepy now." So she stood by the side of the pond with her head under one wing and went sound, sound asleep to dream sweet Duck dreams.

DETECTIVE AND BURGLAR SHOT BYSTANDER IS HIT IN CHASE

Patrick Murphy Opens Fire When Questioned as He Attempts to Sell Loot in Broadway Pawnshop and Is Pursued.

FALLS AFTER HE IS STRUCK TWICE

Thief's Pistol Thought to Have Caused Injury to Youth—Ex-Convict Tells Where He Stole Jewelry.

A burglar, trying to sell stolen jewelry in a pawnshop at 3 North Broadway yesterday afternoon, was questioned by two city detectives. He shot one of the detectives, then fled from the store. The detectives followed, and in a short pursuit the burglar was shot twice, and an 18-year-old youth, a bystander, suffered a dangerous and disfiguring wound in the face. Those wounded were:

Detective Frank Adams, shot in upper left arm; not serious.

John Dwyer, 18, messenger, 2012 Knox avenue, shot at left side of nose, bullet passed out behind right ear; in City Hospital; serious.

Murphy, shortly after 5 p. m., entered Henry Miller's Broadway pawnshop and offered to sell for $200 a diamond ring, which he said he had bought from a downtown jeweler in 1919. He offered also a scarf pin and a pair of earrings. Miller and his son, Irving Miller, suspected the articles, and offered Murphy $150 for the ring. He agreed on the price, and Irving Miller made out a check for $145, intending to pay $5 cash.

Questioned, Starts Shooting.

Murphy was writing his name in the firm's purchase book, putting it down as "R. E. Murphy," with 1000 West Pine boulevard address, when Detective Sergt. Ferdinand Firle and Detective Adams came from the back of the store, where they had been making a routine inspection, and began to question him.

"As soon as we spoke to him, he began to back away," Adams said afterward. "Near the door, he drew a revolver, and said, 'Get back, all of you,' then started shooting.

"Sergt. Firle and I drew our revolvers and fired at him, and he went out of the door, still shooting. I knew I was hit, but I kept after him. He fired at us, but we didn't stop to fire at once, for fear of hitting other persons.

"He went north on Broadway, and more than halfway to Chestnut street he turned and fired three shots at us. We both fired at him then, and he ran on, turning west on Chestnut, but when we got to the Garrick Theater, in the middle of the block, he fell. He was trying to get up and start down the alley when we got there and arrested him."

Admits Theft of Jewelry.

Both Adams and Sergt. Firle said their shots were not fired at random place or in a direction to have caused young Dwyer's wound, and that he must have been shot by the fleeing man. Another bullet, believed to have been fired by Murphy, went through a first-floor window of the old Courthouse, across Broadway, and dented the wall, after missing the heads of several persons who were looking at paintings on display there.

Dwyer was standing in the entrance of a moving picture show, next door to the pawnshop, looking at the bills as he waited for a street car. He said afterward that he heard the shots in the pawnshop, but did not see the men leave the shop, being shot just as he turned to see what was the matter. He is employed by a downtown typewriter company, and lives with his uncle, James O. Slocum, on Knox avenue.

Murphy, at the hospital, admitted the theft of the jewelry which he was trying to sell, and his previous sentence for burglary. His right arm bears the tattooed title, "Two-Gun Pat."

"I did this last job alone," Murphy said, speaking of the burglary in which the jewelry was taken. "I went into a house in University City at night, when nobody was
